Mass. results tighten races

By Afp and Upi

State Sen. Frank Sargent pledged Wednesday to maintain personal independencies and Democratic unity in the presidential primaries — a game plan that would fit him in Vermont and Massachusetts and helped drive Sen. Edward M. Kennedy out of the race.

The Senate Republicans stand with Sargent's challenge that Kennedy is not a candidate in the primaries. In both states, however, some newsmakers believe that Sargent's strategy would go on to influence the votes of the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries.

"This year will not be the last time that the political winds will blow in the direction of the state," Sargent said.

But unlike Sargent's plan, Kennedy's efforts in both states were watched by the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries.

"It was the second mildly in the 1960 presidential race, after Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Senator from Wisconsin, said.

The Senator, who said that his reign as president had been broken, noted that he had fought for the presidency and that he had been "by the left, right, center".

It was not until the last week several markets were closed in the capital, but in the city, Edward Kennedy was the last to be named as the frontrunner. Kennedy had told the Senate that his campaign would be "about the least expensive of any other campaign as a result of the city".

There were several hours in the Tuesday primaries.

Officials negotiate with M-19 rebels

The rebel group has made several demands of the government, including the release of political prisoners and the withdrawal of foreign troops from the country. The talks are taking place in a neutral country, under the supervision of a neutral mediator.

Mass., results alter GOP race

The results of the Massachusetts primary elections have altered the course of the Republican Party's nomination race. The winner of the Massachusetts primary is now the frontrunner for the party's nomination, which could have significant implications for the upcoming general election.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

is now accepting undergraduate major changes. The "freeze" imposed during Fall Term, 1979, has been lifted as new admission criteria have been developed.

Any freshman or sophomore wishing to be considered for pre-business status should obtain a major change form and folder from your University College office. Other students may obtain records for review from your Assistant Dean's office.

Bring your folder to the Undergraduate Programs Advisement Center, Room 7 Eppley Center, from 8-4:30, Monday through Friday. Advisers will be available on a "walk-in" basis only.

Troubleshooter has received several letters from readers who are interested in the performances of our Troubleshooter, and we included a few of them in our Sept. 17 issue.

Two of the letters have been very helpful in showing us how we can improve the Troubleshooter service, and we thank the writer who sent them.

One of the letters was from a reader who had written to us about a problem he was having with his phone service. He said that he had called the Troubleshooter to help him with his problem, and that he had been very satisfied with the service.

The other letter was from a reader who had written to us about a problem he was having with his car. He said that he had called the Troubleshooter to help him with his problem, and that he had been very satisfied with the service.

We appreciate these letters, and we hope that they will help us to improve the Troubleshooter service. We welcome all letters from readers who are interested in the performances of our Troubleshooter.

21 is responsible, fair drinking age

All this talk about bringing the drinking age up to 21 has been rather confusing. It seems that the idea of 21 being the legal drinking age is given all the attention these days. If this is the case, then why does anyone bother with the issue of 18 or 19? Is this not contradictory? I think it is. If 21 is the legal drinking age, then why not just go straight to 25? Why not just forget about the whole issue of drinking ages? It seems like a waste of time and energy to debate this issue when we could be focusing on more important problems.

Rodeo animal treatments

A rodeo animal treatment has a much longer lifespan and requires less medical attention than a horse. The horse can be kept in a stable for years without any problems, but a rodeo animal must be constantly monitored to ensure its safety. The horse can be fed and watered, but a rodeo animal must be regularly checked for any injuries or illnesses. The horse can be trained for various tasks, but a rodeo animal must be trained to perform a specific function. The horse can be used for general purposes, but a rodeo animal must be trained for a specific purpose. The horse can be ridden by anyone, but a rodeo animal must be trained specifically for riding. Fourteen candidates vie for ASMSU seats

In the ASMSU election during spring term registration, 14 candidates will be running for 10 college seats on the Student Board. Each of the candidates was allowed to write an essay describing their platform, which was transferred to the essay used in the election.

The 14 candidates represent the election of the college of Engineering and Human Ecology, and the University College. With one exception, all candidates are seniors.

John Blett, a senior, prelaw major, is running with the Student Board. He said he had no plans to run for either the Student Board's President or Vice President.

The Student Board will meet immediately after the beginning of the spring term. The colleges of Education and Business each have only one candidate.

Many of the 14 candidates are Warren and only one candidate is an instructor. The following of the 14 candidates are Warren and only one candidate is an instructor. Social Science

John Lynch, a sophomore majoring in social science, is president of the 12-student board that needs to decide on the campus dress code. Lynch feels that the dress code would be a good idea to follow through with an operation to improve the campus image.

Lynch said that the dress code wouldn't violate students' rights.

"The biggest issue is finding out what standards would be used," Lynch said. "It would not be anything specific to the student dress code and other special interests groups."

The board was originally formed for the purpose of not being a part of the student dress code. Lynch and the board felt that the dress code is a decision for the student dress code group.

"I think it's a matter of whether the student dress code group has the power to make the decision," Lynch said.

Pinto prosecutor complains of inadequate evidence

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Prosecutor Richard A. Crawford yesterday told the defense that the prosecution's case against the Ford Motor Co. in the Seattle Triple homicide family case was "weaker than sand." The defense attorney, however, said the prosecution had not "run out of gas yet.

The prosecutor and his group of demonstrators and news media who also were held in court by the court to support their case.

The lack of "damage control" he said, "was a great thing for the defense to work on." The defense attorney said the prosecution had not run out of gas yet.

Friday's hearing during Spring Break, by the way, was the last day of the case. The case was dismissed by the jury on March 10.
OSU, Kent State on tap as women gymnasts close out regular schedule

By WILL KOWALSKI
State News Sports Writer

Athletes on the Ohio State and Kent State women's gymnastics teams enter the Big Ten meet in Ohio this weekend, and OSU is looking for a victory to close out the regular season.

The Buckeyes, ranked 16th, are coming off a successful meet last weekend against Michigan State. OSU won the meet 183.20-182.85, which moved them three positions ahead of the Buckeyes in the national coaches poll.

OSU has a strong showing at the Big Ten meet for this season, with scores over 390.00 in all four events. The Buckeyes, however, have not been consistent in their most recent meets and have been ranked lower than Ohio State in the coaches poll.

In the Big Ten meet, the Buckeyes will compete against the Michigan State Spartans. OSU has a strong showing in the all-around event, with a score of 40.000, while Michigan State ranks 12th in the nation.

For the Buckeyes, a strong performance in the all-around event would give them a good chance to win the conference title.

OSU has a strong showing in the individual events, with a high score of 19.850 in the floor exercise. The Buckeyes are looking to build on their strong performance in the previous meet against Michigan State.

A good performance in the all-around event would give OSU a strong chance to win the Big Ten meet and finish the season on a high note.

Swimmers compete at Big Ten meet

The Spartans have pulled higher than those three and possibly the University of Wisconsin or Ohio State University. Sophomore George Knuige, Rick Lindamood and Mike Murray are the Spartans' best chances for placing in the championships. Knuige, who's best time in the 200 yard butterfly is 1:48.5, will be one of the top three places Charles Roberts of Indiana and Rick Meritt of Purdue. The Kalamazoo String Quartet can do no wrong. On Tuesday night, they opened two sets of concerts at the State News and two sets at the University of Michigan. The quartet was well received by all the audiences.

The concert opened with Beethoven’s String Quartet No. 16 in E-flat major, which was followed by Schubert’s String Quartet Opus 75, No. 6, in B flat major, minor. Both pieces were performed with great sensitivity and professionalism.

Beethoven’s String Quartet No. 16 in E-flat major is a masterpiece of the Classical period. It is a work of great beauty, with a free and spontaneous style. The quartet performed the piece with great expression, capturing the mood and atmosphere of the music.

Schubert’s String Quartet Opus 75, No. 6, in B flat major, minor is a work of great depth and complexity. The quartet performed the piece with great control and precision, capturing the blend of melodies and harmonies that make this piece such a masterpiece.

The concert was well received by all the audiences, with many expressing their appreciation for the quartet’s performance. The concert was a success and the quartet was well received by all.

Janitor arrested in Calif. kidnapping

By TOM MURPHY

Authorities charged a man with the 1972 disappearance of a nine-year-old girl in Yosemite National Park. Two men were arraigned in Yosemite County Superior Court.

On March 10, 1972, 8-year-old Sherry Moore was last seen hitchhiking near Yosemite Valley. Her body was found in the Merced River on March 15. More than 400 people were involved in the search.

In 1972, Yosemite National Park was closed to the public and was turned into a reservation for Native American tribes. The National Park Service, however, continued to operate the park.

In 1974, a California State Parks ranger, who was a member of the Yosemite National Park staff, was arrested and charged with the kidnapping and murder of Sherry Moore. He was later convicted and sentenced to life in prison.

Justice employees told to plug info leaks

By MICHAEL J. SNYDER

WASHINGTON—Concerned that "the real story of Abscam was never told," Justice Department lawyers have warned Justice Department lawyers to be sensitive to the possibility that they are being "led up the garden path" by clues in Thursday's sentencing of Bernard Civiletti, former head of the Justice Department's Criminal Division.

The warning came in a Secret Service investigation into a leak of information by a Justice Department employee to the press.

"It's a regrettable employee, who, on the other hand, has been doing a great deal to defend our system from the various types of leaks that have plagued it," said one of the Justice Department lawyers who was present at the hearing.

The lawyer said he was concerned about the Justice Department's ability to keep secrets and was worried that the employee's actions could create a situation in which "the department is being led up the garden path by its own employees."
Board closes meeting for a fight

By MIKE CHAPDAUER
State News Staff Writer

The Board of Directors closed part of its meeting Tuesday night to discuss a resolution dealing with "a threat to the University's existence." Students who want to join the fight against the University of Wisconsin.

Wausau's student government has been declaring war on other student governments across the state including MUW. During the closed session, Executive Director Dan Bouchier said he was not a fighter for "a group which wanted MUW to close." He then went on to close the meeting for "a fight against the student government at Wausau." He also said the meeting would be closed after the Board's discussion. Bouchier said the meeting was closed because of the student government at Wausau.

That he was "not a fighter for the Board," Bouchier said.

HE SAID the group asked him to close the meeting in order to obtain proper time for the Board to discuss the resolution involving the University of Wisconsin. "They are the party who started this," Bouchier said.

Bouchier added that the meeting was closed because the University of Wisconsin said John W. Baldwin, former Student Body President of the Programming Board, said the meeting was closed because of the Student Body President's decision involving the University of Wisconsin.

The meeting was closed after the Board's discussion involving the University of Wisconsin.

However, the Board went on to discuss the resolution involving the University of Wisconsin. "We are talking about the University of Wisconsin," Bouchier said.

THE BOARD amended the resolution that had passed, and the meeting was closed. ASHE, chief of staff in the Board's office, said the resolution that had passed was now in the Board's office.

Bouchier said the resolution that had passed was not the same as the resolution that would have passed if the meeting had been held.

Bouchier said, "If we had not been able to talk about this issue, we would have continued to talk about the resolution involving the University of Wisconsin."
Of course it was only for fun—just a fun game—but the game-altering MSU hockey fans were not expecting to win. The fourth annual brown and gold hockey game between the Spartans and the Legal Eagles, a team of two attorneys, was held in a 1-0 lead for MSU, but the deficit held until the last minute, making the win all the sweeter.

The game was a gold medal moment for the team. "We were able to pull it off in the world (the Legal Eagles) and win in our own," said Bessone.

The game attracted participants from many community organizations and individuals. Double Minor, MSU's home team, was captained by Tyler Bower, editor of the Lansing State Journal, and special guest judges, including Michigan's former Governor Rick Snyder, were in attendance. The Lansing Police Department was the charity beneficiary.

THE RATE WAS 30 percent lower for men who drank diet soda or sweetened coffee at least 3 times a week, while those who ever drank those beverages, the rate was 35 to 40 percent lower.

Some legislators in the Bar-day staff showed some high interest in rates. For instance, the risk was 30 percent lower for men who drank more than five diet soda or sweetened coffee at least 3 times a week. But the rate was 35 percent lower for those who
never drank those beverages.

Drinking more than 40 per-tent increased the risk of heart disease in men who had been eating a diet soda for more than five years.

Researchers from the health study, conducted by the University of Michigan, found that the risk was 30 percent lower for men who drank more than five diet soda or sweetened coffee at least 3 times a week. But the rate was 35 percent lower for those who
never drank those beverages.

The study suggests that, as a group, men of high dietary risk have little or no control over the better urinary tract.
