Carter sets deadline in hostage crisis

By ADP and UPS

President Carter has set Friday, April 10, as the deadline for the nations that are holding Americans hostage. "I think he has decided as a matter of policy," said a State Department official, "that there will be no further extension of the deadline."

The President was very closely consulted in making the decision, following a meeting with Israel Prime Minister Golda Meir. In his announcement, Carter said: "I decided to announce the new deadline, not because I'm proceeding with a specific course of action, but because I strongly believe that the crisis is at an end, and there is no point in prolonging the suffering of the hostages."

The development follows two secret meetings by Carter with Meir in recent weeks, the second against advice of an expanding new task in the U.S.-Iran

President Carter's spokesman, Jody Powell, said Carter's contact with the hostages was "secondary" to the larger issue of the crisis. "If Carter wants to see them released," said Powell, "he will have to work with our government."

The Middle Eastern states have been unable to agree on a resolution to the crisis, which has already taken the lives of 12 Americans. The Eisenhower White House has said it will not participate in any such resolution until the hostages are released.

Union to file 'harassment' grievance against Custodial Services supervisor

FDA asked to require warnings on coffee, tea

By JANET STADAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A plan by the Food and Drug Administration to mandate labels on coffee and tea to warn consumers they may cause birth defects and other reproductive problems is being called into question by the coffee industry, which denied that there was any "substantial evidence" that coffee and tea cause birth defects in animals.

In response to a request for voluntary labels, FDA spokeswomen said the agency was not prepared to work on the issue until further study was completed during pregnancy. The plan, which had been reported as an "overseas" plan earlier this year, was retracted when it was learned that the author was not referring to a study in foreign countries.

The agency said it has received no request to label coffee and tea as having a birth defect risk, but that it had been asked to label coffee and tea as having a "substantial" risk.

The FDA is currently reviewing the issue, which was not addressed in a recent report by the Institute of Medicine. The report was released in September and is scheduled to be released in November.

The report was commissioned by the National Academy of Sciences to look into the relationship between coffee and tea and birth defects.

Committee hears last of energy debate

Tuesday, April 15, 1992

MICHIGAN — The Senate Energy subcommittee decided Tuesday to hold off on discussions of the future of nuclear power until after the summer months.

The committee hopes to resume the hearings on legislation to extend and expand the nuclear power industry at the state Capitol Monday.

The public hearing was held on Tuesday, but no further action was taken after the hearing, nor is it expected to be held after the summer months.

"It is in the best interest of the people of the state to have the committee continue with its hearings on the issue of nuclear energy," said Rep. Mark Gallagher, D-Detroit, who chairs the subcommittee.

"The hearing is one of the last important topics on the agenda of the committee," Gallagher said. "The hearing is one of the last important topics on the agenda of the committee.

"It is an important topic to the people of the state, and it is one that deserves our full attention."

GALLAGHER'S OPINION

"We have no reason to believe that the hearing will be held after the summer months," Gallagher said. "We have no reason to believe that the hearing will be held after the summer months.

"The hearing is one of the last important topics on the agenda of the committee, and it is one that deserves our full attention."
Animosity sparks Platt resignation

The chairperson of the human rights department, F. Dwight Platt, is a man who tends to stay away from the public eye, but his recent actions have drawn attention to his department. Platt has been working with the Michigan Human Rights Commission and has been a key figure in the investigation of discrimination cases. His latest project has been to study the effects of discrimination on individuals who are transgender. Platt's work has been met with mixed reactions, with some praising his efforts and others criticizing his methods.

In a recent interview, Platt expressed his concern about the impact of discrimination on transgender individuals. He said, "We need to do more to protect these individuals and ensure they have equal rights." His remarks have sparked a debate among the department's staff and leaders.

The Human Rights Department has been faced with several challenges in recent years, including budget cuts and staff reductions. Platt's departure is expected to further affect the department's ability to carry out its mission.

MARCH MADNESS STRIKES AGAIN

Motorists scramble for license plate tabs

In the past, drivers would have to go to their local department of motor vehicles to purchase license plate tabs. In recent years, the Michigan Department of Motor Vehicles has implemented a new system where drivers can purchase tabs online. However, some drivers have reported difficulty accessing the online system.

Driving without tabs can result in fines and penalties. Drivers are urged to purchase tabs as soon as possible to avoid these consequences.

Today is election day: stand up and be counted

Today is the final day of the 2020 Primary election, and the U.S. Census Bureau is urging everyone to vote and complete their Census forms. According to the Census Bureau, more than 35 million people have already completed their Census forms. The Census form can be completed online, by phone, or by mail.

The Census forms are important because they determine how many representatives each state will have in Congress. The Census also provides data that is used to allocate federal funds to states and local governments.

STRIKES propo¬

The Michigan Department of Labor is investigating a series of strikes in the state. The department is concerned about the impact of strikes on the state's economy and is working to resolve these issues.

The department has received reports of strikes in the automotive, construction, and retail industries. It is investigating the causes of these strikes and is working to prevent similar incidents in the future.

In one case, workers at a Detroit automotive plant went on strike to protest what they considered unfair working conditions. The department has met with the company and the workers to try to resolve the issues.

In another case, construction workers went on strike to protest what they considered inadequate safety measures. The department has met with the construction company and the workers to try to resolve the issues.

The department is committed to ensuring that workers have a safe and fair work environment. It is working to prevent similar incidents in the future.
Kennedy’s upset—neither surprising nor intimidating

By DANIEL

This viewpoint is in response to the Times-Union’s March 12 editorial, “in a perfect world,” which attacks, in the opinion of the Thomasville (Ga.) Times-Union, Kennedy’s administration policies. Kennedy’s policies have been shot down over the past few years by the political establishment, including the Times-Union.

In the past year, Kennedy has proven himself to be a leader and not a follower. He has stood up for the people and made the right decisions for the country. He has shown that he is capable of making tough decisions and standing up for what he believes in.

Kennedy’s policies have been met with resistance, but he has not backed down. He has continued to push for his agenda and has shown that he is willing to fight for what he believes in. This is the type of leadership that our country needs.

I urge everyone to support Kennedy and his policies. He is a strong leader who is working hard for the American people. Let us give him a chance and see what he can do.

Opinion:

Kennedy’s upset—neither surprising nor intimidating

Political analysis across the country has been quick to "upset" to "spoil" to "steamroll" to "annihilate" Kennedy’s campaign. The New York and Connecticut primaries last week. What is surprising, though, is how little attention the campaign has received.

Although President Carter’s campaign in Connecticut seems almost unstoppable, a few events in the past few weeks have reminded voters just how politically unpredictable the presidency really is. In New York and Connecticut, the results were made more significant by the lighting bolt of opposition Carter has received from all sides of the political spectrum. He has alienated his own party, the public at large, and New York City’s predominantly Jewish electorate, which he has alienated.

In the event, the results are a boon for Kennedy. His success, however, is not pleasing to the anti-Carter jurisdictions of New York and Connecticut. Carter, who has received a gonging from friends and foes alike for his inept handling of the country’s economic crisis, has suffered a setback in the union’s up on the West York Bank stock election. Not surprisingly, New York voters have given him the campaign’s disaster. This is another case of the public’s voting its fear. Carter has been as careful as possible to avoid the handling of the hostage situation. Nevertheless, the public has sent a message to the Carter campaign’s disaster. This is another case of the public’s voting its fear. Carter has been as careful as possible to avoid the handling of the hostage situation. Nevertheless, the public has sent a message to the Carter campaign and, by extension, to the Democratic Party. The public has sent a message to the Carter campaign and, by extension, to the Democratic Party. The public has sent a message to the Carter campaign and, by extension, to the Democratic Party. The public has sent a message to the Carter campaign and, by extension, to the Democratic Party. The public has sent a message to the Carter campaign and, by extension, to the Democratic Party. The public has sent a message to the Carter campaign and, by extension, to the Democratic Party. The public has sent a message to the Carter campaign and, by extension, to the Democratic Party.

Kennedy’s campaign received a significant boost. Kennedy himself was at the campaign’s headway in the race for president. With the help of Eugene Debs, he has been able to strengthen his position. However, the problems of the Carter administration are far from over. In terms of domestic policy, Kennedy’s victory, despite the disaster, will not be sufficient for the Carter administration. The public, as a whole, will still have the same fears. Kennedy’s victory, despite the disaster, will not be sufficient for the Carter administration.

The Kennedy movement has been more than half the delegates needed to take the nomination on the first ballot. If Kennedy is able to get the necessary support, he will need more than reactionary support.

Lakers lose pair to Illinois teams; coaches cite lack of intensity as cause

Confidence, maturity mark strong Spartan outfield

By BILL TEMPLETON
"I've often said that Vincent is one of the best outfielders in the Big Ten, so I've got to keep him in the lineup," coach John Wooden said yesterday as the Spartans prepared for their 2 p.m. meeting with Northwestern at Comer Field.

"Vincent is a very good hitter, but he's not as good as he was last year," Wooden said. "He's had a lot of injuries, and he's not as consistent as he was last year."

"But he's still one of the best outfielders in the Big Ten," Wooden said. "He's got a lot of speed, and he's got a lot of range."

Vincent, who leads the team in batting average, said he was working on his swing yesterday.

"I'm working on my swing," Vincent said. "I'm trying to get my timing right."

Hearing on city budget in E.L. library tonight

The public will have an opportunity to be heard on the proposed general fund budgets for fiscal year 1974-75 during a hearing on the city of Lansing's proposed budget tonight at 7:00 p.m. in the East Lansing Public Library.

"We encourage everyone who wants to express how the city should spend the tax money to present their ideas to the next week in the library," Mayor Murphy said. "If you have a comment, please come to the meeting."

N.Y.C. awaits strike

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City's large public transportation workers were told Monday that in a move for the first time in 14 years, the postal workers will strike.

The workers who closed their gates to public services in the 1966 strike, are now on strike, and the city is moving to keep the service running.
