With songs, stories, jokes and even a little dancing, a street singer from Detroit attracted a crowd of about 1,000 to the annual alumni winter concert at Michigan State University on Sunday afternoon. The annual winter concert is sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Shore Club of MSU.

The crowd, which was made up of alumni and their families, enjoyed the music and stories of the street singer who was featured at the beginning of the concert. The singer, who was dressed in a black suit and white gloves, entertained the crowd with a variety of songs and stories, including stories about his life and experiences on the road. The crowd was captivated by his performance and thoroughly enjoyed the concert.

The MSU alumni winter concert is a popular event that draws thousands of people each year. The concert features a variety of musical acts, including singers, bands, and instrumentalists, and is held in the MSU alumni center. The concert is a great opportunity for alumni to come together and enjoy good music and good company.

In addition to the street singer, the concert also featured a number of other musical acts, including a band from the MSU music department and a group of students who performed a variety of songs and stories. The crowd was treated to a range of musical styles, from traditional to contemporary, and everyone had a great time.

The MSU alumni winter concert is a great way to celebrate the spirit of MSU and the achievements of its alumni. The concert is a time to come together and enjoy good music and good company, and it is a testament to the strength and spirit of the MSU community.

More refugees flee Cuba

SAN JUAN, Cuba—More than 400 refugees arriving from the Peruvian Embassy in Havana Thursday started negotiations with President Fidel Castro's ministry. They are willing to stay at least temporarily in Cuba to avoid being returned.

Two planes brought 257 refugees during the second day of an airlift from the embassy. Officials at the Havana airport said 168 refugees were waiting to board the airlift.

The departure of the refugees and children, hailed as a victory, was set and timed so they would fly out of Havana on May 8, the anniversary of the Cuban revolution.

Auto worker unemployment up

DETROIT—A survey of 200,000 auto workers by the United Auto Workers proved that auto unemployment is getting worse, not better. The survey found that about 15 percent of workers were out of work and had been out for longer than two weeks, with more than 50 percent of them out for more than 10 weeks.

Personal income up in March

WASHINGTON—Inflation caused personal income to rise in March, but the rate of inflation has not been high enough to support a sharp increase in consumer spending. The Commerce Department reported Thursday it will report labor.

The Commerce Department said consumer spending increased during March by 6.5 percent, despite another steep drop in auto purchases.

Carter acknowledges recession

WASHINGTON—President Carter and Thursday the recession continues "proudly we are helping to turn it around," for many Americans.

As the recession continues, the Administration acknowledged Thursday it would take time to develop plans to deal with the problem. Carter said he would take time to develop plans to deal with the problem.

Turkish ambassador shot

ANKARA—A Turkish newspaper reported that the ambassador to the United States was shot in the leg by a civilian in a car outside his residence while he was playing tennis.

The ambassador was reportedly playing tennis at a nearby club when the shooting occurred.

Gov. Milliken traveling to Japan to lure auto makers to Michigan

In May Felton
State News Staff Writer

Gov. William G. Milliken plans to travel to Japan in May to show the state's industrial leaders its growth potential. Milliken will meet, off the record, with key automotive industry manufacturers there and lobby them to locate their factories in Michigan. If Milliken is successful it could mean jobs for thousands of Michigan residents.

Opinion

U.S. allies bark, but will they bite?

Ideally, President Carter would not have to twist an arm or employ support of economic sanctions against Iran. Ideally, the nations to whom we owe no more militarily and economically would jump on the bandwagon.

Yet they hesitate, leaving us to wonder why European nations did impose sanctions on Zimbabwe-Rhodesia, a less bellicose ranoc in 1965. Are allied demands that the hostages be released mere rhetoric? American allies are among the first in the list of the Iranian victims of the U.S. Embassy's violation of international law. Their demonstrations of both the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the hostage crisis were scaled.

So why are they balking now that the Great Economic Crisis has struck them too? The oil embargo is not the first economic crisis that the European nations have had to face. They have had to face economic crises probably more severe than the one they are now suffering. I wonder whether the actions of the oil embargo would affect those nations who have suffered economic crises in the past.

All our allies could, of course, also be in the hostage crisis as our allies. With some modifications, their policies would probably support the United States.

The Middle East is not the only region of the world where the economic crisis has been felt. The European nations, with their much more developed economy, are more dependent on trade with Iran than ours. They have lost millions of dollars in the oil embargo.

The United States has not been balking. Nor is it likely that we are asking our allies to boycott Iranian oil over 10 percent of its import.

First they stopped giving out dinnners sets as gifts. Then they make you wipe your own windows at the gas pumps. Now America's society of infinite wants is feeling even further setback — a point in the Saturday mail service.

It seems that it comes in simple economics, budget cuts fail to bring much of an impact on the mail service than rain, snow, or number of lights. The U.S. House Budget Committee last week put the postal service on the block last week, cutting appropriations in 1980 by $350 million, beginning Oct. 1. That means that Americans in most parts of the country will probably have one day per week to venture out from their doors in search of that check that is "in the mail."

Nevertheless, Saturday mail has become a luxury taken for grant that is now 50% of the same food as the standard postage stamps at the supermarket. The purchase of a five-day delivery service is also the same food as the standard postage stamps at the supermarket. The purchase of a five-day delivery service is also practical.

Said the man who was shopping in the supermarket, "I'm afraid that the five-day delivery service is also practical." Said the man who was shopping in the supermarket, "I'm afraid that the five-day delivery service is also practical." But this is not about the price of the service, but about the convenience of the service. The convenience is also the same food as the standard postage stamps at the supermarket. The purchase of a five-day delivery service is also practical.

The purchase of a five-day delivery service is also practical.

When I looked at the East Lansing Police, saw that it was a private agreement, and that they had nothing to it. Thanks.

I'm thinking this as a matter of convenience.

It's just like the United States Post Office.

That's all fine and good you say, but the time you want to get your mail is not the time you have to leave for the office. That's all fine and good you say, but the time you want to get your mail is not the time you have to leave for the office.

The government of the United States is the Postal Service.

The government of the United States is the Postal Service. But it is not the government of the United States.

Health care for women target of big business

By Lidia Dill

Hillside, N.J. — Two men in suits were talking in the doorway of the small wooden house that sits on a dirt road, across from the edge of the town. They were discussing women's health care and the need for more doctors in the area.

"We need more doctors," one of the men said. "Women are not being served well enough."

The other man agreed. "They are the ones who need us most."}

Panel talks worker rights

By Don D'Amelio

New York — Workers in the private sector are not being served well enough, according to panelists at a conference held earlier this year.

"We need to focus on the workers," one panelist said. "They are the ones who need us most."
Woody’s spirit hurts ‘Sam’

By MARY WYERS

The Erie🔻olidays🔻orums Company wouldn’t have a greater gift to offer than the one they’re offering Sunday: Allen Fields, the Acting Artistic Director of Woody Allen’s Saul Simon. Fields, who has been with the company for 30 years, is set to receive the Legacy Award at the company’s annual gala, which is set for Thursday night. Fields will receive the award for his contributions to the Erie🔻olidays🔻orums Company, which he founded in 1989. Fields has been involved with the company since its inception, serving as its executive director and later as its artistic director. The award is a testament to Fields’ dedication to the company and his commitment to bringing the best of theater to Erie. Fields has been a leader in the local arts community for over three decades, and he has been a driving force behind the success of the company. His leadership has helped to make the Erie🔻olidays🔻orums Company one of the most successful organizations in the region, and his contributions have been instrumental in shaping the company’s success. The Legacy Award is a special recognition for Fields, and it is a fitting tribute to his contributions to the Erie arts community. Fields is a true example of what can be achieved through dedication, hard work, and a commitment to excellence. The Erie🔻olidays🔻orums Company is proud to honor Fields with this award, and we look forward to continuing to work with him in the future. For more information about the Legacy Award or the company, please contact the Erie🔻olidays🔻orums Company at (412) 451-1860 or visit their website at erieholiday.org.
THIS WEEKEND

CONCERT DEPT: This weekend in East Lansing's first prime time concert event, members of the Michigan Orchestra will perform Sunday night at 8 in the rather hands-off style of Europe." The concert began with a live solo, which led into the live version of "Masterjambalaya," which was performed at the end of the show. The audience was enthusiastic, and the night ended with a heartfelt rendition of "I Love You."

Laxers look for win

Stuck with a Montana team that has enjoyed a great deal of success in recent years, MSU women's lacrosse is looking for - and needs - a win this weekend. MSU is at home this weekend versus South Dakota State, with a 2-1 record this season, and Montana, with a 7-0 record.

"There are a lot of unknowns, but we expect to be competitive," said head coach Camilla Lough,

COGS confirms funds for program

The Council of Graduate Student Officers (COGS) has confirmed that funds are available for a new program. The program, titled "The Future of Our Campus," is designed to provide support for graduate students in the arts and humanities.

The program will include a series of workshops and events that will focus on topics such as creative writing, visual arts, and performance arts. The workshops will be led by local and national experts, and will provide opportunities for students to interact with professionals in the field.

COGS has also secured funding for a scholarship program that will provide financial support to graduate students in their second year of study. The scholarship will be awarded to students who have demonstrated academic excellence and are passionate about their field of study.

The program and scholarship are part of COGS' ongoing efforts to support graduate students and promote the arts and humanities on campus.

African festival begins today

A great dimension. East African culture will be brought to Lansing as part of the African Cultural Festival.

The Festive of African Traditions, fled to Lansing this weekend by the African Film and Cultural Foundation, will be held at the University of Michigan, 500 N. University Rd. The festival will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The festival will feature a variety of cultural activities, including music, dance, food, and crafts.

The festival is open to the public and admission is free.

Jewish Student Appeal contributes to charity time, money, goodwill

Though they are comparatively small, there are many Jewish projects serving Jewish students. The Jewish Student Appeal is a small group of Jewish students at MSU, established in the fall of 1972, with the purpose of serving the need of the Jewish community.

The Jewish Student Appeal is a group of Jewish students who meet each week to plan and carry out projects.

This Is What The State News thinks about the Eight-a-Day Show

‘Eight-a-Day’ policy relaxed

By ERIK NELSON

Now that the ‘Eight-a-Day’ policy has been relaxed, students and faculty have different opinions on the policy change.

The policy change was announced by President Gary L. Peters on April 7. Peters said that the university will now offer eight classes per day instead of four.

The policy change was made to accommodate the growing number of students at the university. Peters said that the university needs to be able to offer more classes to accommodate the number of students.

“With the growing number of students, we need to offer more classes to accommodate their needs,” Peters said.

Some students are happy with the policy change.

“I think the policy change is a good thing,” said junior psychology major, John Smith. “It will give us more opportunities to take the classes we need.”

However, some faculty members are not as happy with the policy change.

“I don’t think the policy change is a good thing,” said associate professor of history, Jane Doe. “I think we should have more time to teach each class.”

The policy change is expected to take effect in the fall of 2023.
Womens health care

1. Perhaps the best time to go to the doctor is when you have a headache, because the doctor will not tell you what to do. He or she will instead tell you that you have a headache and prescribe a medication to control it. This is where the system breaks down.

2. A general rule is that if you have a headache, you should go to the doctor. This will give the doctor a chance to check you out and recommend a treatment plan.

...and politicians who support social legislation then we do so," he said.

Ferency said it is important to organize groups of workers to support social issues, but added that the American system is a poor job organization.

"The purpose of the union is to ensure we get the corporation. I don't think they're going to give up."

Ferency added that the union should give a little in return, because it is a family that is dependent on us. He also added that the union will have to look at the economy and the labor force before it can answer the needs of the people.

"The private right has to be answered to the human right," Ferency said.
