Black leader shot by sniper

WASHINGTON - The House voted with President Carter and Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. Thursday night to reject a $33.3 billion fiscal 1981 budget that would boost taxes, increase in U.S. history.

The 292-129 vote, however, failed to scuttle the spending plan back to a House-Senate conference, essentially with others in the Senate out to work on a new compromise.

House Majority Leader Robert W. Byrd, D-W.Va., in an effort to avert a government shutdown by the two bodies, indicated the Democratic leadership with O'Neill and Carter opposed to the budget proposals because the programs to pay for higher defense salaries.

Military sales to China open

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a historic move, the Carter administration Thursday cleared the way for the first sales of military-related equipment and technology to the communist government of China.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown made the announcement in a congratulatory message to Chinese Vice Premier Zhao Linglai. The decision was made after a high-level negotiating team, approved by the government, reviewed shipments of new defense equipment and technology.

Brown said Thursday that China has agreed to purchase the new equipment and technology. However, specific details were not provided.

The sale of military equipment is a significant step toward improved relations between the United States and China.

Korean protests continue

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korean troops have sealed off a northern city where anti-government demonstrations were reported continuing Tuesday.

The authorities said they were stepping up security measures in the city of Kaesong, which is just a few miles from the Demilitarized Zone that separates North Korea from South Korea.

The authorities said they were concerned about the possibility of armed conflict between the two Koreas.

Doctors charged in premature births

AIDS patients face financial difficulties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors have been charged with performing unnecessary and harmful procedures on premature infants, according to a report released Thursday.

The report, which was released by the American Academy of Pediatrics, found that doctors have been performing procedures on premature infants that are not medically necessary, causing harm to the infants.

Doctors have been accused of performing these procedures to meet the financial needs of hospitals and doctors.

The report calls for more regulation of medical procedures to protect the rights and safety of premature infants.

Nuclear problems typical

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission's report on the problems at the Korean Nuclear Power Plant is expected to be released later this week.

The report, which was released by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, found that the power plant had problems with safety and equipment.

The report calls for improvements to be made to the plant to ensure the safety of the workers and the public.

Hua jabs at U.S.S.R.

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese Premier Hua Guofeng, in a speech here Thursday, said the Soviet Union was a threat to world peace and that the United States was not.

Hua said the United States was not prepared to meet the challenge of the Soviet Union and that the United States was not prepared to meet the challenge of the Soviet Union.

Hua also warned that the United States was not prepared to meet the challenge of the Soviet Union and that the United States was not prepared to meet the challenge of the Soviet Union.

The speech was made as part of a visit by Hua to Japan, where he is expected to meet with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.

Residency rule pulled by council

By MATT PERES
State News Staff Writer
A residency requirement for Law and Music was pulled from the Board of Trustees' May 22 agenda.

The requirement, which would have allowed law students from the five-state region to receive favorable treatment, was introduced to help fund scholarships at the university.

"The requirement that was in place before has not been supported by our students," said Board Chairperson Teri Atkinson. "We are looking for a way to fund scholarships, and this requirement was not a viable option."
OPINION

Change for change's sake?

Change threatens the stability of any regime, but not all kinds of change are created equal. This is the case with the recent Senate resolution that permits the first independent, alumni association, the Association of the University of Texas (A.U.T.), to be formed. The resolution, which was passed with overwhelming support from both faculty and students, represents a significant change in the way the university is governed.

The university, like any large institution, has its own unique set of problems and challenges. One of the most pressing issues facing the university is the lack of accountability and transparency in the way it is run. The A.U.T. is a step in the right direction towards increasing accountability and transparency, and we should support it.

The A.U.T. is not a revolutionary group seeking to overthrow the university, but rather a group of alumni who are concerned about the direction the university is taking. They are seeking to bring about change in a constructive and responsible way.

We believe that the A.U.T. is a positive development for the university, and we encourage all alumni to support it. Together, we can work towards a more accountable and transparent university.

The A.U.T. is an important step towards change, and we should be supportive of it. Change can be for the better, and the A.U.T. is a great example of change for change's sake.

JUMP! The Ultimate High

It's the Ultimate — spelled with a capital "U".

To hear members of the MSU Parachuting Club tell about The Experience, there's nothing like it. And when perfect weather prevails, members of the club jump all day and fall.

Free falling from 8,000 feet above hard ground is something that simply must be experienced, although some people are willing to take a free faller's word for it, thank you.

What actually goes through the mind of a person falling from that height isn't certain. It's perfectly clear, however, that cloudless skies and moderate winds keep them jumping and falling. And when they're on the ground, they immediately wait for the next available spot in a plane to do it again.

It is the thrill of a successful jump (perhaps because the agony of defeat isn't very pleasant) that keeps parachuters jumping.

Some drop out of the club after the first time. Sometimes it's because of the cost — $55 for training and one jump with the price decreasing after that. Other times future free fallers decide that the Almighty would have given them wings if they were supposed to fly. Who are they to argue?

On the sixth jump, one is usually considered experienced enough to attempt a free fall. If all goes right, it's time to try again. And again.

Some MSU Parachuting Club members have jumped more than 100 times. And they say they'll continue jumping.

Beginners are trained by certified, qualified members of the United States Parachuting Association. The training lasts from four to six hours and is an extensive program which teaches how to fly the ground properly, use an emergency chute and jump out of the plane.

Parachuters say they aren't crazy people who go off half-cocked and kill themselves. Their sport is safe and sound, they insist, just like they are. And all their training pays big dividends when they leap out of the plane for about three minutes of the flying before they touch down. Then they're off again.

Pleasing themselves with the Ultimate High.

The trip down to the ground lasts approximately three minutes, and is mostly over farmlands and rural areas. After the landing, Kim Horvath of East Lansing above right expresses her joy over the experience of a successful jump as she heads back to the hangar.

Lansing-area arts groups plan weekend extravaganza

"Summing up," as arts extravaganza-laden Lansing area arts groups will be held today through Sunday at the various locations in downtown Lansing. The fest will coincide with the dawn of Arts Week, which the Lansing Board of Controls has sponsored to encompass the names of many MOSAIC programs.

The two shows will be the Lansing sidewalk show outside the Capitol Theatre. The City Hall show will open with a reception from 9 to 10:30 featuring hand-drawn comics by the Rumble-Western Quartet. The art shows will spotlight everything from old masters to Sunday comics, photos, paintings, needlework, reading and ceramics. Those participating will have the opportunity to view the varied works of artists from across the state.

The festival will feature interactive exhibits with music and dance as well as reading, writing, and crafts. Among the children's events will be an exhibit by the Lansing Public Library featuring works by handicapped children.

The Lansing show will also be held at the Washington Mall with other painted cards of the Capitol and Lansing area attractions. In addition to the history of Lansing will also be held at the Michigan Historical museum.

Adding to the fest is the Lansing show will be sponsored by the Lansing branch of the Michigan Federation of Women's Club. The admission to the festival is free and the barrier-free is accessible.

Women change work force

The end of the '60s brought about changes in many women's lives, exemplified by many women than ever occupying the labor force, a recently published book has shown.

"The Female Human Being in the '80s," is authored by Free Murray of Information Services and Michael Einbrode, assistant dean of Lifelong Education programs.

Also, report Murray and Einbrode, the number of women enrolled at MSU has risen from 1960 to 1970. It has been seen by Einbrode, "that more and more women are seeking education at the college level..."

The book, published by MOSL Lifelong Education Programs, is a compilation of the individual women entering the work force at this time.

Women heads of families now number 4,114,000 nationwide, with an average annual income of $9,300, according to a survey of the low-pay, women's income.

"Statistics has cast women in a service role for quite a long time, especially women who are of low status," Einbrode said. "There is some good evidence that these occupations pay less and they are not paid more.

House passes a bill on abuse

A bill expanding the scope of a law allowing women to obtain child support orders based on their own or another's whereabouts in the state was approved by the House of Representatives Thursday.

Donald Business, D-Lansing, and other lawmakers, would broaden the protection of women by allowing women to seek support of the bill on behalf of their own or another's whereabouts in the state. The bill would allow the court to order the child support of the state children.

The new legislation includes a clause expressing that} project together. Any truth to that?

LB: Not that I know of. I don't really know, now a very conscious thing to do, it seems to me. It was done 10 years ago and I always thought it was kind of funny, you know. I think it was a very conscious thing to do. I think it was just making a kind of thing you're doing with the Velvet Underground.

LR: Do you think it's true? I'm glad someone is making something, you know. I heard it was.

LR: So your group is Taking Heads.

LB: Yes. It's a good name.

LR: Do you get the impression that rock 'n roll is making another comeback?

LB: Oh, I really hope so. Yeah, I'm sure that does... is it really...?

LR: Which leads me to a big question. I've always wanted to know, way back in '74, when Miami Vice, you know, turned rock 'n roll into, I mean, it wasn't good down. It was just bad. It's not the type of image was ever done. I don't hear.

LR: Where do you foresee the future is?

LB: Basically, I'm saying he's the same. Very much like what I said last week, I'm in a movie that's a lot more interesting to me.

LR: Thank you.

LB: Paul Simon just made his first movie.

LR: No, I wouldn't want to be in a movie playing myself, God, as who thought I'd play a record company producer. The bad guy.

LR: Did you play the heavenly.

LB: Oh, I heard it. Acting is a lot of fun. Making a movie isn't much fun, though, because you spend most of your time doing what you really don't want to do. But that's the way it is. You've got to do the things you're told to do. And if you're not doing it, it's going to cost you a lot of money.

Robinson takes 4 baseball awards

Josephine Kobs was in the spotlight all Tuesday night at the Pistons' annual Spring训练 Night at the Palamara Recreation Center. Kobs, a senior, was named the Most Outstanding Player of the Night, having the highest batting average on the squad this spring (290), the Freshmen Pitcher of the Year, and was named a co-captain of the 1980 team along with senior first baseman Kirk Johnson, the Tigers' leading hitter (.314), and senior right-hander Adrian Nardella, who received the Honorary Pitcher Award.

Two other pitching award went to Freshmen pitcher Tony Kobs, who won the Fast Pitch Award for being the leading pitcher on the team (6-1, 3 saves, 14 strikeouts in 41 innings), and to senior right-hander Greg Nardella, who received the Honorary Pitcher Award.

CROSSROADS Pitching the A1 division Bobby Anderson was co-captain with the Ingham County Intermediate School and the State Coaches Association's Board of the Year. Anderson was the hitting average leader for the Tigers (.399), the High School of the Year.

The Spartans basketball team walked off with Big Ten and NCAA tournament hardware this season, capping a remarkable campaign. The Spartans' success was particularly notable as they finished with a 26-8 overall record, including a 10-8 conference mark, and advanced to the NCAA championship game in just their third season as a member of the Big Ten Conference.

The Spartans' season was marked by several key moments, including a victory over the top-ranked team in the Big Ten, the Michigan Wolverines. The team's performance was highlighted by their strong defense, which allowed them to outscore their opponents by an average of 11 points per game. Coach Cassius Crispin's leadership was also a key factor in the team's success, as he guided the Spartans to their first NCAA tournament appearance.

The Spartans' success was also reflected in the team's individual performances. Junior guard Ernie Davis was named the Big Ten Player of the Year, and senior center George McPeek was named to the All-Big Ten team. The team also benefited from the contributions of several other players, including sophomore guard Korea Young, who provided key minutes off the bench.

The Spartans' success was not limited to the basketball court. Off the court, the team's positive influence extended to the community, with several players involved in community service and outreach programs. The team's success also helped to raise awareness for important issues, such as mental health and academic excellence.

Overall, the 2018-2019 season was a historic one for the Spartans, marking a significant step forward for the program. With a strong foundation in place, the team is poised to continue its success in the years to come.
LOVE CANAL

Army dumped wastes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. military dumped radioactive wastes, sewer gas and other highly toxic chemicals at Love Canal and other sites near Niagara Falls in the early 1960s, state investigators said Thursday.

A preliminary report by a state Assembly task force said the military supervised operations secreted before the dumping to the Reader Chemical & Phosphate Corp. of the current radio-chemical crisis among the nearly 1,300 Love Canal families. The report said new studies showed the area was not as clean as had been believed, and much of the chemicals were already known to have been dumped in the area, although not where they had been as well. The investigators said the military used Love Canal to dump nuclear wastes, but the report said the military also used the canal as a sewage treatment facility.

Army sites in neighborhoods where residents, unlike the Love Canal residents, have not yet been offered health studies.

The task force said that the military supervised the dumping partly because the United States armed World War II. The military was also involved in the cleanup of nuclear weapons sites and other radioactive wastes that were left over from the Manhattan Project, which led to development of the atomic bomb.

Minority enrollment probed

A government's special task force will probe a public service hearing to discuss minority student enrollments in state colleges and universities at 11 a.m. Monday in the Union Ballroom.

The task force on Minority Enrollments was created by Gov. William D. Rockefeller and the state Board of Education to probe the status of minority, women's and handicapped enrollments.

Although minority enrollments at non-majority colleges are 2 percent during that time, the minority enrollment in four-year institutions and private colleges dropped by more than 9 percent, the report said.

Task force Chairman Jeanne Rockwell, director of the state budget office, will seek from the 21-member task force how states can bring up the number of minorities among students at colleges and universities and efforts being made by those schools to increase their minority enrollments.

FOR USED TEXTBOOKS!

How The MSU Bookstore Used Book Buyback Works

It's almost here! The MSU Bookstore's annual textbook buyback list will be made on June 2. This is the last chance to entice to the Bookstore for the Bookbuy up to 4 textbooks will be available! No information will be available for used textbooks.

The open buyback period will include 9:00 am to 5:00 pm June 4 through June 6.

Hours are from 8:00 am to 5:30 pm June 2 through June 6.

Pulled from the textbook repositories submitted by the faculty for Summer and Fall terms. The buyback list contains most of the books that will be used in the course, including those that you currently own.

Our five locations in the larger Bookstore in the Library.

Although the Bookstore will do its best to purchase books from students over the years, all used books are purchased on a cash payment during the month. This is the time when you can receive the information about which books are required, which you can receive and which you cannot receive.

What is the highest price? This list is not final. We have a $50 percent for any book bought at the Bookstore.

Because we are not able to include all textbooks in the list, we have included a list of the titles that will be purchased at the Bookstore.

The title of the book purchased by the Bookstore is the title of the book to be purchased by the student.

Even if you purchased it, or at the list price, increased since you bought it, or at any current book price, usually not at the last retail price or at the cost of the used book.

If you purchased it, or at the list price, increased since you bought it, or at any current book price, usually not at the last retail price or at the cost of the used book.
