

VIOLA DANA went under the name of Flugrath when she was with Edison. But, deciding that the name was too hard to remember, she made a change. Miss Dana, who is only 19 now, has been on the stage since the mature age of 11. She will soon appear in a picture entitled "Blue Jeans."

ETHEL BARRYMORE gave up the stage for the screen principally because by so doing she might spend more time with her children. In private life she is Mrs. Russell Colt, and a most devoted mother. Her last picture, by the way, is called "The Eternal Mother."

ALLA NAZIMOVA was born in Talta, Crimea, Russia, educated in Geneva and the St. Petersburg convent, Odessa. Her departure from stage to screen was the talk of the day, and in her first picture, "War Brides," she created considerable sensation.

EDITH STOREY, for long affiliated with Vitagraph—in fact always affiliated with Vitagraph until her recent change to Metro guidance—is an expert horsewoman and automobilist. Her first picture for the new company will be "The Legion of Death."
