ON THE EVE OF THE NAVAL CONFERENCE, which convenes in London Tuesday, Premier MacDonald of Britain and his family sought relaxation from the pressure of official and social affairs by visiting their old Scottish home at Lossiemouth. Left to right are Joan, the prime minister, Malcolm, Shona, and Isabel. (Photograph from Associated Press)

AMERICA’S DELEGATES to the five-power plenary on the limitation of naval armament, pictured at the White House after their final conference with President Hoover. Left to right are Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, Senator David A. Reed, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, President Hoover, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, and Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. Ambassadors Charles G. Dawes and Hugh S. Gibson are the other two delegates. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

WINTER WARBIRDS—Pilots of some of the twenty-two planes which participated in the recent centennial cruise of the army's aircrft patrol from Selfridge Field, Mich., to Spokane, Wash. Mrs. Ralph Royce, in command of the flight, is fourth from the left in the rear row. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

PARLEY-BOUND — A “big four” of France en route to The Hague for the second conference on the Young plan for reparations, which continued sessions throughout last week. Left to right: Premier Tardieu; Henri Chevon, minister of finance; Aristide Briand, foreign minister; Louis Louchet, minister of labor. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

A SMILING CALVIN COOLIDGE, insurance man, enjoyed a break of summer in winter when he visited St. Petersburg, Fla., and addressed the annual meeting of the company of which he is a director. Between the former President and Mrs. Coolidge is Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the company. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

YOUNG HAPSBURG EXILES, Princess Sarolta and Princess Elisabeth, have taken up domestic science at a tender age in Belgium, where they now live with their mother, former Empress Zita. Elsa moved to Belgium with her family recently in order that her son, Otto, educated to the throne of Hungary, might enter the University of Louvain. (Photograph from International)

CELEBRATING FREDERICK A. STOCK’S SILVER ANNIVERSARY as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, prominent Chicagoans gathered at the Palmer House last Sunday evening for the memorial dinner sponsored by the Bohemian club. Left to right: Claire Dua (Mrs. Charles H. Swift), Mr. Stock, Harber Wither, spoon, and Mrs. Stock. (Photograph from Chicago Tribune)

THREE REASONS why skiing is popular, among others, are Norma Peterson, Dickie Ranta, and Grace Petersen, members of the Norge Ski club. The club will hold its annual tournament at the Cary slide today. (Photograph from Chicago Tribune)

BEST OF ALL, for his age, John D. Rockefeller indulging in his daily round of golf at Ormond Beach, Fla., the winter setting of his perennial activities. He is now well on the way to 91, and has his heart set on turning the century. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)