

"Cheat! Gold-digger! Fraud! This time you're going to pay"

RICARDO DANE flung the words scornfully at the lovely Filomena.

"You've let me give you presents and buy you things—clothes—that dress you're wearing—this apartment. You led me to believe . . ."

If a fascinating woman deceives a man, is he entitled to whatever revenge he can get?

Ricardo Dane thought so. Outraged, he resolved to give her a taste of her own medicine. She started the game—now let her pay the piper! . . . But Ricardo reckoned without one important thing when he mapped out his campaign of revenge.

Read this thrilling story of a terrific

CLARA SHARPE HOUGH, author of "The Charming Cheat," has been writing fiction since she was a junior at Mills College, California, from which she was graduated in 1916. She received the degree of bachelor of literature in journalism from Columbia University two years later, and since then has had a varied experience in newspaper work. Some of her best known novels are "Leif the Lucky," "Not for Publication," and "The Lone Star of Carbajal."

struggle between two determined young moderns . . . of a man who was too young to overlook anything . . . and of a girl who acquired wisdom in a strange manner.

THE CHARMING CHEAT

BY CLARA SHARPE HOUGH—STARTING IN THE TRIBUNE TOMORROW