

I am Ovaltine

The Food Knight

Ready to Fight for You

I fight the battles of the sick.

I protect the well.

I fight for those who are convalescing after illness or operation.

I protect and fight for young children who are under-nourished and who in the early years of growth are backward and fail to keep pace with their brothers and sisters.

I fight for young mothers and through them the young children suckling at the breast.

I fight for old age by bringing food to the system jaded by long use.

I give rest to those who cannot sleep.

I give comfort to the nervous and overwrought, by restoring to normal action the rundown brain and nerve cells of the body.

I fight for those addicted to the use of food drugs which stimulate but do not feed. By food drugs I mean such beverages as tea or coffee, which contain compounds harmful to the human system.

I preside in the home, at the meal table and assist the processes of nutrition at breakfast, dinner and supper.

If you keep me always in your home, your health will be protected and you will possess the means of fighting your sickness.

I Do All These Things Because

I am of the soil where the bricks and mortar of sturdy human life are made.

I come from the places where natural health reigns supreme, out in the open where the sun shines, the wind blows and the rain beats down upon the earth.

I come from the barley field where the golden grain ripens, and from the farm where the cattle graze in peace.

Ripe barley malt, rich creamy milk, eggs and cocoa give me my strength, my armor and my sword.

That I Have Done These Things Is Shown by

My successes in Europe and other parts of the world where I am well known in the home and the hospital—

Where many an eminent physician has, without solicitation, praised my virtues—

Where Red Cross organizations have repeatedly called upon me for assistance—

And where many a wounded soldier has fought the battle of life and death successfully with my help.

Made of Malt Extract, Milk, Eggs and Cocoa
