All Nazi Germany Burdened by Rules and Regulations

Story of How an Average Family There Lives

Regimentation!

How the people of Nazi Germany are governed by many rules is well illustrated in the case of Herr Lind's family. The man is an out-and-out Nazi, a party member, and he has his ideas of right and wrong. He is not only a member of the Nazi party, but he is also a member of the SA, the paramilitary wing of the party. He is a member of the SS, the security service, and he is a member of the Volksgemeinde, the local community council.

The man is a farmer, and he has a large family. He has three children, two boys and one girl. The oldest boy is fifteen years old, and he is in school. The middle boy is twelve years old, and he is also in school. The girl is ten years old, and she is in school, too.

The man is very strict with his children. He makes them get up at six o'clock in the morning, and he makes them go to bed at nine o'clock at night. He makes them wear their uniforms, and he makes them say their prayers. He makes them learn their lessons, and he makes them do their chores.

The man is very proud of his family. He is very pleased with his children. He is very pleased with his wife. He is a very good man, and he is a very good father.

First Hand Observations in Hitler's Capital

Insolence!

German girls under the Nazi régime are not free to dress or behave as they please. The younger generation has been taught to obey the established order, and it has been taught to respect authority. It has been taught to be obedient, and it has been taught to be humble.

The older generation is still in power, and it is still very strong. It is still very influential. It is still very powerful. It is still very respected. It is still very feared.

The younger generation is still very weak. It is still very young. It is still very inexperienced. It is still very ignorant. It is still very foolish.

The younger generation is still very much in the hands of the older generation. It is still very much under the control of the older generation. It is still very much at the mercy of the older generation.

The younger generation is still very much in the hands of the older generation. It is still very much under the control of the older generation. It is still very much at the mercy of the older generation.
