WHERE 'WE WILL' THERE'S A WAY -Chicago's New Proverb.

A great and splendid hall, blazing with color. A high, flat ceiling, more closely ribbed than a catfish, each beam painted with cryptic designs in crimson, blue, gold, and black. The ceiling evidently started out to be Egyptian in design, then changed its mind and adopted the Alaskan totem pole style of decoration. Hanging from the ceiling, eight huge, bulbous silver chandeliers, each circled by forty fiery lamps. On three sides walls paneled half way up with carved golden oak. Above the panels great mural paintings, presenting in symbolic form and in deep blue and red and purple figures the ideals of "Com-"Industry," "Transportation," and all the other gods which a great modern city worships.

At one of the three sides a high throne mounted by half a dozen steps, with much gilded carving of eagles on the wall above it. Recessed back from the fourth side of the hall, an upper and a lower gallery for the proletariat, each carefully arranged so that only the people in the front rows of seats can see anything.

Location, on the second floor of the city hall, on the inside, a magnificent example of how to spend a huge amount of public money on the garish decoration of a great hall, into which no light, sunshine, or fresh air can ever penetrate, except such as filters down through the interior court behind the public galleries.

"The honorable, the city council, will please come to order."

Sixty-five of the seventy seats are filled, the aldermen facing the mayor's throne. A quick glance about the half circle gives a prevailing impression of round, full faces, topped by thickets of black hair. The color note is a deep, rich pink. Broad shouldered, red faced, aggressive youth is in the majority.

In the front row, at the left of the circle and nearest the high seat of authority, are twin spots of white, the close cropped and bristling heads of "Hink" and "The Bath," vetera- aldermen from the First, exchanging confidences like two CHURCHILL'S KIN IN AIR TRIP. old gray badgers.

ONE of the honorable gentlemen from the Second has turned his back on the mayor, swung his chair round so that he may sit on his shoulder blades, with his elevated feet supported by the top of the desk behind him. From thirty seats rise thin columns of tobacco smoke. A room or leaning over to consult in a conversational tone with their colleagues.

So far as confusion, noise, and lack of attention is concerned, it is a praiseworthy imitation of the house of representatives at Washington while an important debate is in progress.

The two public galleries are crowded by eager and excited women, sitting on the edges of their chairs, leaning forward, anxious not to miss a word of the pro-

POLITICAL STORM FOLLOWS TRAGEDY; FRANCE AROUSED

Chamber of Deputies Reopens Rochette Scandal After Bitter Debate by Members.

POLICE CHARGE CROWDS

Royalist Orators Swarm Into Streets and Raise Cry of "Down with Republic."

SLAYER PRAISED BY OFFICIAL

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.] PARIS, March 17 .- Not since the Dreyfus affair has any event so stirred the French people as the shooting of Gaston Calmette editor of Figaro, by Mme. Caillaux, the wife of the minister of finance.

The chamber of deputies was forced to reopen the Rochette inquiry after a debate in which Calmette was described on one side as a martyr to patriotism and on the other as a person who deserved death in the manner n which it came to him.

The Royalists have seized the incident to raise the cry of "Down with the republic," and their street meetings today caused numerous clashes between the mobs and police. Many heads were cracked and a rge number of persons were arrested.

M. Caillaux, broken in spirit, resigned from nis post today, and the cabinet was subected to several changes. The resignation of Ernest Monis, minister of marine, and M Fabre, public prosecutor, and even the whole cabinet, is rumored, but cannot be confirmed Deputy Alludes to Slaying. The scene in the chamber of deputies was the most exciting in many years, M. Dela haye, speaking upon his resolution inviting the government to investigate the Rochette ffair, particularly with regard to what in ficences resulted in the postponement of his trial and his consequent escape to Mexico alluded to the killing of M. Calmette. Now he is gone," M. Delahaye said,

' his memory must be defended." M. Trouin, interrupting, called out: "This M. Delahaye replied:

"We will defend a hero, who, doing his duty, has been assassinated. It has been said that M. Calmette intended to publish private letters--' A voice from the Socialist left-"That is

M. Delahaye-" I say that is false. M. Calmette declared to me that he had no intention of publishing private letters."

Congratulates Slaver of Editor. During the day Deputy Thalamas of Versailles circulated in the lobbies of the chamber a copy of a letter he had sent to Mme. Caillaux congratulating her on killing M Calmette. The language of the letter was extremely violent against what he termed 'the filthy press." He condoned the killing and ended his letter with "bravo!"

M. Delahaye read this letter to the members of the chamber amid indignant exclamations from the Center and the Conservative Right. The debate became more and more stormy. M. Delahaye concluded with a virulent attack on the government.

Formerly," he exclaimed, "ministers justly accused blew out their brains. Now adays they send their wives to kill those who stand in their path!'

Denies Knowledge of Letter. The existence of what is known as the 'Fabre letter" regarding the Rochette case was vehemently denied by various deputies and as vehemently affirmed by others. M. Monis, minister of marine, who was in the chamber, was called upon to explain his position. He reluctantly arose and declared he had no knowledge of the letter.

Finally M. Rarthau, amid a tremendous uproar, mounted the tribunal, and read the original letter, of which M. Calmette had a copy. The letter set forth in the plainest terms that the strongest pressure had been exerted by M. Monis, then premier, on M. Fabre, the public prosecutor, to postpone the Rochette trial for six months.

M. Fabre, shocked at such an order, at first resisted it, but finally gave in, declaring that t was "the greatest humiliation" of his

Explains Date of Letter. M. Barthou explained that the letter was written to M. Briand when he was minister of justice, at his special request. He passed n to his successor, M. Barthou M. Monis then arose again and said that it was the first time he had ever heard of the letter. He formally denied knowledge of its contents and said he would readily submit himself to a committee of inquiry. The chamber voted unanimously for the appointment of a committee to investigate the whole affair, the committee to have judicial powers to examine witnesses. Crowds Give Police Trouble. Throughout the day large crowds assem bled around the Caillaux residence, the Figarq office, and Saint Lazare prison, where Mme, Caillaux occupies a cell. For the most part the crowas were composed of curious spectators, although many rowdies attempted hostile demonstrations. The police, however, had no difficulty in handling them and made many arrests. Late tonight the royalists' association was called out by Leon Daudet, the leader. He mounted a table outside a well known boulevard café and harangued his followers, attacking M. Caillaux in violent terms to the accompaniment of shouts of "Down with the assassin, Caillaux!" M. Hennion, prefect of Paris, in command of a large body of police, harried the manifestants up and down the boulevard and morning? If not, just cast your eagle eye at the happy returns of the day, and, believe me or not, they are some returns. It was "tramp, tramp, tramp, the girls are marching" all day yesterday, and when darkness fell upon the city the registration books were bulging with the names of thousands of new voteresses. Grandma made a bitter fight against registering, but we finally shamed her into it, and the funny part of it is that now she thinks she did it entirely of her own volition. To hear her talk you would imagine she invented registration day.

It was a wet day yesterday, but they weren't all "wets" who registered. There were thousands of umbrellas seen in the line of march. Yesterday the umbrella was the symbol, and on election day it will be the broom. However, that will be another story. If all the women who registered yesterday stood in a row the line would reach from Hammond to Evanston; and if they all stand together on election day they will reach every corrupt politician from the First to the Thirty-fifth ward. The question is, will they stand together? If they do, they will be the balance of power and can have anything they want. If they want a dry town, they can have it; if they want a wet town, they can have it; or if they want a medium wet town, just moistened a little in spots, they also can have that. Hereafter Chicago will be home ruled. The hand that rocks the cradle rules the town The more drinks a candidate buys for papa, the less votes he'll get from sister and mamma. The more he lines up with him at the bar, the more he lines up against him at the home. He will have to revolutionize his electioneering methods. There

Did you notice it? Have you read the public prints this will be more unslaked thirst downtown and less unappeased hunger at home when Jetty starts to vote.

Have you noticed the alert candidate hastily trimming his sails to catch the prevailing breeze? It is delicious. Men who ridiculed the suffragets a year ago are standing around with their hats off, telling us what a noble cause it is

If the women had asked to have the family entrances of saloons abolished a year ago they would have been invited to take a long running jump into the lake. But now, O what a difference! Even Bathhouse John is defending the purity of the home and denouncing the wicked family entrance. For the first time in his political life he is scared more colors than his vest, and at last reports was heard utfering startled cries and sending out S. O S. signals of distress. founded rumors that he will have more time for poetry after election day.

Now that the ladies have the vote, what are they going to do with it? This is the question that is being discussed in polite circles as well as impolite circles. Will they vote as their husbands do, so that the net result will be the same as formerly, or will they think and vote independently? Or will the husbands vote as they do, so that the net result will be twice as different as it was formerly?

Of course, everybody is interested in the effect the women's enormous power will have on the saloons. Will it inaugurate a sweeping crusade and wipe out the saloons, evil and orderly alike, or will it scare the liquor interests into making the reforms themselves? My guess is that the latter, if they are clever, will feverishly begin in self-defense to reform the evils out of their business themselves.

Daughter of Late Nelson Morris Says Husband Has Evil Temper.

TO MRS. SCHWAB

DIVORCE AND SON

FAMILY QUARRELS TOLD.

Mrs. Maud Morris Schwab, daughter of the late Nelson Morris, took the witness stand in Judge Denis E. Sullivan's court yesterday. With blazing eyes and every other manifestation of aroused spirit she told the story of the wrecking of her married life by what, she declared, was the evil temper of her husband. The husband is Henry C. Schwab, vice president of Rothschild & Co.

When Mrs. Schwab had concluded Judge Sullivan announced his intention of granting her a decree of divorce and the custody of her 11 year old son, Henry Charles Schwab Jr. By stipulation of Mrs. Schwab the decree will contain no mention of alimony. A clause will be inserted, however, which will permit the father to see his son thirty days out of every year until his son is 14 years old. When the boy arrives at that age he is to be given permission to elect which of his parents he will

"None Could Live with Him." Mrs. Schwab told the court that " no woman on earth " could live with her husband. "He has always been extremely bad tempered," she asserted, "cruel, bad dispositioned-temperamental. I have not been able to please him in anything or in any way. He has been most abusive and has used language which is not fit to speak about." " Have you had any-" began Levy Mayer, her attorney, after she had told of leaving

"I have not seen him or spoken to him since," interrupted Mrs. Schwab curtly. Mrs. Schwab wore a suit of dark blue tailored velvet and a black hat. Around her neck was a string of pearls. Her testimony, which was given clearly and without much guidance by her counsel, was followed by that of her butler and of her father's private secretary. Both corroborated Mrs. Schwab's account of her husband's behavior.

Cites Difference in Ages.

"No woman on earth could get along with him," began Mrs. Schwab. "He is fifteen years older than I and has had his fun and always wanted to stay at home." Testifying regarding the circumstances leading up to the desertion by Mr. Schwab on May 1, 1911, she said: 'We started in with one of our usual quarrels and it got worse and worse and ended in all kinds of foul language and abuse in every possible way by Mr. Schwab, and eventually he made the same remark that he made many, many other times, that he was through, finished, was going, never coming back, never wished to see me or have anything more to do with me."

He Moves Block Away.

The plaintiff said on further questioning that Mr. Schwab went to live with his parents at 3301 Michigan avenue, less than a block from her residence at 3347 Michigan avenue, and that he has lived there since. On cross-examination by Nathaniel C.

Sears regarding the various quarrels between herself and Mr. Schwab, Mrs. Schwab said: 'I do not think I eves displayed temper. It does not happen to be my nature. Mr. with his father.

Schwab never took the trouble to explain why MOB LYNCHES NEGRO SLAYER he was angry. The plaintiff said her travels in America and Europe were for the good of her son, who, she said, is in delicate health. When asked about his education she said: 'He speaks English, French, German, and some Latin. I have always provided the best governesses and tutors for him, and have lived in furnished homes in Europe n order to keep him away from hotels." George R. La Shelle, formerly private secretary for the late Nelson Morris, and now employed in the same capacity by Mrs.

Schwab, testified the living expenses of Mrs. Schwab aggregated yearly between $60,000 and $70,000. La Shelle said his office with Mrs. Schwab was in her residence at 3347 Michigan avenue, and that he had often heard Mr. Schwab use abusive language toward his wife, and of Aged Constable So Quietly That Audience Hears Nothing. Fayette, Mo., March 17.-Two hours after

Dallas Shields, a negro barber, had shot to death Constable Joseph Gaines here tonight he was lynched.

Gaines was 69 years old and one of the oldest constables in Missouri. He was shot while trying to arrest the negro for terrorizing the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad vards. Policeman Jack Wills arrested Shields on the street as he was threatening the constable's oldest son.

The news of the killing spread quickly and several hundred men soon gathered before the courthouse. With one accord, but without a word, the crowd moved on the jail. The negro was dragged to a tree in the back yard of the jail and given an opportunity to speak before he was strung up. According to mob leaders, he confessed his guilt and expressed regret. As he uttered arrived. Noonan seized Harmon, who tried the words of regret he was swung from the Chicago not only smashed all local registration records yesterday, but became the first city of America in voting strength. The total registration in Chicago, including vesterday's figures, is 693,624, as against 669,-

62 in New York. While the Chicago total is subject to revision, t is not considered probable that it will be at the polling places, they did not reach the 100 000 estimate of the experts. The men, on the other hand, exceeded all expectations by registering 40,000 strong. This makes the records for men. The greatest registration of men heretofore was in the spring of 1912, when the figures totaled 444,901. Including the supplemental registration, the men's total is now 474,981. The Twenty-fifth ward, which won the banner in the February registration, maintained its supremacy. In this Progressive Republican stronghold 3,024 additional women were enrolled, increasing the woman total in the ward to 13,431. The grand total in the ward, including men, is 33,716, the high mark of the city.

Seventh Ward Figures Large. The Seventh ward also held sed with a woman's total of 12.198. The Sixth, the other University of Chicago ward, held on to third place with a registration that boosted the woman's total there to 11,628. The Thirtysecond ward captured the fourth honor position by increasing its woman's figures to 10.888.

The Fifty-second precinct of the Seventh ward carried off the precinct banner, with a total woman's registration of 464. It is bounded on the west by South State street, on the east by Evans avenue, on the south by Seventy-fifth street, and on the north by Seventy-third street. The "booby" precinct prize goes to the First precinct of the Eighteenth ward, with a woman's registration of only ten.

The expected big registration among foreign born women on the west side did not materialize. In some of these wards, where it had been predicted the totals would compare favorably with the north and south side pailiwicks, the figures were disappointing. This was particularly true in the Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, and Twentieth wards.

Showing on West Side. The Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth, and Fifteenth wards made the best showing on the west side, although the totals there did not come up to the mark set by the lake front wards.

The First ward, the scene of the interesting contest between "Bathhouse John" Coughlin and Miss Marion H. Drake, increased its woman totals only to 4,718. The showing during the day, however, was better than at the preprimary registration. Aside from the Twenty-fifth ward the big increases in the woman's registration figures were noticeable in those wards where independent candidates have entered against party nominees. This was true not only in the Sixth and Seventh wards but also in the Twenty-seventh, Thirty-second, and Thirty-The most exciting incident was in the even-ng, when James Harmon, a 19 year old deafmute, ran amuck with a butcher knife in the polling place at 4601 Wallace street. He frightened five women, who fled through a side door Election Judge Joseph Dunn succeeded in ruieting the man and induced him to put up

In making the rounds of polling places Commissioner Czarnecki discovered the aware of what had happened until they left names of four men remaining on the books of the Ninth precinct of the Fourteenth ward.
