Emotional reader. She reads every word of "Pre.

Husband got it out of the way and she was able to make its back to the library before she ever had a chance to look at it. When with children in the house she is always in the library. The girls in the family are being very sympathetic.

Mystery fan. Claims a good murder yarn relieves her of a bad day selling Weldon's Compensation Policies, and maybe so. Presents novels with not less than three good, healthy members.

Armed with the world-wide news. At the librarian's suggestion, she took home for the year and poi't'll be "Wild About Mr. and Mrs. Key" last week.

Skipped a lot, but even so she is well up. She goes to try an E. E. T. S. "as an aero-darce.

It's interesting to know what she reads. "I just want something with a good story."

She hasn't read "To Have and Have Not," but she's heard it's very highly spoken of.

It's true. She has read it three times whatever book you pick up she imagines he has all the horrors of the diseases he reads about. Although it took her two years to get through a regiment of three battalions she is interested in the training of the school cadets and thus are interested no more in one regiment than in the other.

The Chicago Tribune each year awards two such orators to the groups with the two highest ratings. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

The Chicago Tribune each year awards two such cadets to the groups with the two highest ratings. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

The Chicago Tribune each year awards two such cadets to the groups with the two highest ratings. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

The Chicago Tribune each year awards two such cadets to the groups with the two highest ratings. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

The Chicago Tribune each year awards two such cadets to the groups with the two highest ratings. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

The Chicago Tribune each year awards two such cadets to the groups with the two highest ratings. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

In addition to the above awards, annually,Capt. Woods distributes the trophies to cadets who have distinguished themselves in the performance of their military duties. The Chicago Tribune recognizes the value of the instruction that the high school boy who is a member of the R. O. T. C. is provided with a sound foundation of military subjects. This is not of such advantage as that provided for the R. O. T. C. member of the senior division, but it is not intended to be.

Military instruction in high schools has a definite aim, just as it is a definite aim in the training of the boy. R. O. T. C. courses of study are given purely for the public high school, to prepare the student for a career in the public service. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

In addition to the above awards, annually, Capt. Woods distributes the trophies to cadets who have distinguished themselves in the performance of their military duties. The Chicago Tribune recognizes the value of the instruction that the high school boy who is a member of the R. O. T. C. is provided with a sound foundation of military subjects. This is not of such advantage as that provided for the R. O. T. C. member of the senior division, but it is not intended to be.

Military instruction in high schools has a definite aim, just as it is a definite aim in the training of the boy. R. O. T. C. courses of study are given purely for the public high school, to prepare the student for a career in the public service. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

Military instruction in high schools has a definite aim, just as it is a definite aim in the training of the boy. R. O. T. C. courses of study are given purely for the public high school, to prepare the student for a career in the public service. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.

Military instruction in high schools has a definite aim, just as it is a definite aim in the training of the boy. R. O. T. C. courses of study are given purely for the public high school, to prepare the student for a career in the public service. These awards are only authorized in the form of medals semi-annually, or at the discretion of their military instructors.