CLOSE ALL-STAR PLAYER VOTE AT MIDNIGHT!

Poll on Coaches Opens Today.

BY ARCH WARD.
The greatest popularity contest sport has known ends at midnight tonight. That hour marks the end of the national poll conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and 150 associated newspapers to determine a starting lineup for the College All-Americans against the Washington Redskins in Chicago's fifth annual All-Star football game in Soldier's field Aug. 31.
The vote this morning totals 3,580,996. Final standings will not be available until Wednesday. When all returns have been counted the figure is almost certain to exceed 5,000,000.
Governors have rested from their executive duties to cast ballots for their candidates. In one case—Mississippi—the entire state legislature forwarded votes to this department for sectional headlines. Heads of great industries in Detroit, Cincinnati, Toledo, and Chicago have wired their ballots or made personal calls in behalf of their favorites. The votes have come from New England, California, Washington, Louisiana, Texas, Florida, Maryland, and intermediate points. Every section of the country has responded.

No Monopoly on Talent.
The amazing interest in the All-Star game is attributable to the popularity of intercollegiate football. It has been demonstrated convincingly in the last decade that no section of the nation has a monopoly on gridiron talent. For that reason all parts of the country are anxious and determined to have representation in the game that presents the finest players in the land.

Sports editors who were skeptical of the success of the venture in the beginning are stunned at results. Many have found their personnel inadequate to handle the rush of votes. Maurice Shevlin, sports editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, spoke for a majority of the newspaper executives when he remarked last night as the player poll neared the finish line, "This thing has got me dizzy."

The player poll ends tonight, but the nation's voting spree is only half finished. The same newspapers and radio stations which have conducted the balloting for athletes will today open a poll that will decide a staff of coaches to handle the squad.

Every fan in the nation is invited to send in his preference for coaches. You are permitted to name three in the order you wish. First place will count three points, second two, and third one. The total number of points at the conclusion of the poll two weeks from today will decide the staff. The coach with the greatest number will be in charge and the next four in the order of finish will be his assistants. Any coach who was actively engaged last season is eligible except the four head coaches of previous seasons. They are Noble Kizer of Purdue, who handled the 1934 team; Frank Thomas of Alabama, who was head coach in 1935; Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, the 1936 leader, and Charles Dorr of Detroit, who led the All-Stars to a 6 to 0 victory over the Green Bay Packers last summer.

Dorais Polls Heaviest Vote.
Dorais last year collected 1,241,658 first place votes. This was the

Cravat Runs Third Ahead of Stagehand

BY HOWARD BARRY.
Nedayr, running in the colors of a famous stable, made a traditionally great race out of the Classic stakes yesterday at Arlington Park. Going unheralded into this $35,000 event, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's courageous brown colt matched his speed against the finest 3 year olds in training and he came through with a mighty stretch run that brought the 30,000 spectators to their feet in mingled jubilation and dismay.
He beat Warren Wright's Bull Lea to the finish line by a length. Three lengths farther back came Townsend B. Martin's Cravat, and in fourth place galloped the highly regarded Stagehand, Maxwell Howard's star performer which had been made the 7 to 5 favorite.

Patience Is Rewarded.
For months, Trainer W. A. Crawford had been nursing Nedayr along, hoping that he would recover from a sick spell that hit him in the spring. He went into yesterday's race with little more than a few good workouts in the east to recommend him to the betters and as a result he rewarded his followers handsomely. His mutual tickets were worth $31.50 to win, $12 to place, and $7.40 to show.
The track, drenched during a heavy storm Friday, dried rapidly through an afternoon of sunshine, and by the time the horses went to the post for the Classic it was what is technically known as slow. Nedayr, known to have ability as a miler, ran the mile and a quarter in 2:06 1/5.

Most of the betting conjecture revolved around the question of whether the Howard entry of Stagehand and The Chief should become the favorite because of its demonstrated speed or whether Hal Price Headley's Menow should be accorded that honor because of his mud running ability. Meanwhile, not only Nedayr, but also Bull Lea was overlooked.
Pays $9.80 to Place.
Bull Lea, whose main claim to consideration was based on two victories over Menow at Keosauqua in the spring, went to the post at such generous odds that he paid $9.80 to place and $6 to show. Cravat, which had performed creditably in the Preakness and in the Belmont Stakes, paid $4.40 to show.

Given a Brilliant Ride.
Jockey Wayne Wright, who arrived by plane from his home in Rexburg, Idaho, only a short time before the race, was given credit for a brilliant ride in bringing Nedayr home in front. He rated the colt cleverly in the early stages, made his move at just the right time and was in full command at the finish.

With a minimum of prancing and sidestepping, the field of eight fastidious thoroughbreds moved into position in the starting gate. Up went the barrier and away they sped, with Jockey Nick Wall whipping Menow into the lead along the rail. Irving Anderson brought Bull Lea right out with him and the two raced head and head past the stands with The Chief in close attendance.

Around the clubhouse turn they galloped, with the three leaders maintaining their same positions. Fairfax running fourth and Nedayr fifth. Jockey Wright, seeing that his mount was outrun in the early stages, steadied him and made no effort to catch the pacesetters. Blind Eagle was running sixth at this stage, Cravat seventh and Stagehand last.

Nedayr Begins Drive.
Down the back stretch they swept, the gay colors of the riders making a brilliant fast moving picture in bright sunshine against the back ground of green and gold fields. And still Menow was hanging stubbornly to the lead while Bull Lea fought him stride for stride. But now Jockey Wright was beginning to maneuver Nedayr toward the front. He passed the rapidly quitting Fairfax, but at the three-quarters the pacesetter Menow was still more than seven lengths away.

On the lower bend Irving Anderson's red sleeved arm rose and fell as he whipped Bull Lea past the faltering Menow to take the lead. And then came Nedayr. Moving with a tremendous rush, he passed The Chief. As they hit the turn into the stretch he made up ground at every stride. He caught Menow at the head of the stretch, but Bull Lea still was two lengths away.

Wright's whip rose and fell. Nedayr responded. Bull Lea was game, but that difficult track, sticky after the storm, was beginning to tell on his stamina. A sixteenth from home Nedayr caught him. Jockey Wright continued to drive hard and Nedayr drew clear. On he went to cross the finish a full length in the lead.

Meanwhile, Cravat and Stagehand had moved up while the front runners were quitting, but they were unable to get to the leaders.

ONE THAT COUNTED AND ONE THAT DIDN'T

Augie Galan slides in under Catcher Gus Mancuso in the sixth inning of the first game of the Cubs-Giants double-header in Wrigley field yesterday. He came in on Collins' fly to score the seventh Cub run in a 7 to 4 victory. Umpire Bill Stewart, manager of the world's champion Blackhaws, is calling the play, and Bill Lee, Cub pitcher, is "kicking" Augie home.

SNEAD FIRES 64 FOR 4 SHOT LEAD IN CHICAGO OPEN

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
A placid young man who was reared in the hills of Virginia became slightly irritated yesterday afternoon. His name is Samuel Jackson Snead. One week ago yesterday he took quite a licking from a little man named Paul Runyan in the finals of the national professional show.

Yesterday Master Snead made a cat o' nine tails out of every club he swung in dealing the No. 1 course at Olympia Fields in the first official round of the Chicago open tournament one of the major floggings of the season. His chastisement consisted of ten pars and eight birdies, all of them lashing the course for a 64, eight under par. His punishment of Olympia's No. 1 lot was one of the most merciless in major competition. It smashed to bits the course record of 67 established by Walter Hagen in the western open of 1927. It also duplicated the 64 with which Ralph Guldahl won the western open title in 1936.

"Should Have Been 60."
Snead, the 25 year old who was hidden in those Virginia hills until he first broke forth on the horizon of tournament play a year ago last winter, was highly irked about his 64.

"Gee, it should have been a cinch 60," he said.
And possibly the young man who came so fast he ran second in his first national open and likewise in his second P. G. A., might have been right. It was obvious to the trained eyes among those of the 6,000 spectators who came out to Olympia Fields that he certainly could have had at least a 61, after seeing him miss putts of less than eight feet on the first three holes.

The only man in the field to pursue Snead even closely was Ky Lafoon, the Northmoor pro who for the last five years has been one of the keenest of medal play sharpshooters. Ky tossed out a 68, which seemed

Five Yachts Lead in Race to Mackinac

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Aboard Coast Guard Cutter Escanaba, July 23.—Four single masted yachts and one yawl rigged yacht tonight were leading the fleet of forty-seven boats that left Belmont harbor, Chicago, this afternoon in the thirty-first race to Mackinac Island.

They are the Gloriant, the Warrior, the Princess, and the Tar Baby in the racing division, and the Rubaiyat, last year's winner, in the cruising division.

The fleet's progress has been none too rapid. A northeast wind of ten mile strength that sent the yachts on their way this afternoon had diminished tonight to a virtual calm, and the leading boats were only twenty-eight miles from the starting point. Some of the yawls, including the Bagheera and the Manitou, were charting a course that paralleled the Wisconsin shore.

HENRY SCHULTE, NEBRASKA TRACK COACH, RETIRES

Lincoln, Neb., July 23.—(P)—Henry F. Schulte, veteran track coach at the University of Nebraska and member of the coaching staff for the American team in the 1928 Olympics, retired today because of poor health. He will be succeeded by Ed Weir, freshman football coach. Schulte was head football coach for several years at Nebraska, but most of his career was devoted to track.

Gabby Hartnett (left), new Cubs' manager, and Dizzy Dean came out of the dugout to take excellent care of battery duties in the second game. Dean held the Giants to five hits.

Young Feller Admits Fast Ball Is Gone

Boston, Mass., July 23.—(P)—Bob Feller admitted today his fast ball, which made him the boy wonder of baseball, is gone.

The Cleveland pitcher, knocked out of the box here the fifth time in four weeks, added he doesn't know what's the matter.
"Somewhere between last season and this I've lost my fast ball," the troubled 19 year old Iowan said.
"I mean I still throw a good fast one, occasionally, but I can't pump it in, pitch after pitch, like I did last year. Worse than that, I can't snap off that fast curve any more without making it practically a wild pitch."

Wildness a Problem.
Feller's biggest problem has been his wildness, most of his exits following a parade of batters around the bases on passes. He said he hasn't altered his delivery to any great degree, but he expressed some concern when he told of a click in his arm that has stayed with him since his elbow was injured last season.
"When I first started to pitch in the American league, batters invariably pulled away from the plate as they swung at my fast one. Now they're stepping into it," he said.

Upset by Infield's Advice.
"It think they used to regard me simply as a freak kid and weren't going to take any chances of having their heads knocked off. Now they seem to regard me as just another pitcher."
Bob admitted he has been upset when infielders come in and talk to him during one of his wild streaks. "They always tell me to get it over the plate. What do they think I'm trying to do—throw it up in the press box?"

DEAN HURLS FIVE HIT VICTORY; LEE WINS FIRST

Six Run Blast Routs Gumbert.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The champion New York Giants were made to pay yesterday for some of the indignities they've heaped on the Cubs in the past and a 43,233 crowd chuckled as the title holders were crumpled in a double-header. In the first game the Chicagoans, fortified by six run second inning, wrecked their old foes, 7 to 4. Then they did it again, 3 to 1, in a struggle featuring another comeback by the illustrious Dizzy Dean and some fist throwing by Bill Jurgens and peppery Dick Bartell.

Dean, always the superb showman, overlooked nothing in the effort to furnish amusement as well as achieve results. His performance, which he accomplished on five hits and no distress for his carefully groomed $185,000 arm, was started and finished with pleasing ease. He walked only one and the gift resulted in the only run registered in his sixth start and his fifth victory as a Cub. He made only eighty-eight pitches.

'Twas a Fine Brawl.
As baseball fights go, the Jurgens-Bartell imbroglio was well above the average. The two were involved in a play at second base in the fourth inning when the Cubs scored their winning runs off Hal Schumacher. Jurgens thought Bartell was unnecessarily rude in tagging him. Bartell thought it was just the opposite. So they mauled each other on the ground and then, after getting on their feet, took to free-for-all slugging. Eventually every member of both teams arrived and the fun stopped. The belligerents were thrown out of the game.

The incident which decided the first game and put Bill Lee as well as the other Cubs on easy street occurred in the second inning. The Cubs, assembling twice as much power as they showed in all the other innings, unloaded six hits and a pass on two enemy pitchers. Harry Gumbert stayed until four of the hits and the pass had been accounted for with none out. Then Dick Coffman, the noted rescuer, was summoned and he yielded the two more hits. One of these was damaging. It was a triple with which Lee drove in two runs, later scoring himself.

Lee Gets Smashed.
Without that early six run splurge Lee might not have achieved his twelfth victory of the season. The Giants pummeled him for thirteen hits, treatment the General hadn't received since he started his winning ways with 1 to 0 decision over the champs back in mid-May. Lee, having been reached for seven hits in the first four innings, had to summon all his skill to keep out of trouble.

FIRST GAME

Lee's start in the first game wasn't exactly auspicious. The Giants spiked him with a couple of doubles, but only one run scored. Bartell led off with one to right and Kampouris attempted to sacrifice, but his bunt resulted in a double for Bartell at third. Leslie died to Galan, then Ott doubled to right, scoring Kampouris.

The second inning storm that blew Gumbert into the discard began with O'Dea singling to center and going to third on Galan's single to right. A grounder by Reynolds took a hop over Leslie for a double, O'Dea scoring the tying run. Gumbert courted more trouble by walking Demaree, filling the bases. Collins slashed a single into right, sending Galan and Reynolds home. This was where Gumbert surrendered.

Lee Belts One.
Coffman got his share of misery pitching to Lee, who hoisted a fly to right center. Ripple, while on the run, got his glove around the ball, but it dropped out of his grip for a triple. Demaree and Collins scoring. Jurgens rolled out and, on Herman's fly to Ripple, Lee scored the sixth run.

The Giants got nothing on two hits in the second but they produced
