CLASSIC DAY IS A GAY DAY FOR ITS OLD FRIENDS

Society Rallies Around a Favorite Race.

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

(Picture on Page 3, Sports.) "I never miss the Classic" is what one heard on all sides yesterday at Arlington Park, where the ranks of regular racegoers were swelled by those who make at least one trip a season to the beautiful track northwest of the city. Some of these annual visitors came from far away; the most widely known ones were to be found at the Post and Paddock or Jockey clubs. Mr. and Mrs. America, touring the country on a summer holiday, joined the throngs in the grandstands. All had an equally good time, for the sun was bright and warm and a brisk west wind kept the temperature from rising too better known visitors. Mrs. Howard was a guest at lunch eon of Laurance H. Armour, president of the Post and Paddock club, and Mrs. Armour. After luncheor the Armours and their guests and Albert D. Lasker and his guests, including Col. Roosevelt and Mr. Goldberg, overflowed into the John D Hertzes' and neighboring boxes.

A Gay and Busy Section.

That section of the Post and Paddock club boxes was particularly gay, with people calling to pay their respects to Mrs. Howard, who is the former Loretta Hines of Chicago. She looked pretty as a picture in a black and white print gown and a tiny black straw toque. Her hostess wore a flattering wide brimmed hat of natural straw with a crown of white daisies and a beige print frock.

"Who is that attractive woman?" several asked of this reporter, indicating another of the Armours' guests. She was Mrs. Harold Talbot of New York, noted for her chic. Yesterday Mrs. Talbot wore a brown and cream print dress, a brown felt beret spiked with a long feather, and a choker and bracelet of gleaming pearls. The ensemble effectively set off her deep tan.

Hats are not so crazy now, or so it seemed vesterday, noticing the number of more conventional and becoming ones that appeared. Few could have been too preoccupied with racing forms not to notice Mrs. T. Philip Swift's fetching blue bonnet, a simple one of jersey trimmed with a row of large blue cornflowers at one side. Her sister, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, wore a white pique one and Mrs. William McCormick Blair wore a plain brimmed one of navy sheer straw with a red print gown.

Another of Chicago's best dressed women, Mrs. Howard Linn, paused to compare racing notes with Mrs. Robert R. Work a Lure Slowly if You Want Muskie

BY BOB BECKER.

When the weed beds in muskie lakes have attained their full summer growth many a fisherman digs into his tackle box for a surface lure that will ride over most of the vegetation and thus come through without much trouble. Although spoon lures and underwater plug lures may be worked in some waters during July and August, we find that around the large weed beds which grow up to the top of the lake or stream it often is necessary to reach a muskie by tossing surface lures over the vegetation and then retrieving them slowly.

Result: A Muskie.
