Rain, Rain, Go Away; Our Sox Want to Play

BY EDWARD BURKE

Chicago Sun-Times Staff Writer

The rain which fell on the Chicago White Sox at Comiskey Park yesterday brought the team a series of difficulties which the players were unable to overcome. A heavy downpour made the field wet and the schedule was delayed until 3 p.m.

The schedule was announced early in the morning and was expected to be completed by 4:30 p.m. However, the rain continued throughout the afternoon and the game was postponed.

The postponement of the game was a disappointment to the players and fans alike. The White Sox were facing the Washington Senators, who had won the previous game.
