Ancient and Modern Ships of the Desert

Before Days of Rolling Pins

DUELS between men and women were a not unusual occurrence in medieval Europe, according to old documents brought to light in the city of Ansbach. The duel was carried on for the purpose of establishing the rights or wrongs of the accused person. The duel was then referred to as the judgment of God, a custom known as "tokum" in the English code. Modern historians have interpreted these sport duels as the origin of the modern duel.

The Ansbach duel of 1706, cited as an example that a woman had a man's soul and had no voice in the matter, when the woman was accused, it was thought that the duel was too death was a fate too much for the woman and that killing the duel was the woman's death sentence. The duelists were sentenced to be shot at the place where they had met for the duel.

The neat even stroke down the ancient channel during the first half of this week, Tuesday is the first of nine days on which the wise men and women should look for each other and make a productive plan. Make note of all the clues that come your way to put them down in writing. Today, tomorrow, and Tuesday can be made socially beneficial; use its sessions, literary, and musical gifts. Wednesday and Thursday: Take stock of personal, moral, and spiritual health; look about to improve working conditions. Friday, Saturday, and Sunday: Keep the other fellow's right to freedom in mind: be kind.
