

These women of Galicia may not be undergoing hardships in the trenches, but they are proving their patriotism just the same. With Galicia's able bodied men in the army, somebody has to get the fields ready for the crops. The woman in the foreground appears capable of taking her husband's place at home.

(Photograph by Underwood and Underwood.)

Here is a Russian field kitchen where soups and stews and tea are prepared. There is one of these kitchens to each 100 men.

(Photograph by R. R. McCormick, war correspondent of The Tribune.)