Miss D. J., Lombard, Ill.
Miss J. is reserved, thoughtful, courageous, and the possessor of two excellent gifts, a sense of values and a sense of humor.

Miss H. E. D. Waukegan, Ill.
Miss D. is the possessor of a quiet sense of humor, an even temper, and a great patience. She is resourceful and sufficient unto herself, and for this very reason should guard against a tendency to exclude the rest of the world.

Miss T. N., Chicago (Selected from Letters)
Good breeding, refinement, sensitiveness, and a sense of fitness are Miss N.'s salient characteristics. She is self-minded, extremely reserved, and conventional. She is more of a dreamer than a doer.

Miss M. M. K., Hammond, Ind.
Here the curves exhibit a strength of character and memory, amiability, and good nature. The spacing and proportions of the features indicate that Miss K. is a happily balanced person, with sufficient reserve to effect a tendency towards reserve.

Miss I. E. S., South Bend, Ind.
This face, inclined to be square, expresses power and strength. Her traits are gentle, but with an underlying stubbornness. Her eyes express a certain amount of shyness, and her mouth, which indicates that Miss S. is a lover of beauty, reserved, and capable of deep and lasting affection.

Miss M. L. McSwain, Wis.
Sociability, a sense of humor, friendliness, and the ability to think quickly and accurately are signified by Miss McSwain's features. She is a good combination of amiability and strength.

Miss P. M., Aurora, Ill.
Here the facial contours and expression indicate that Miss P. is high-strung, a quick thinker, and the possessor of an unwilling spirit. Her emotions guide her desires, and she should endeavor to make her head rule her heart.

Miss E. L., Davenport, Ia.
Miss E.'s face and features reveal an opportunity, who is light-hearted and a lover of poetry. She makes friends quickly, and likes people. Her forehead is broad, her eyes are large, her nose is large, but she should guard against being influenced by others.

Miss N. H., Grand Rapids, Miss.
Miss N. is probably a contradictory person. Her eyes indicate keen perception, but a slight tendency to trouble, while her mouth expresses a certain amount of stoicism, cheerfulness, and an inclination to take things as they come. She is more active than dreamy.

Miss J. C., Council Bluffs, Ia.
The salient characteristic expressed in Miss J.'s face is wholeheartedness. Present also are indications of good nature, sincerity, and intelligence. She has a tendency toward over-impulsiveness, and her judgment of people is apt to be a bit inaccurate.
