Coats Are Chic and Practical

Have Flattering Lines and Trims, Lovely Fabrics.

7 HAT every good winter wardrobe needs is a long, allpurpose coat, a coat without a matching dress, a good wind breaker affair that usually has a high, fluffy fur collar. A coat that may be worn over a suit, a wool dress, a knit outfit, a suede jacket and skirt twosome, or with a pair of sweaters and a skirt. A coat for travel, for football games, for motoring, for country and town wear. A coat that will take the punishment of almost constant wear for the next five months and still be as smart looking and fashionable after that period as the day it was purchased.

We sleuthed the town for outstanding finds, for such coats with beauty of line, fine fabrics, flattering colors slenderizing streamlines, and cozy warmth. In a shop famous for coats we found a super collection, so many models that we almost were stumped as to which were best buys for the average shopper. There were noteworthy finds in beige, in every flattering variation of this color, beige coats with suedelike textures, and coats of fleecy beige wool. In bright and lusty plaids and checks, we found all kinds of brown, beige, and rusty henna combines, and stunning grays. Gray is just as high fashion in these all-purpose coats as in suits and coats for more dress parade occasions. Look for the effective violet tones, the smoky blues and violets, the grand, heart warming reds and hennas, the the more subtle almond and sage sign. The tavorite color combination green tones.
