Smokers urged to ‘toss away packs’

The cigarette habit is a tough one to break. But one group of people, the U.S. Public Health Service, is urging smokers to try. They believe that if smokers were to throw away their packs, they might be more likely to quit.

RISKY BEHAVIOR

The theory is that if smokers see their packs, they might be tempted to light up. The Public Health Service hopes that by getting rid of their packs, smokers will be less likely to smoke.

LARKER BOARD SUITS UP BAND

At Larker Board’s regular meeting Monday night, the board approved the purchase of approximately 3000.00 worth of new band uniforms. The project will be funded through a grant from the state, with Larker Board contributing the remaining funds.

FIRST SNOWMAN!

Thousand residents were reminded that winter is just around the corner as the first snowman of the year appeared on a cold, white background. The snowman, built by a group of enthusiastic volunteers, was a symbol of the upcoming winter season.

TUESDAY VOTE FOR YCDD

The Board of Directors will hold a special meeting at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, November 14, to vote on the YCDD proposal. The meeting will be held at the YCDD headquarters, 123 Main Street.

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS, WE PRINT

“Hey, what’s going on?”

“Just reporting for duty. My name is Bill. I’m a journalist and I’m here to tell you about the latest news.”

“I see you’re already at work.”

“Yes, I’ve been up all night, researching and writing.”

“Tell me about your job. What do you do?”

“I’m a reporter for a local newspaper. My job is to report on the news.”

“I see. And what do you report on?”

“I report on everything. From local news to national events.”

“Wow, that’s quite a responsibility.”

“Yes, it is. But I love it.”

“Have you always wanted to be a reporter?”

“I’ve always been interested in writing and storytelling.”

“Is there anything you’re particularly interested in reporting?”

“I’m interested in reporting on social justice issues.”

“Good choice. Those stories are important.”

“Thank you. I try to make sure my reporting is accurate and fair.”

“I see. And what do you do when you’re not reporting?”

“I spend a lot of time reading and researching. I also enjoy spending time with my family.”

“I see. Well, thank you for your time.”

“You’re welcome. Have a great day.”

“Thank you.”

“Take care.”

“I will.”

No mandate, but fascinating election!

Last week's overwhelming re-election of President Ronald Reagan is still being heralded by his political friends and supporters as the most important event of the year. The election was a resounding victory for the President and his policies, and it put an end to the notion that his campaign had been consigned to second place. The election was a clear mandate for more of the same.

The President's re-election is a clear mandate for more of the same. The American people have spoken, and they have spoken loudly and clearly. They want more of the same. They want more of the same.

The election was a clear mandate for more of the same. The American people have spoken, and they have spoken loudly and clearly. They want more of the same. They want more of the same.

Martin Storey has his fondest memories of the old Elks Lodge. "I remember sitting there in the brothel of the old lodge, watching the poker games," he said. Storey, a member of the lodge for over 30 years, said he will never forget the days when the lodge was a popular place for men to congregate. He said the lodge was a place where people came together to socialize and have a good time.

Visit one of Huron County's churches this Sunday

WHEN A NEED EXISTS THE LORD WILL PROVIDE AN ANSWER

The worship services of a small town church had been accompanied by an old organ which was on its last pedals. It was a type for which there were no replacement parts available, and the price of a new one was beyond reach. One Sunday it finally sounded its last chord and became silent forever. However, that very week a classified ad appeared in a regional church publication, offering an organ FREE, to any church of that denomination which would send someone to pick it up. Needless to say, they were the ones who did. The new organ appeared to be in perfect condition. Moreover, two dozen choir robes, also needed, were obtained in this manner: from another in the same issue. Thus the Lord does indeed provide, when a need exists. Remember this, and thank Him for your own blessings: at your House of Worship.

God our Maker, with private devotion for Your Birthday, be pleased to accept this little offering.

—Henry Ward

Laker Junior Hoopsters Gain Experience, Confidence

The eighth-grade girls basketball squad at Laker Junior High School is seeking to improve its team chemistry and gain experience this season. The team, which recently completed a winning season at the end of last year, is looking to carry forward the momentum and build on its success this season.

To facilitate this, the team has scheduled several scrimmages and practice games against other local teams. They are hoping to challenge themselves and improve their skills in preparation for the upcoming season.

One of the key strengths of the team is their teamwork and cooperation. The players are encouraged to communicate effectively and support each other both on and off the court. This approach has helped them to develop a strong bond and enhance their performance as a unit.

In addition to the regular practice sessions, the team has been focusing on individual skill development and fitness training. They have been working on their shooting accuracy, ball handling, and overall conditioning to ensure peak performance during games.

The team's commitment to improvement and their dedication to each other will undoubtedly contribute to their success in the upcoming season. They are looking forward to facing new challenges and proving themselves as a formidable force in the local basketball community.
