'SWEET' QUEEN BERNADETTE!

Bernadette Voelker of Owendale was crowned the "Sweetest Girl in the World" Friday, during the 21st annual Michigan Sugar Festival at Sebewaing.

The Laker High 1985 graduate is the daughter of Mary Jane Voelker and the late Kenneth Voelker. She was chosen from 17 candidates for the Sugar Queen crown.

Caseville oks budget

Caseville School Board, in its regular monthly meeting on June 17, adopted the 1985-86 budget. Revenues totaling $1.033 million are expected compared with anticipated expenses of $1.037 million. The $4,363 deficit will be offset by an estimated $250,000 fund balance expected at the end of the 1984-85 fiscal year, says Superintendent James Stahl.

MEDIATION: Board entered closed session to discuss negotiation strategy for contract talks with Caseville teachers.

Representatives of Caseville Education Association and the Board met on three occasions with little progress. A state mediator will meet with the two groups this Friday, June 28 in an effort to iron out differences in contract talks, Stahl says.

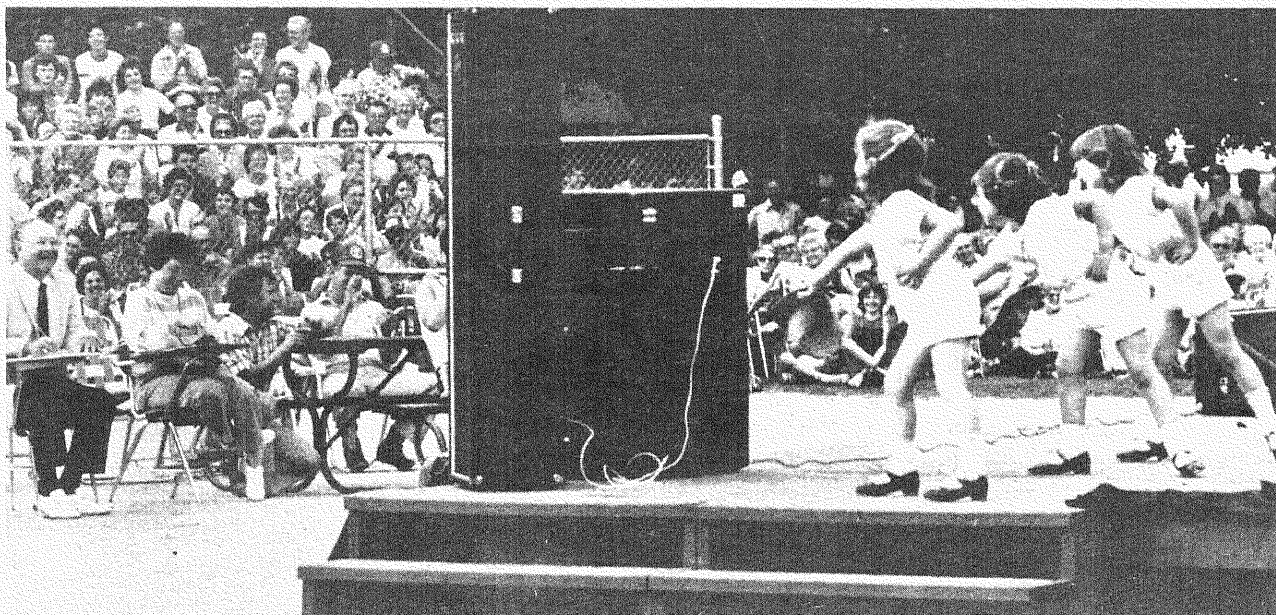

EARLY MEETING: Board scheduled the annual reorganizational meeting for Monday, July 8, beginning at 7 p.m. The regular July meeting will be conducted at that time also, rather than the third Monday of the month.

BIDS: Stahl was authorized to seek bids for school supplies, purchase of one school bus and for paving the school parking lot.

REPORT: School librarian Pam Ignatowski reported on operation of the kindergarten-12th grade library, as part of the ongoing curriculum review.

Miss Voelker plans to attend Michigan State University this fall, majoring in landscape architecture. She was guest of honor during Saturday's big parade, postponed four hours due to heavy rains. Record crowds attended the parade and accompanying events in Sebewaing. Here, she is crowned by Bill Hurdelbrink.

MUCC adopts local resolution

One hundred ninety-nine delegates representing the 100,000 members of the Michigan United Conservation Club met at Traverse City last weekend, June 21-23 and unanimously approved a resolution on conservation education in the educational system.

This resolution was initiated as a result of a talk on "The Importance of Conserving Natural Resources" given by Duane Guenther at a February District Nine meeting at the Pigeon Conservation Club. The club members decided that something should be done to educate young people on conservation.

This resulted in a resolution being drawn up recommending that Natural Resources education should be included in the educational process. The resolution reads as follows:

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that MUCC let it be known that it considers the teaching of conservation of natural resources understanding and practices to be of utmost importance in the formal education process; and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that MUCC urge, in every practical way, the inclusion of the study of conservation in any regular school curriculum; and BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that MUCC emphatically proclaim the necessity for accented attention to the matter of education in conservation of natural resources not only in Michigan, but throughout the country, and the world.

The Pigeon Conservation Club was represented at the meeting by Virgil and Verneta Bouck, who will give convention details at the next Pigeon Conservation Club July 3 at 8 p.m.

Groundbreaking set this Friday

Scheurer Hospital officials will begin digging dirt at 2 p.m. Friday, during groundbreaking ceremonies for the $2.4 million expansion project now underway.

A 14,250-sq.-ft. addition is being constructed, primarily on the north end of the hospital at 170 N. Caseville Road, Pigeon. The emergency care and outpatient areas will be expanded, as will laboratory, pharmacy, respiratory therapy, office and conference space.

Plus, maintenance and laundry areas will get more storage space, and an ambulance garage will be built. Hospital Building & Equipment of St. Louis, Mo., is general contractor. The project is being financed through sale of revenue bonds, according to Administrator George Desmarais.

This is Scheurer's first addition since the new hospital building was constructed in 1972. Desmarais says. The late Dr. Clare A. Scheurer started the non-profit hospital in 1945 at the site of the present Pigeon Clinic in downtown Pigeon.

Recent new specialty services require the expansion project, such as outpatient treatment, pulmonary function tests and others. Space will be available for specialty clinics in urology and gynecology weekly or several times weekly, now being conducted in cramped hospital facilities.

A successful Buddy Poppy Drive was reported by Chairman Kenneth Young. Post members wish to thank Elkton merchants, employees of Active Industries and other contributors.

In other business, purchase of veterans grave flag markers for use at Riverside and Chandler Cemeteries was discussed, with final action planned in July. Also, the showing of educational and sports films from September through April was supported.

in the mid-1930s, working with Fire Chief Devero on an old four-man hand-pumper truck — a teeter-totter affair which truly used manpower. He helped build Caseville's fire truck in the mid-1940s with Skip Connors, he recalls.

Kleinfeld helped originate the Fair Haven Fire Department in 1946, and well remembers the first few years of activity. His wife Blanche would tell him, "Why don't you take your bed down there?" as he would leave for the many meetings needed in forming the Bay Port Department. "You've gotta have a wife who is willing to put up with you. She's always stuck beside me," Kleinfeld says.

He served as Fair Haven Fire Chief for five years, until a new job took him to Pigeon — too far away for a chief to work, he says. The Fair Haven Department has 22 men on its roster — and Kleinfeld was especially proud to ride in Sebawaing's Sugar Festival Parade on Saturday, in honor of his half-century of service. "You've gotta stay busy. Some people go home and sit around. I don't. You've got to keep fit. We've got good men in our department, and that's what it takes, not just the chief," he says.

HERE, KLEINFELD LOOKS OVER the plaque awarded him for being the "Oldest Active Fireman," during the 10th annual conference of the group. Fair Haven Fire Chief Ralph Forman left, says Kleinfeld is the recipient of many of the Fair Haven honor certificates and plaques during nearly 40 years with that Department.

Thumb outdoor report

MOST FISHING WAS HALTED last weekend by the strong winds that piled up waves on both Saginaw Bay and Lake Huron. Earlier in the week, salmon and lake trout action was reported to be fair to good at Grindstone City and Harbor Beach. Most fish were in the five to 10-lb. range and were hitting at depths of 80 to 100 feet.

Perch fishing, which has been on again, off again all-fair this summer, got going on Tuesday with some nice size catches being taken at Port Sanilac, Harbor Beach and Grindstone City.

Saginaw Bay fishermen, who have been working the area outside the slot, also reported good catches. Walleyes have been a disappointment so far this year. Little action has been reported, and those that have caught some nice fish are doing so only after spending many hours dragging around body-baits.

OBSERVATIONS BY PUBLISHER MARK RUMMEL AND ANYBODY ELSE HE CAN GET TO WRITE 'EM! TERRORISTS, BEWARE — International terrorists such as the dozen or so who still hold 40 Americans hostage on a TWA plane in Beirut should be grateful I'm not in charge of the national news media. They'd almost NEVER get their dirty faces on TV, in daily papers and in magazines if I ran the networks!

I think national news media contribute to skyjackings like this, pure and simple. How else could 12 men command the world's attention, except by taking Americans hostage — then getting hours and hours of network news coverage of their every statement and non-statement?

If I were a terrorist, I could think of no better way to get my point across. And don't look for a speedy end to this drama. They're going to play it for all it's worth. National news media should report the initial hijacking — and that's it. A short daily update WITH NO PICTURES could be given. But why do the "big media" spend so very much time on things like this? The rest of the world goes on. You and I still work, or look for a job or do what we must. I just don't think the national media people are in touch with Joe Average Citizen at all.

And those terrorists don't deserve such non-stop treatment... All it will do is bring about other actions, since they see how well it plays on U.S. TV.

WEREN'T THEY BEAUTIFUL TROUT? — Okay, okay. We ran a beautiful picture of four local fishermen who limited out on gorgeous Lake Trout last week. I took the picture myself, and I knew they were Trout. And I told my fingers to type the word Trout — but out came the word Perch on the top of Page 3 last week.

Sorry, Willard, Omar, Bud and Art. I may not be a fisherman, but I know the difference between a Perch and Trout — but my typing fingers don't!

There again, newspaper people's errors are out in front of everyone... forever. Plumbers can replumb their, surgeons can grow skin over theirs and farmers bury theirs. Oh, well...

NEW PRODUCTS — We talked about new offerings for consumers, in this space last week. A company is placing computerized catalog machines in supermarkets, beginning this month.

The machines, which cost $5000, can operate 24 hours a day. They allow shoppers to electronically browse through a video warehouse with 24 departments, six aisles per department and six shelves per aisle.

The "Touch-n-Save" machines are smaller than a refrigerator, and customers touch the pictures they wish to buy after browsing through the computer's memory. Cash, money orders, checks or credit cards are inserted — and the items are delivered by UPS a few days later. The machines can hold up to 54,000 pictures. Wave of the future?

DID YOU KNOW — Somebody asked me recently what the little "— 30 —" means separating these various thought gems. I'm not exactly sure of the origin, but — 30 — is an old printer's term meaning "the end." Reporters had to type — 30 — at the end of their stories or else the grumpy old Linotype operator would come grumping after them, looking for the next page in the story.

Some folks use their initials — JPR — for instance, but some forms of — 30 — are still used every day, even here.

WISH I'D SAID THAT — Our barber says, "Don't call it 'losing hair.' Think of it as 'gaining face!'"

'Cruise' Saturday night

Area drivers who want to show off their favorite set of wheel are invited to participate in the second annual "cruise night" in Caseville, slated for this Saturday, June 29, beginning at 7 p.m.

To avoid traffic congestion, a cruise route has been devised and maps will be distributed to participants at Caseville Beach.

Event organizers demand all traffic rules be obeyed for the activity, which offers area auto and truck enthusiasts to check out the variety of equipment at the event.

BYE, PUMPS: Maynard Rheinheimer of the Oil Division of Co-Operative Elevator Company of Pigeon gives the "old" gasoline pumps at the Pigeon station one last use, prior to major remodeling at the service center on Michigan Ave.

New tanks and pumps are being added this month, offering new and improved services.

2 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE

Funeral services were planned Tuesday afternoon for a Port Hope brother and sister who perished in a midnight Friday fire in their two-story farm home. Dean Reinke, Jr., 15, and Becky Reinke, 12, were killed when a fire of unknown origin engulfed their family's house on Redman Road near Minden Road, west of Port Hope.

Firemen from Port Hope and Harbor Beach fought the stubborn blaze. The children's father, Dean Reinke, Sr., had left the house to pick up his wife Terry from her job in Minden City. Police are investigating.

Funeral services were scheduled at 1 p.m. Tuesday from St. John's Lutheran Church, Port Hope.

BREWSTER SHAW FLIES AGAIN

Cass City native Brewster Shaw, Jr., will again blast off into outer space this November, commanding the space shuttle Discovery.

His six-day mission is set to begin Nov. 8, to deploy three satellites and conduct tests for making drugs. Australia and Mexico own two of the communications satellites, while the third will improve U.S. Navy communications.

Shaw, 39, spent 10 days in orbit commanding the shuttle Columbia in November, 1983. None of the other six crewmen have been announced for the November flight, to be preceded by two other shuttle journeys.

TUSCOLA HEALTH HELP CUT

Tuscola County's rocky budget will dramatically cut this year's public health services budget — and will nearly eliminate such aid in 1985-86.

Cuts totaling $70,000 were trimmed from the present budget last week following a $75,000 reduction in January and a $60,000 drop in home health service revenues. Agency Director John Niederhauser is quitting his post July 1 to assume fulltime duties with the Lapeer County Health Department.

Whether or not layoffs will continue or expand will be decided in part by the 1.5-mill request for county operations being decided by Tuscola County voters Sept. 10, County Commissioners say.

SENIOR CENTER FUNDING

Senior citizen centers in Bad Axe and Sandusky have been awarded state grants totaling $24,120 for renovation and modernization, as part of $1.2 million in funding by the State Commission on Services to the Aging.

The local centers will get the one-time grant through the Thumb Area Commission on Aging, centered in Cass City.

WALBRO MAKES NEWS TWICE

A $35,300 state grant has been approved for the Village of Cass City, to make improvements necessary for the expansion of the Walbro Corporation, according to a joint announcement by State Rep. Dick Allen (R-Caro) and State Sen. James Barcia (D-Bay City).

The Michigan Department of Commerce Business and Community Development grant will allow paying of Schell Street, where the new Walbro expansion will increase traffic levels. Walbro expects to add 10 new full-time manufacturing jobs.

A Walbro sister plant, Walbro Corp. Automotive of Caro, has received a U.S. Department of Defense contract worth $42,120 to provide electrical fuel pumps for use by the U.S. military services. The grant was announced last week by the Defense Logistics Agency in Washington, D.C.

MINISTER, DSS NEGOTIATING

Akron minister Rev. Donald Milano and his wife Regina are still discussing a settlement to their desire to teach their children at home, in opposition to state requirements that all children be educated by persons with state teaching certification.

About 200 Milano family supporters appeared last week at the Tuscola County Courthouse during pre-trial hearings in probate court, on state Department of Social Services charges that the family has not enrolled their children in either public or state-approved non-public schools.

"It seems like we've come close to an agreement that could lead to dismissal of the case," their attorney Brian Thiede said last week.

POLICE BLOTTER NEWS

■ A tractor blade link adjuster valued at about $200 was reported missing from a shed owned by Clayton Parrish of Kinde. He told Huron County Sheriff's Deputies the adjuster was stolen sometime within the past two weeks.

■ Two of the three guns stolen recently from the residence of Caseville Police Officer Larry Wilding have been recovered. Police Chief Jack Jensen said a suspect was arrested this week in Madison Heights and will be charged with possession of stolen property and drug possession, and the guns were recovered. A description of the suspect's car was seen near Wilding's address prior to the theft.

COURT PROCEEDINGS

■ Sentencing for Melba Garza, 25 of Caro, is set for Friday, July 12 in Huron County Circuit Court, for her part in the 1976 murder of Caro babysitter Robin Adams. Miss Garza's plea of no contest to accessory to murder after the fact had been scheduled for sentencing Friday, but was postponed by Huron County Circuit Judge M. Richard Knoblock on requests from prosecution and defense attorneys. Her original first-degree murder charge was dropped in a plea bargain, after she cooperated with police.

Her brother, Melvin Garza, 28 of Vassar, was sentenced to life in prison with no parole earlier this year for his first-degree murder conviction in Adams' death.

■ Philip Shepherd, 20 of Elkton, pled guilty to larceny in a building last week, in connection with the theft of two microwave ovens, coffee makers, and air purifier and other items from teacher's lounges at Elkton - Pigeon - Bay Port Schools. Sentencing is set for Friday, Aug. 2, before Judge Knoblock. Maximum penalty is four years in prison, a $2000 fine or both.

■ A lawsuit by Glenn and Ethel Craig of Elkton against Dr. Jack Ross, DDS, of Bad Axe, was settled out of court for an unannounced amount. The couple had filed suit in Circuit Court, saying Dr. Ross had caused great pain and suffering, embarrassment and other charges relating to treatment of Glenn Craig in 1981. The couple had sought more than $10,000. Recent local determinations and pleadings in the Huron County District Courtroom of John Schubel include:

■ Louis Short, 17 of Kinde, was found guilty of turling, which damages lawns or property of others, in connection with damage to a Uby homeowner's property May 29. Short was sentenced to five days in jail, ordered to pay $150 fines and costs and will make $50 restitution;

■ Richard Graf, 31 of Bay Port, Richard Nitz, 22 of Sebawaing, and Bryan Dickinson, 19 of Kinde, each pled guilty to reduced charges of impaired driving; all were ordered to pay $400 fines and costs and lose driving privileges for 90 days;

■ Dennis Butch, 17 of Kinde, pled guilty to simple larceny, and was fined $75 plus costs, for the June 7 shoplifting from the Port Austin IGA Foodliner;

■ Timothy Chappel, 24 of Kinde, pled guilty to drunken driving; was fined $650, sentenced to 30 days in jail and loses driving rights for two years, and

■ Wade Witherspoon, 18 of Bay Port, was found guilty of possession of marijuana; sentenced to 15 days in jail and ordered to pay $250 fines and costs, following a May 4 incident in Pigeon.

Everyone needs day of rest

Recently, a Detroit columnist wrote about how he and his wife were celebrating "Gladys Day." Don Jensen's "Retirement Diary" in the Detroit Free Press pointed out he and his wife Bev have never met "Gladys," but her habits are well known in the Jensen household.

It seems an aunt on the wife's side of a neighbor's family (obviously named Gladys) was the laziest woman alive. She never made her bed, washed a dish or vacuumed a rug. She was perpetually exhausted from doing nothing, so she just relaxed and lounged around the house. Most days she didn't even bother to get dressed.

Gladys was a very pleasant, good-natured aunt. Everyone liked her except when it was their turn to go over and straighten up her house. But because of her habits, a day was named after her — which is more than can be said for most presidents of these United States, Don Jensen points out.

Whenever one of his friends tires of the rat race, he or she has a "Gladys Day" — 24 hours of doing nothing.

Jensen thought he and his wife really didn't need a Gladys Day, since they have been retired for nearly five years. Isn't retirement enough of a relaxation, they thought? Then he thought a while, and realized, "we've hardly had time for rest since we quit full-time employment for the so-called pleasures of unlimited leisure."

So they picked a Saturday to do just that — nothing.

They soon realized that doing nothing is difficult — which is why Gladys is such a unique human being (if she really exists.)

They did get dressed, but just into bathing suits. They walked on the beach, watched a few waves, read the paper and did as little else as they could. They ate food off the shelf — dry cereal — and left the dirty bowls in the sink. A few warmed-up leftovers in the microwave oven (eaten off paper plates) comprised dinner.

Even when the mail came, the Jensens threw the bills on the desk, and threw much other mail away. Then they took a nap. Gladys would have been proud.

The next day, there was much work to do — cooking, washing, writing, shopping, gardening, etc. But they recommend at least one Gladys Day for everyone, at least annually. Perhaps, they say, the day after Christmas or another big holiday. Just take some time to spend time doing nothing at all.

For the retired Jensens, it was an experience of 24 hours that typifies what they thought retirement would be — before they found out how busy they really were.

For other people, a Gladys Day would recharge tired batteries and maybe put a new, fresh perspective on some things. In this rat-race world, Gladys sounds like an interesting person — although she's definitely in the minority in small, busy towns such as these in the Thumb.

RECOLLECTIONS
By-Gone Days

By GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

For the last three weekends, I've gone to open houses for graduates from area high schools. Last Saturday night, I was at Jodi Kay Kuhl's open house in Bay Port. There were a lot of people there and I didn't know nearly all of them, but I knew enough so I felt right at home.

I had a nice talk with Don Armbruster. His Dad and I had some heifers on pasture on a farm just north of our place and we got several mixed up. His Dad had to straighten us out and I wished he would have gotten the one we had mixed up, because she was always breaking out and wasn't the best cow either.

I talked with Raymond Menzel. He has worked in the Quarry for a long time. But I was there before he was.

I always worked on the farm 'til I wanted to do something else. Once my Dad worked in the Quarry a lot, so he got me a job there. In 1930, the depression was just started, but the Quarry still hired a few men.

They were building a railroad out to the lake to ship stones by the water. The first day I was there, the boss sent me up in the old crusher to help put in some screens. When I got up there, I told the men why I was up there and wondered what I should do. They told me I was supposed to look out the window to see if the boss was coming.

Well, my Dad had told me that whenever a new man came on, they sent you for a skyhook or a box stretcher or to dust the electric wires so the juice could get through, or to shovel smoke.

There was a lot of fine dust that used to pile up from the crushed stone and they called that smoke. And I helped shovel a lot of it.

Those men I was supposed to help sent me down to the shop for a bolt and told me what size they wanted. So I went down and asked for it and they showed me where the bolts were. I picked out the right size and took it back, and they sent me for another one.

I guess I went back and forth at least 10 times that day. The next day I did some more jobs. I shoveled dirt and worked on the train track and drove a team of horses, until finally I got stuck with a job as a ground man cleaning up stones that they spilled when they loaded up the stone cars, to haul them to the crusher with the little steam engines.

Andrew Brad was my partner. When the steam shovel they used to load the cars for loading up the cinders used to fly out of the smoke stack, the little balls of fire would land in your pockets and get into your boots and just burn 'til you either got them out or until they cooled off!

Andy once got mad and told me if I wasn't so young he'd hit me. And finally I told him to get on his side of the track and shut his mouth or I'd knock him down, even if he was an old man.

In Prov. 6:27 it says, "Can a man take fire in his bosom and his cloths not be burned?" Well, I had a hot cinder go into my shirt front and go all the way down and fall out of my pant leg. My clothes didn't burn, but that cinder burned all the way down.

SINCERELY YOURS,
GEORGE KEIM

FORE!
You should have stood in bed

By MAVIS PECHETTE

Some people can't begin the day until they check out the horoscope in the morning paper. Others just barge right through the day, come what may. When things go awry, they blame it on something else when all along, they "should have stood in bed."

Perhaps it is a trend of the times or maybe we are just hearing more bad luck stories lately. CONSIDER THESE

Some folks who recently moved to the area decided to check out one of the local parks. When they were ready to leave they discovered the only set of keys were locked inside their car.

A golfer needed to use the restroom facilities on the course. As she was ready to exit, the golf ball fell from her hand, bounced high from the cement floor and landed with a splash in the stool. Anyone have a retriever?

Two friends were meeting for lunch at a midpoint between their homes. As one was preparing to depart, the back window shattered. The temporary repairs were made. Telephone calls were fruitless but finally a message was left at the designated restaurant. A couple hours later, the two met and spent the rest of the day visiting before each returned home.

Undaunted by that experience, the two arranged another luncheon date a year later. This time the trunk of the pair was late. When she had trouble closing the trunk of her car and found she was running late she tried phoning. But her friend had left home so no luck on that score. Enroute to the meeting place, after getting help with the trunk, our driver made a wrong turn. She stopped to ask directions, was told to travel roads she didn't know, and ended up lost again. Finally she did get to familiar territory. Luckily, the place chosen for lunch served all afternoon so the two didn't miss out after all.

Apparently a whole group did miss out on something. A meeting place had been reserved and a janitor was involved. He appeared at the appointed time and waited and waited. He rechecked his assignment, but when an hour and a half had passed and no one else showed up, he went home.

It's a softball game and the visiting team can see a victory in sight. It has a 15-10 lead in the bottom of the ninth inning. But then the pitcher gets a little wild, batters become runners, and the first thing you know it's 16-15 and the game is over. Oh well, there will be another day and another game. The farmer has his field sprayed and worked up. Just as he pulls in with a tractor and a drill full of seed the skies open and down comes a torrent of rain.

These are all minor catastrophes in comparison to some of the recent events in our world. But doesn't it make you wonder if perhaps the horoscope for the day should have read, "You should have stood in bed."

Speaking of the school millage

THE TIMING OF THINGS sometimes surprises me. Little did I know when submitting last week's article on stereotyping ethnic groups that two days after submitting it (and four days before it reached the public) a person from Pigeon would be held up at gun point by two ethnic minorities in Detroit and robbed of 4300 cash and other personal items.

In talking to the parents of the victim I discovered the situation to be very serious, as the assailants had the hammer of the gun cocked during the assault and the slightest move could have been the end of a very productive life. Does this make me want to change my story of last week?

I learned some good lessons in the summer of 1967 — the summer of the famed Detroit riots. I worked that summer in the inner city of Detroit for my second cousin, who pastored the Cass Avenue United Methodist Church for 25 years. I lived through those riots and witnessed the destruction and held children in my arms who no longer had a home to return to. And I saw in my cousin a deep love for these people, despite the destruction by a few.

You may say, "Well, big deal! What did it cost the guy? Did they touch his church?" No, they did not touch the church or the community center and relief center belonging to the church. They respected the work he did.

But the real lesson came about five years later. My cousin's teenage son was visiting a drug addict he had been witnessing to and as he entered the guy's apartment, the guy shot him dead. Now my cousin had about nine children, almost all of whom were left on his doorstep as babies by parents who could not care for them. But he had one son of his own — until this addict shot him.

Now it had cost him personally. Did he still love the people?

DEAR EDITOR:

I was really upset when I read last week's Sound-off in your paper. I also realize that this is not the paper's fault for printing such articles and that it is the type of column where a person can call in their gripes or whatever they wish to.

I would like to comment on the articles concerning the airport in Caseville. In one article they talked about Caseville having another circus instead of a meeting. Most people enjoy going to a circus — I am really sorry this person did not enjoy him or herself.

In one sentence they talked about 80 opponents being the majority of the people who are against the airport and in the next sentence they talk about the election. Maybe they should refresh their memory and think back on that election and remember the amount of people who turned out. It was definitely more than 80 people.

The article talked about the riff-raff monopolizing the meeting with terror tactics, and accused the Concerned Citizens of Caseville of programming these people.

Thank you,
Geraldine Simmons

Attend the Church of Your Choice This Sunday and Every Sunday

WE MUST HELP MAINTAIN
OUR NATION'S FREEDOM

Very few of us will ever inherit anything of great value, and yet we are all the recipients of the finest legacy known to mankind: freedom. The right of people to determine their own destinies has been often attempted but seldom attained, and we should never forget that this nation was founded by our courageous forebears who valued freedom above life itself. In the very act of securing it, they arranged for all succeeding generations, including ours, to reap the benefits of their hard-won freedom. Their faith in God gave them the strength and determination to succeed, and you can best honor them by reaffirming your own faith. Attend the Church of your choice and give thanks to God for this birthright of freedom; and be ever prepared to defend it.

Where liberty dwells,
there is my country.
—Benjamin Franklin

"Whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein... this man shall be blessed in his deed."

TTLM Vespers begin

The series of Vesper services sponsored by Top-of-the-Thumb Leisure Ministries will open on Wednesday, June 26 at 8 p.m. and concludes with a social hour following the service.

Dr. Timothy R. Hickey will be featured speaker. He is Senior Minister at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Rochester, heading a staff of over 20 workers and ministering to the 2,500 members. Dr. Hickey is very active in United Methodist work as a member of various boards and committees. He is also involved in community service in the Oakland County area. He has lectured throughout the United States, in Great Britain and India.

As an annual participant in the TTLM Vesper series, Dr. Hickey is well-known in the Thumb area. His good friend, Rev. Robert Garrett of Port Austin, will serve as worship leader for the Wednesday evening service.

Members of the Pinnebog United Methodist Church and Port Austin United Protestant Church will serve refreshments for the fellowship time.

On Wednesday, July 3, Pastor Raymond Orth of Cross Lutheran Church in Pigeon will speak at the Vesper service.

There is no admission charge but an offering is received at each service. TTLM is an ecumenical organization sponsored by 38 churches in Huron County. Its services and programs are open to all residents and vacationers.

Following a potluck dinner, a program was presented. Dale Wertz, accompanied by Mrs. Calvin Kaufman, led in group singing. Mrs. Jean Bauman favored with a dramatic humorous reading. A tribute to Rev. Iris was given by Redford Maust, Mark Wolf and William Proffitt. A mens' quartet of Armond Herford, Clarence Knechtel, Chris Schlicker, a contemporary Christian singer and musician from the Kilmanagh area, will perform at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church during its Saturday evening service on June 29 at 7:30 p.m.

She will lead the worship and present a program of music and meditation under the theme of "You Are the Light of the World."

Area families are invited to come and bring friends, as it will be a worship experience for the whole family to enjoy, according to Pastor Randall P. Schultz.

COACH CHAT: Baylor-bound, Laker All-State volleyball player Shelly Ginter last week had the opportunity to again talk with her collegiate mentor.

Ginter's talents were noticed by Casteel during a similar camp last summer, as well as another such event at Western Michigan University last year.

EDITOR'S NOTE: An investigation was conducted by the Caseville Police Department, responding to a SOUND-OFF question last week. Two persons were observed walking in Caseville on the evening in question, when they spoke with police. There is no violation in walking toward a person's car. One party said he was going to sleep in his vehicle, but apparently then left Caseville.

Good luck, Sharon, in the Junior Miss Pageant.

I think Laker Junior High teachers are a little bit too high. It's our reputation. I don't think it's any of their business what we do during our vacation. They have their problems and we have ours. I think they should stick to theirs. Signed, a LJK student.
I'd like to wish Missy M. a belated happy 13th birthday. Signed, Tina K.

Karls

Of course he did! If God could offer up His only Son for these people, so could my cousin offer up his only son. Do you think my cousin felt the pain? Do you think God felt the pain?!! For the record, the addict who shot this boy was white. But skin color does not determine personal worth. Nor does it warrant stereotyping. I certainly do not identify with that white guy -- except that I am white too.

AGAIN, TIMING IS SURPRISING! What has happened to the black culture over the past 40 years in America reminds me of the recent Laker millage defeat. Everyone knows I need to be very sensitive on this issue because I am not a property owner in our school district (the church owns our house) and it would be easier for me to vote for any millage increase because it would cost me nothing.

Sandy and I worked my way through seminary by working for wealthy Jews in Chicago's northern suburb of Highland Park. One year we were living as maids-babysitters-fix-it-all in a mansion owned by a Jewish lawyer. The next year we were the security and help for a large synagogue overlooking Lake Michigan. We learned a great deal about the present day Jewish culture.

When a Jewish parent introduces his or her children, it oftentimes comes out like this: "The five year old is the doctor and the two year old is the lawyer."

Highland Park, Ill. is about 85% Jewish. Why? Because in the years after World War II when America was financially regrouping, the northern suburbs of Chicago were closed to Jews and blacks moving in. Skokie and Highland Park were the first suburbs to open their real estate to Jews, so today they have a large percentage of them.

In those early years after the war the two most discriminated groups in America were the blacks and the Jews. Forty years later the Jewish standard of living has vaulted from the bottom to the top of our culture, while the standard for blacks has changed some but not much. What is the difference?

One may point to the fact that appearance always gives away a black, but Jews can sneak around a racial barrier. But this does not explain the large leap of a whole cultural group in financial status and influence. What does explain that leap is in a word -- EDUCATION!

Education is at the heart of Jewish culture. The five year old doctor and two year old lawyer reveal a mind set. Throughout history the Jewish children centered their lives on rigorous academic training in the Torah and Hebrew language-history in preparation for their bar mitzvah (boys) or bat mitzvah (girls) or initiation of 13 year olds into adulthood. It comes as little surprise how a people with education so engrained in their culture could vault from the social bottom to the social top of American culture -- because American culture is based heavily on education! (Did I make that clear enough?!!)

On the other hand, education of a formal nature is not part of the history of the black culture. So their journey to financial security and influence is difficult and for many impossible.

Now we come to the Laker millage proposal. I understand the power of education. My dad was the son of an elementary school janitor and the oldest of five sons. He was the only son to go beyond high school and worked his way through college and law school. He was the only son to hold a job other than as a janitor or assembly line type job. This is not to say that these jobs are demeaning. It is to say that lack of education limits choices and opportunities. Small wonder why my dad ensured each of his four children learned the value of an education and had a minimum of eight years of college -- and all his brothers' children hold college degrees.

We live in a different world than 40 years ago. Lack of an outstanding educational system 40 years ago in a farming community could still bring community prosperity. But I believe those days are over.

I definitely need more information on the Laker school system -- and no doubt will get it soon after this article comes out. But I am concerned about the quality of education in our school district (indeed, in the whole Thumb area) and wonder whether a millage hike would do anything about such quality.

I mean, the Bad Axe newspaper finds it big news to discover someone in the whole Thumb area who is a National Merit quarter-finalist. My high school graduating class had four finalists and a whole slew of semi and quarter-finalists. And there are far more graduating students in the Thumb than in my graduating class.

This seems to indicate a problem not so much with the educational system as with the community mind-set about education in the Thumb.

Woods and Waters

By DUANE GUENTHER

The fishery

My grandpa, Pete DeFord, was a mystical sort of man. Although he died when I was just 12 years old, his memory is kept alive by the countless stories spun by my Mom and Aunt Tress.

Grandpa Pete was a true outdoorsman. Living on what the land and water had to offer, he plied his skills in the rough-tough trade of commercial fishing. His headquarters was located at Point Lookout, just across the Bay from where I now live, and I often ponder how my life may have differed if my grandpa had not been lured to the shores of the Great Lakes and the fishery it held.

Today, the Great Lakes fishery is a multi-million dollar business, but it has not always been that way. Like the stock market, it has been marked with highs and lows, and it's interesting how closely the environment and economics of the region are related to the activity in and around the lakes.

The Indians and first settlers who made their homes in the vicinity of the Great Lakes fished mainly on a subsistence basis. That is, they caught fish to eat, and although some may have been traded, for the most part fishing was not big business.

Commercial fishing, as we now know it, began in the early 1800s and reached its peak in the early to mid-1900s.

The American Fur Company is the first commercial fishery of record, plying its trade on Lake Superior in 1835. They set up numerous fish stations and connected them with barrel works. Once the fish were caught, they were salted and stored in barrels to be shipped to market at a later date.

It wasn't long before the Great Lakes began to suffer from the increased human pressure on its fishery.

The first dramatic changes in fish population came in the form of overharvesting. Fishermen, like miners and loggers, were convinced that their resources were inexhaustible, and fished, mined and logged accordingly.

It wasn't long before the then-ample supplies of lake trout, whitefish and lake herring were depleted to a state of near extinction. In 1870, over 4 million pounds of lake trout were caught on Lake Superior alone, a record that was never matched again.

At the turn of the century, Lake Huron's catch was measured at close to 3 million pounds, and was made up mostly of whitefish, lake trout and suckers. By the end of the early 1900s, the fish stock in the Great Lakes was reduced to a state that caused many commercial fishing operations to close their doors.

Around 1940, the remaining fish stock, now slowly recuperating in the lake's depths, were further depleted by a new stress to the fishery. The sea lamprey, a parasitic eel, began to enter the Great Lakes via the Erie and Welland Canals.

One thing can be said for the lamprey, it had good taste, for as soon as it invaded our waters, it attacked the lake trout and whitefish population with a zeal befitting the best of gourmets.

At the same time the lamprey was running rampant in the Great Lakes fishery, the water quality that supported those fish began to decline. As the population around the lakes increased, the regional economy grew and with it came discharges from logging, dredging, industries, and municipalities.

In 1985 the Great Lakes fishery stands as a very important aspect to Michigan and the surrounding states total economic outlook.

By 1960, phosphorus pollution in Lake Erie had seriously affected the fish population causing the disappearance of walleyes and the flourishing of carp.

But, the '60s also brought about the beginning of a lamprey control problem. Lampicide, a chemical developed in the laboratories, proved to be an effective measure in reducing the numbers of the salt water invader.

With the lamprey numbers diminishing, the way was paved for the most intensive trout and salmon stocking programs in history. Cohos, the first fish to arrive, were quickly followed by Chinooks, Kokanees, Pinks and even Atlantics.

Recreation, or sport fishing, began to flourish, and from its first recorded existence in 1915, off the piers of Chicago, it grew to staggering heights.

The 1970s brought investments in wastewater treatment, and stronger anti-pollution laws, causing Lake Erie to rebound with a thriving commercial and recreational fishery. But the '70s also brought a new threat — the discovery of toxic substances like PCBs and PBBs.

The 1980s found the Indians clamoring for fishing rights promised in ancient treaties, and the lake trout population took another nose-dive through indiscriminate gill-netting.

In 1985, the Great Lakes fishery stands as a very important aspect to Michigan and the surrounding states total economy outlook. The recreational fishery is worth about $1 billion to the region's economy according to a study done by the Great Lakes Fishery Commission in Ann Arbor.

Add to that the more than $160 million worth of fish caught by the 600 commercial fishermen still in existence and you project an economic value that rivals most other industries in the area.

The lakes have come a long way since my Grandpa Pete sailed the waters off Charity Islands. Plagued with commercial overharvesting, sea lampreys, a massive sports fishery buildup, toxic substances, unlimited Indian fishing rights, and most recently, plans to divert the very waters that support the greatest fishery in the world, one wonders if it will survive?

I'm inclined to think so. After all, they're the Great Lakes, aren't they?
