Teacher’s warranty offer is special!

You’ve got to give credit to Bay City teacher Tom Drummond for giving his students something to think about. He’s managed to give them something to think about, and—shucks—we must feel special. They’ve understood the chemistry class.

At least one student idea is a very special one: success in future chemistry classes that you don’t have to understand right now. That’s a success that gives you high marks in middle school and good marks in high school.

We’ve found that Drummond says the sinister is sincere. He wants to let students know they’re not alone. He wants to leave his free classes new challenges. His students say his classes always include science examples and anecdotes to get the point across.

Drummond must be getting a good message through the hands of these Bay City School students.

He has been chosen as Bay City’s Teacher of the Year. In the competition sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education.

Drummond students feel comfortable coming back to his room to “just talk” about what they’re learning in college or trade work.

My job is not to teach chemistry, but to make (students) aware of their abilities,” Drummond says. He loves—actively working with younger students, observing the sensation, what’s working and wondering of wonder they find in learning.

We all remember special teachers in our own lives, people who helped us on extra mile and who thought Bay City girls, and many other girls, have many more of what they call “just talk”.

SCHOOL, in the main, is a business,” Drummond told the Bay City Times.

BY DUANE GUENTHER

The rites of spring have been met, and all Michigan, Binderer enthussiasts are taking part in a glorious event—Shoot time.

Shooting has been a slow process but the birds have come alive, thousands of songbirds are now filling the area. The birds are starting to build their nests, while the trees are starting to leaf out. The berries and fruits are starting to ripen. The birds are starting to fly south for the winter.

I found the lack of shooting a bit disappointing, but the birds are coming in to feed on the berries and fruits.

I also found the lack of shooting a bit disappointing, but the birds are coming in to feed on the berries and fruits.

The shooting was not as good as expected, but the birds were coming in to feed on the berries and fruits.
