Pigeon stores to adopt senior savings program individually

The surprising announce

Pigeon, Michigan's largest city, is going to adopt a community-wide program
to provide a savings plan for senior citizens. The program will be available to those over 65 years of age. The details of the program will be announced in the near future.

Observations by Co-publisher Marc Rumics
And anybody else can get to write the nice things we do, the things we're doing... We're develoing pigeon's potential and things that are happening.

Keeping you informed
We would like to report on
recent developments:
The Michigan State Police
have arrested a man
suspected of robbing a local bank.

In this issue
Let's face it. Many people will really read it even though it's from U.S. Senator
Gus Deukmejian.

And, why is the government upsetting people? It seems that the government is becoming less responsive
to the needs of the people.

Breaking Ground

Pigeon Telephone Company's new building will be completed in the near future.

Stokan's departure to be Finkbeiner's gain

And if you're wondering... andhow many of the people there were very well done andare important to us, whether we graduate this year or haven'twon the state of a school run for 40 years.

For the benefit of those whohave not attended all thework to be done on thefront of things, I'm going toaddress my audience now.

Stokan's departure is tobe Finkbeiner's gain.

Robert Finkbeiner, the newSuperintendent of PigeonSchool District.

BACKGROUND: After serv

Robert Finkbeiner served in the U.S. Air Force for 20 years, retiring as a Colonel.

Finkbeiner has been in the education field for 20 years, serving as principal of several schools.

Finkbeiner's experience in the field of education includes serving as principal of several schools.

Finkbeiner was selected to lead the Pigeon Schools after a nationwide search.

Stokan's departure is a natural transition to a new administration under Finkbeiner.

Taking the helm of the district,

Stokan is moved to a support role under Finkbeiner.

Said Stokan: "This is a hard decision for me, but I believe it's the best decision for the district. I hope to work with Finkbeiner and the new administration to ensure a smooth transition."

JUNE 12, 1918

Some news came from the front lines to those who remained behind. News of the announce of the death of a son, W. A. Scriber's only two years old, came to his two sisters, Mary and Grace. There were nine other children in the Scriber family who had gone away to war. One wonders now how they survived.

Laker High sends 29th Class into the world out there

The Progress Advance — Wednesday, June 8 to Tuesday, June 14, 1988 — 21

Laker High School's Class of 1988 celebrated their graduation with a ceremony that signified the transition into the real world. The Principal, Mr. J. O. Johnson, delivered a speech that highlighted the students' accomplishments and encouraged them to be successful in their future endeavors.

"We have prepared you for this day," he said. "You have earned the right to leave this campus and pursue your dreams."

The graduation ceremony was a momentous occasion for the students, as they were no longer just high school students but were now stepping into the world of adulthood. The Principal emphasized the importance of continued education and personal growth.

"Remember," he advised, "education is not just about memorizing facts. It's about critical thinking, creativity, and problem-solving."

The graduating class was comprised of 29 students, a testament to the strong academics and extracurricular activities offered at Laker High. The principal described the Class of 1988 as a group of exceptional students who had made a significant impact on the school.

"You have left a legacy," he said. "Your achievements are a testament to the dedication and hard work of all those involved in education here at Laker High."

The Principal concluded his speech with words of encouragement and hope, reminding the graduates that life would not always be easy but that they were capable of overcoming any challenge.

"The future is yours to shape," he said. "Embrace the opportunities that come your way, and never let anyone tell you that you cannot achieve your dreams."

The students were then presented with their diplomas, symbolizing their transition from high school to the next chapter of their lives. The ceremony was accompanied by music and heartfelt speeches from faculty members.

"We are proud of you," said one teacher. "You have shown us what determination and hard work can achieve."

The graduation ceremony marked the end of one journey and the beginning of another. The Class of 1988 was ready to take on the challenges of the real world, armed with the knowledge and skills acquired during their high school years.

"We wish you all the best in your future endeavors," the Principal concluded. "May your dreams come true, and may your paths in life be bright and fulfilling.

Don’t Skimp When You Buy Garden Hose!

By ED HUTCHISON

Few tools suffer as much abuse as garden hoses. Who hasn’t linted up to stop the water temporarily? Or run over the coupling with the car? Or sat water in a hot, sunny day?

It’s almost as if garden hoses were bred to be abused, so ordinary and flimsy it seems. One day it runs and the next day you mumble all the way to the hardware store for a replacement.

Americans are nothing if not thrifty. This year, why not buy a few more garden hoses? That’s enough to circle Planet Earth 11 times. We bought much last year and chances are, we’ll buy that much in 1999 and the year after.

America’s national pastime is conspicuous to us because we shirk its failures. Or we cheaply ship final.

Now, as the watering season heats up with the onset of summer, consider what Stephen C. Saltzer has to say. He is the hose manager for Anchor Swiss of Washington, Ohio, one of the largest hose manufacturers in the United States.

DIFFERENT GRADES AVAILABLE. Saltzer says there are four grades widely available for residential use: "Extra highway," "Super highway," and "Best." They range in price from $1.35 to $240 for a 50-foot length, with price differences being significant.

Many of the price, performance, and longevity is in the material and how they are put together. That hose looks thick and carry water where the aesthetics count.

The construction typically consists of three parts. At the end of the hose is a brass or copper tube that is the reinforcement to give the tube the strength and on the outside is the material that is applied. The reinforcement is especially important for glass the hose must withstand. On the quality of the hose, it consisted two or more layers of fabric or wire. The number of layers of fabric is dependent on the hose size. For a hose to be made, it is first braided, the filling strength, and ability to rest.

Hoses are designed so that they have a thick layer of material to withstand the weight of water and a thin coating to protect them. They burn, freeze and kink easily. One season can put a serious dent in its life.

Saltzer said it is a popular grade, especially for commercial patrons and homeowners who are not as fussy about the hose's look. "COGOO" hose has a layer of reinforcing, but it does not break as easily. This hose is shorter, lighter and less expensive than some others and is more suitable for limited use.

The three grades of hose, however, are the most common. "Extra highway" hose is a more durable hose, better suited for commercial use, but it is also more expensive. "Super highway" hose is a bit less expensive than "Extra highway," but it is still more expensive than "Best" grade hose.

Cost should never be the deciding factor when choosing a hose. It is important to consider the quality and durability of the hose when making your purchase. The right hose can save you money in the long run by providing longer use and fewer replacements.

The Black Days of Spring

It was the beginning of a whitehead disaster in the Spring and the need for garden hoses. The first signs of spring were evident and the lawns were beginning to grow. Soon, the hot sun would dry out the soil and the water would be needed to keep the plants healthy.

We had arrived at a crucial period in the garden hose market, where the supply of hoses would be limited. The demand for hoses was high, but the supply was low. We needed to make sure we had enough hoses to meet the demand.

In order to prepare for this season, we had to ensure that we had the right type of hose in stock. We needed a hose that was strong enough to withstand the hot sun and still deliver the water to the plants.

To accommodate this demand, we decided to expand our hose inventory. We reached out to our suppliers and ordered more hoses. We also contacted our customers to let them know that we were increasing our inventory.

As the season progressed, we saw an increase in the number of hoses being sold. Our customers were happy with the quality of the hose and the reliability of our delivery.

In the end, we were able to meet the demand for hoses and ensure that our customers were satisfied. We learned that planning ahead and having a strong relationship with suppliers can make a big difference in meeting the needs of a busy season.

The Black Days of Spring

A Black Fly’s life begins as a half-inch larva hatched from a spray of fresh, clean, fast-moving water. This larva, or "pupa", spends its time feeding and growing in the water. As it matures, it pupates, or transforms into a pupa, just below the surface of the water.

The pupa is then ready to transform into an adult fly. The pupa sheds its outer skin, or "exuviae", and transforms into an adult fly. This transformation is known as "emergence".

The adult fly then emerges from the water and begins to fly, seeking a mate and a place to lay its eggs. The life cycle of the Black Fly begins anew, with the larva emerging from the pupa to start the cycle all over again.

This cycle is repeated throughout the year, with the Black Fly's life cycle consisting of four stages: egg, larva, pupa, and adult. The Black Fly is an important part of the ecosystem, serving as a vital source of protein for many other species.

The adult fly then emerges from the water and begins to fly, seeking a mate and a place to lay its eggs. The life cycle of the BlackFly begins anew, with the larva emerging from the pupa to start the cycle all over again.

This cycle is repeated throughout the year, with the Black Fly’s life cycle consisting of four stages: egg, larva, pupa, and adult. The Black Fly is an important part of the ecosystem, serving as a vital source of protein for many other species.

Sound-Off 453-2323

I just read the article in the school newsletter about the bus driver and I agree, the drivers are doing an excellent job pulling our students door to door and from school safely. I would like to just send a kind word to the S.C.U.A. with the help of the driver behind the wheel of our program.

The best interest we can make is in the investment in our children through our schools.

We should help them every step of the way to make sure our children have the best opportunity without parents, brothers and sisters, have them.

Thank you.

Yours truly,

The Fourth-Grader

When I come to Fagan, I am in for a shock. The people were so nice. I actually saw a few friends. I wish we had more time to make sure the people and not worry about where we live. I hope you Fagan people never change because I like this town.

Sincerely,

Your friend for life,

The Fifth-Grader
