

Elkton native active in Colorado ski resort

The Village at Breckenridge, a $100 million resort complex at the base of the Breckenridge Ski Area in Summit, Colo., is being sold to Breckenridge Management Corp. of St. Louis, Mo.

Ronald W. Tuschmidt and Bill L. Bruce of St. Louis have assumed control and are acquiring the four-season resort. Mrs. Tuschmidt is the former Carol Bixler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard Bixler of Elkton.

Tuschmidt, a 46-year-old lifelong resident of St. Louis, has for 28 years owned and operated Aeronics, Inc., a marketing and consulting firm with interests in aerospace manufacturing, apartments, office buildings, shopping centers and resort properties.

He is a director and major stockholder of Missouri State bank and has been a property owner in Breckenridge since 1978. He and his wife Carol will be residing in Breckenridge, which Tuschmidt will oversee management of the resort complex.

His wife, Carol, age 39, with 10 years of advertising and public relations experience, will also be actively involved in the resort operation as its Director of Special Events.

The Village at Breckenridge is situated on 18 1/2 acres at the base of Peak Nine, one of three ski mountains that comprise the Breckenridge Ski Area.

The Village resort complex consists of the 160-room Hotel Breckenridge (an all-suite hotel). The Lodge (a 60-room hotel) and 235 condominiums, including studios and one-two or three-bedroom units.

In addition, it includes several restaurants and lounges, many shops, a live theater, a cinema, health clubs, conference and banquet facilities for up to 500 persons, as well as above and below-ground parking.

The complex surrounds the Maggie Pond (final resting place of mining ore boats in 1942) with the Blue River weaving its path throughout the grounds. A master plan for the Village at Breckenridge and nine acres of undeveloped land is under study and expected to be completed within months.

Caseville designs for future

Business and property owners, citizens, public officials and community leaders will attend two events jointly this week, developed by Caseville and Design Michigan's "Community Design Advisory Program" (CDAP) to improve the community and its commercial district through good design.

First, meetings...

A Town meeting, set for this Thursday, June 16, will feature an exhibit and presentation by the CDAP design team, illustrating their design analysis of the community. They plan to show how the good design of buildings, interiors, landscape and graphics can help local business and government improve the image and function of the community and market area.

Then, clinic...

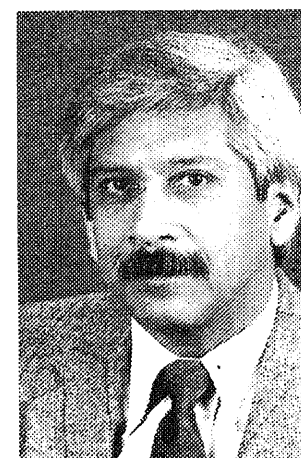

A Walk-in Clinic scheduled for Friday, June 17 will allow downtown business and local government to meet individually with professional designers and receive counseling tailored to their individual design needs.

One of three

Caseville was one of three Michigan communities selected by a statewide committee to be awarded the CDAP project.

The Town meeting and Walk-in Clinic cap a month-long process of community design analysis and recommendations which are designed to stimulate improvements to contribute to Caseville's economic and environmental vitality.

CDAP is a project of Design Michigan, a statewide, non-profit information and service program of the Cranbrook Academy of Art, which is funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Incumbents win in Laker, Caseville School voting

Incumbents were the winners all the way around Monday, during the annual School Elections in local districts.

LAKER VOTES gave incumbent Dr. Richard Lockard of Elkton 1266 votes to lead all three candidates, for the two four-year seats up for election.

Fellow incumbent Yvonne Bushey of Caseville won the other Laker seat, getting 1057 votes to defeat first-time candidate Mary Jane Voelker of Owendale, who had 972 votes.

About 38% of about 5000 Laker District voters cast ballots Monday.

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS WE PRINT!

It's a Print Extra Notebook 30-Now is the time for Truth, Justice Stop the Presses Galley.

OBSERVATIONS BY CO-PUBLISHER MARK RUMMEL AND ANYBODY ELSE HE CAN GET TO WRITE 'EM!

NEW OLD CRAZE: What goes around comes around. Guess what 1950s toy is coming back again? The hula hoop! Wham-O, the company which gave us the brightly colored hoops 30 years ago (in 1958) is proclaiming 1988 "the year of the hoop."

Wham-O founders imported the concept of "shoop-shoop" hoops from Australia, where they saw schoolchildren doing exercises with bamboo hoops. They used a plastic called GREX -- and the rest is history. And, instead of selling for 59 cents as they did, in 1958, they go for about $4 now... And they're fun, too!

NEW OLD FACE: One of Michigan's premiere newspapers, the Lapeer County Press, is in the midst of a style "experiment." The weekly paper for the county two south of us came out with their words a "Wall Street Journal-look-alike" front page last week, trying to solemnly present the news and give folks as much useful information as they could.

The page is all black and white, has no pictures at all (but still sports the seven expensive ads on the Front Page which is unique in newspapering) -- and is dull, dull, dull. They say the "new" Front Page looks as theirs did 50 years ago, but I don't think that's saying much.

Newspapering today can do so many things -- with graphics, pictures and sharp color reproduction -- which weren't possible even 20 years ago. And, when you see that paper, compared with brighter and more fun-looking issues of other papers on the newsstand, I think their sales will suffer.

Still you can't blame them for trying. After all, the Lapeer County Press properly calls itself "America's Largest Country Weekly" and boasts circulation of more than 21,000 -- or more than 90% of county homes. (No newspaper in Huron County even gets to HALF the homes in its area, in comparison).

But I'm betting County Press readers will be seeing more pictures again, soon, on that presently BORING Front Page...

DEAD DEER: In driving Sunday afternoon, we saw two dead deer and at least 12 dead squirrels, raccoons, etc., all within 30 miles of here...

WISH I'D SAID THAT -- "What did the mayonnaise say when you opened the refrigerator door?" "Shut the door! Can't you see I'm DRESSING?!" (Sarah Rummel, 7)

Elkton considers campsites

By AMY HEIDEN

Elkton Village Council last week gave the go-ahead to Councilman Alfredo Santos to explore the possibility of building campsites in Ackerman Park. Santos, chairman of the parks and recreation committee, said he and DPW superintendent Walt Forster had come up with the proposal to benefit from any overflow from lake-side campgrounds.

The campsites would be located in the northeast section of the park. Santos said he presented the proposal to the Elkton Chamber of Commerce and they had supported the idea.

"There's a lot of reunions during the summer here, but not a lot of places to put those people. If we had campsites, people coming to reunions could stay right here," Santos said.

If the campsites are built, they will have full electrical and water hook-ups, Santos added.

The next step in the project will be to contact various state agencies and legislators to determine if any grant money can be obtained for construction.

Village Clerk Janet Santos said that although no formal action was taken, "we'll be looking for all the pros and cons. We want to dig around for details before we go ahead."

FIREWORKS: Bob Hurren of Allied Industrial Workers Local 628 at Active Industries, informed the council that the union will be having a fireworks display at the Autumnfest celebration on Labor Day weekend.

According to Hurren, the 20-minute display would be the best in the county and would utilize up to 10-inch fireworks shells.

TAXES: Elkton residents will have a 12.2581 millage rate this year, up .198 mills from 1987-88.

Revenues will remain the same due to falling land values.

Council also discussed the possibility of appointing a building inspector. Clerk Santos said that a need definitely exists for an inspector, as the village has not had much cooperation from the county in getting buildings condemned.

She said that money from permits for construction in the village would pay the inspector's salary.

In other business:
✓ Hired Debbie Ginter as Recreation Director for the summer rec program, and also hired Melissa Bambach as assistant director. The rec program will begin July 5 and run for six weeks, five days a week with morning and afternoon sessions.

✓ Approved variance for Active Industries to install fencing around its new water reservoir on Clark Street.

✓ Accepted the audit report from John Walsh, CPA, from Pigeon. Walsh told council the village is in excellent financial shape.

✓ Approved the purchase of new jump suits for ambulance personnel. The jump suits, worn by on-call personnel, will cost $200.

✓ Approved 200-ft. of curb and gutter work at the entrance of Ackerman Park.
✓ Approved $2,400 for 200-ft. of sidewalks.
✓ Agreed to donate $150 to Huron County Awareness Day.

Thumb Weekly News Round-Up

RAIN NEED IS DESPERATE

Thumb Area farmers are hoping -- and praying -- for a drenching rain soon, to salvage what could become the third straight year of problem field crops. Weather Service offices serving the Thumb reported somewhere between .34-inch and .9-inch of rainfall during May -- the least amount since the mid-1940s. Normally, between three and four inches fall in May.

Hay and forage producers have lost as much as 50% of their crop because of the exceptionally dry spring. Some sugar beet fields -- as many as 20% of all thus far planted -- must be replanted, and nearly all the local crop is in stressed condition.

Corn already planted is holding on due to their deeper root structures, but barely 20% of navy beans have been planted thus far, experts say. Soybeans should be planted before June 15 for best yields. A mild rainfall is predicted for Wednesday, weathermen say.

"It's a critical situation," Tuscola County Co-op Extension Service Director Bill Bortel says. "We need water before long, or severe problems will be irreversible."

The dryness has continued at least four weeks, with only two small downpours reported in that time. If it continues, the drought could follow 1986's huge flooding conditions at harvest time and last spring's excessive dryness to curtail or eliminate many kinds of field crops, experts say.

MANY ROUGH FISH FOUND

State DNR officials are finding what they expected to find -- and more -- as the survey of the Cass River continues. Workers are trying to determine how many large game fish and large non-sport fish are found in the river, near Cass City.

The DNR may propose a total fish kill in the Cass River system to reduce the number of non-sport fish, leaving room for game species instead. Early results show many suckers in part of the river, totaling more than two-thirds of all fish found.

Nearly one-third more of the fish observed were non-sport carp, while small numbers of rock bass, sunfish, small mouth bass and northern pike were listed.

The DNR plans public hearings on the possible fish kill late in July.

FAIR HAVEN GRANT NEARS

Fair Haven Township and Bay Port residents should learn the status of their proposed $2 million sewer treatment system by mid-July, following receipt of an $8000 state grant to study possible systems.

The township matched the grant with $2000 in local funds, and a consulting firm is studying where sewer lines should be run. Bay Port has bedrock near the surface under much of the village, causing problems in locating such disposal lines.

The Michigan Department of Commerce could pay up to $400,000 of the project's overall cost, if implemented, while more than $1.1 million in loans from Farmer's Home Administration would be secured and repaid by Fair Haven and Bay Port residents.

But, if enough of township residents are shown to be in lower income -- less than $12,282 annually -- more than 75% of the cost could be paid by federal sources, engineers say.

BRIDGE WORK UNDERWAY

Elkton Road at the Elkton Drain near the town's north village limits has been closed by the Huron County Road Commission for a bridge replacement project.

The detour takes drivers on Farver Road from M-142 to Richardson Road, and Richardson from Farver to Elkton Road. The new bridge should be opened to traffic by Oct. 1, Road Commissioners say.

COURT PROCEEDINGS

In 73rd District Court, First Division (Huron County), Judge John Schubel heard these pleas and made these determinations recently:

■ Edward G. Roberts, 50 of Mt. Pleasant, pled guilty to impaired driving, following an incident in Caseville; $450 fines and costs and loss of driver's license for 90 days;

■ James M. Schumacker, 33 of Elkton, was found guilty of disorderly conduct, following an April 12 incident in Elkton involving abusive language with other persons, as investigated by Elkton Police; sentenced to 30 days in the Huron County Jail;

■ James R. Davis, 64 of Lincoln Park, pled guilty to impaired driving, following an incident on M-53 at Port Crescent Road; $450 fines and costs and loss of driver's license for 90 days;

■ David C. Crosby, 42 of Essexville, found guilty of drunken driving, following an incident on M-25 in Port Austin Township; $650 fines and costs and loss of driver's license for one year;

■ James P. Ehninger, 39 of Caseville, pled guilty to impaired driving; $450 fines and costs and loss of driver's license for one year;

■ Robert J. Beal, 21 of Redford, pled guilty to impaired driving, following an incident in caseville; $450 fines and costs and loss of driver's license for 90 days;

■ Michael L. Thrushman, 24 of Port Austin, pled guilty to impaired driving; $450 fines and costs and loss of driver's license for 90 days.

Trains: transportation of future?

A method of traveling from one place to another which is 200 years old might just be the wave of the future for Michigan and the Midwest. Mind you, this concept is old... but it's NEW, too.

State officials are dreaming of a high-speed train line, linking Detroit and Chicago with 160-mph rail systems. That would be nearly three times faster than the 60-mph speeds now encountered by freight and dwindling numbers of passengers along the 280-mile thoroughfare.

As we all know, trains were dreamed of in the 1600s and became reality more than 100 years later. The DeWitt Clinton was truly a marvel -- yet today it seems so elementary as to be built in someone's backyard. Some terrific examples of steam trains can be seen at Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum, but they've primarily gone the way of other items in vogue then... things like hat pins, corsets and wooden teeth.

We can visualize chugging engines as we think of settling the wild, wild west. Those trains -- linking coast to coast with the Golden Spike back in the mid-1850s -- carried folks, furs and futures to points westward, and back again to the east. Then, they carried news, letters and other communications information in days and weeks -- instead of months.

Doughboys in World War I left their small towns on trains, as did anyone heading for the city in the early 1900s. But by the time World War II ended, so was passenger service to places like the Thumb. Instead of six and more passenger trains each day, autos, trucks and telephone lines carried people, packages and itches across town or across the county or across the country.

Maybe that's why the possibility of expanded rail lines in our state is so interested, and so filled with potential.

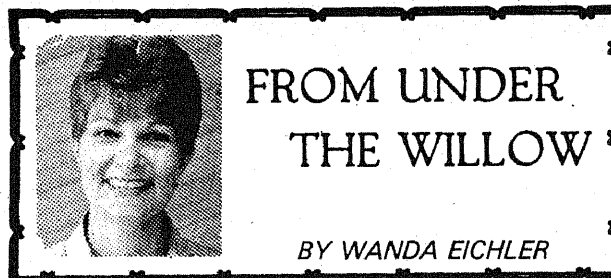

State Transportation Department dreamers would have a high-speed train offering passengers and cargo perhaps six round-trip journeys per day between the Windy City and Motown. That could challenge airlines both on convenience and price, and might lure more travelers to and from those two towns more and more often.

So, "Mainland '90" is being considered, at a public cost of at least $500 million. The Japanese-like bullet trains (traveling 200 miles and hour and more) are far away, for now. But you could travel 130-mph between the two cities and make the seven-hour trip by car in little more than four hours. It certainly has possibilities.

Cooperative efforts among Michigan, Indiana and Illinois would be needed, but all could benefit. Having the ability to move freight as well as people more easily would bring down transit prices and well-run trains could greatly increase the number of riders.

We in Michigan need only travel across our international border to Ontario, to see the excellence possible with train travel. Canada's system, on the whole, is tremendous. It's where we should be in 10 years -- and matches what we DID have 40 years ago, for convenience.

Our motor state should be a leader in all types of vehicular transportation, not just autos. The time for high-speed trains, running on their own raised and reinforced tracks, is here. Let's hope we can get on board, for better living.

FROM UNDER THE WILLOW

BY WANDA EICHLER

Summer -- at last!

Hallelujah! School's out! It has been a long haul since school started on the day after Labor Day last September. Now the summer of '88 stretches long before us with the already proven promise of lots of hot water.

Now we can turn our attention to summer-type things. My kids have already asked how soon we can begin haunting the Sleeper State Park beach every day. We'll get a state park sticker and spend some long, lazy afternoons at Sleeper, which is the beach of first choice around here.

Liesl and I will get in an afternoon or two of girl-type shop-til-you-drop shopping. There's also been a request to do Greenfield Village and Dow Gardens again. Then too, the kids will be anxious for a day in downtown Detroit, when we can ride the People Mover and visit the RenCen and Trapper's Alley for a day.

Here at Graywood Farm there is enough work for 10 summers. Willie and I had plans to paint the machine shed until I sprained my back this last week. Our plans for painting will have to wait a few weeks while I work on getting the strength back that I lost. We'll tend the garden, mow the lawn and soon pick raspberries and cherries (no strawberries this year because of winterkill).

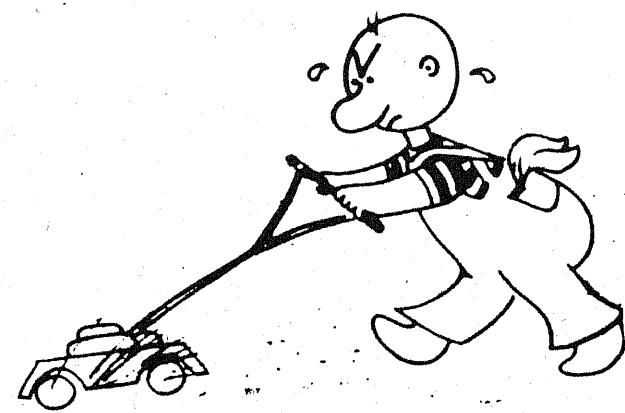

Last summer we took a four-day trip around Lake Huron. We drove through Ontario's Bruce Peninsula and came back through Sault Ste. Marie. Peter already has a request in to repeat that trip. That might not be possible as two trips west to Wisconsin will take first priority.

At least we don't have to get used to hot weather this summer. We've had so much of that already that the adjustment has begun. We've bought the usual one fan (we seem to wear one out each summer) to add to the collection of one fan per bedroom. Liesl has learned to make sun tea in the gallon jar that sits in the warm sun for several hours. Mealtimes are simpler as appetites disappear in direct proportion to how hot the day is.

So we launch into another summer. During this week we'll look at the calendar and see how much time lies before us. We can count the weekends, the special trips away from home, the baseball games and the weeks of camp, festivals and fairs. What looks right now like a long summer will be compressed into weeks and days that fly by. Labor Day will be here all too soon. For now it's ours to enjoy. At last summer is here.

RECOLLECTIONS
Of By-Gone Days
BY GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

This time of the year there are many graduation programs and parties. I had the good luck to be invited to Diane Deming's of Bay Port. I and her late grandfather, Herb Deeg, were good friends and when he passed away, her mother Donna was working at Mandie's in Bay Port. She asked me if I'd be her Dad and said, "Sure, I'd like that." So I've been her adopted Grandpa, so I got invited.

There were many people there that I knew, and some I didn't, but I enjoyed myself very much. They sure had a lot of good food.

I always like to see young people get a good education. When I was young, an eighth grade diploma was all you needed. There were only three of us in the eighth grade in our school and I passed with an 89 average.

One subject we had that I never could see into was English Grammar, but we had to take it. I didn't get a very high mark in it, but History and the rest of my subjects were very easy for me.

Back when I was a young boy, we still had to block and thin sugar beets. Each seed gave from four to six plants and they all came up and they didn't have machinery to do it, except with a hoe and fingers. My father never had many beets, but our neighbors always had some and worked them themselves.

Dad owed one neighbor $8.00 and when I was in the fifth grade in school, he told my Dad that it wasn't necessary for me to go to school anymore that year. So I had to help thin sugar beets for five days at $1.50 per day to pay that $8.00.

In those days you gave your parents all your wages until you were 21. I wonder how long some of our young people would crawl on their hands and knees for 40 weeks, taking two rows at a time thinning those sugar beets with the hot sun shining on your back? Even if you had bags wrapped around your knees, sand got in and your wrists got sore from the hot ground. When you finally got to the end of the row and stood up to stretch your legs, the boss would yell at you to go back to work, saying he couldn't pay you for standing around. You'd start at 7 a.m. and they'd give you a dinner of cooked potatoes and bread and butter and a little meat.

You'd get one hour for noon and crawled all afternoon until 6 p.m. By then you'd be so tired you only thought of going to bed. And you'd be so stiff and sore you couldn't hardly sleep.

In Ecc. 5:12 it says, "Sleep to a laboring man is sweet, whether he eats little or much, but the abundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep." Well, if you worked beets all day you enjoyed your sleep and you didn't have to worry about your riches -- not at $1.50 per day!

SINCERELY YOURS,
GEORGE KEIM

Thanks A Million

By PERCY ROSS

You may write to Percy Ross in care of The Progress-Advance, P.O. Box 35000, Minneapolis, MN 55435. Please include your telephone number with your letter.

DEAR MR. ROSS:

I'm not writing for myself, but for my friend who would benefit from your help. She's 32 years old and is confined to a wheelchair -- double amputee with a kidney transplant. My friend has two children, a mother who lives with her and is on a fixed income, yet she would never think of asking for anything for herself.

During the day she has plenty of help getting what she needs. But at night when everybody is in bed, she may need a drink or her medicine, which must be kept in the refrigerator. It takes a half hour to maneuver her wheelchair down the hall to the kitchen and back.

What I'm asking for is a compact refrigerator to put on her bedroom table. It's extremely hard to be so dependent on people, let alone having to wake folks in the middle of the night. This is legitimate, Mr. Ross -- do what you can. -- Ms. M.G., Akron, Ohio.

DEAR MS. G.: A key factor in what I do is empathy. I put myself in your friend's situation and got the feeling I'd rather do without at night, than wake a family member.

Loss of independence is a bitter pill to swallow. In order that your friend maintains what little independence she has, my check for a new compact refrigerator is on the way.

DEAR MR. ROSS: Mine is an odd situation. I'm a sophomore in college. My love, who is a senior, will be graduating this summer. We're lesbians. At present my parents are paying for my education. However, they hate my lifestyle. Although I've been discreet in my relationship (at my parents' request), I refuse to break up with my lover to satisfy them. Because of this, they've threatened to cut off paying for my tuition, which is $16,000 a year.

I resent my parents having the leverage to dictate my lifestyle. What I'm asking, Mr. Ross, is will you pay for my education? -- Miss G.S., San Francisco, Calif.

DEAR MISS S.: My answer is "no." You've chosen an alternative lifestyle which your parents can't accept. However, it was YOUR choice. Nowhere is it written that a parent must pay for their child's college education. And, should they elect to pay, it's their privilege to set the conditions under which it is given.

Sorry, but you might as well learn this while you're young: With the word "choice" comes the flip side of them. Good luck -- the word "consequence."

Something To Think About

JOHN A. CHAMPAGNE
DIRECTOR

PARALLEL STAGES

Sometimes the bereaved tend to go through stages that parallel those of the dying person. This can take place both before and after the death of a loved one. That is, those close to a dying person may pass through some form of denial as soon as they learn the person has a terminal disease. "It can't be so, it can't be true that my husband is dying." Then comes anger—at oneself, at the dying person, at the doctor, at the Fates. There is also bargaining. "Just give him a little more time, God." Then depression. "I can't go on without him if he dies." Finally — acceptance.

The time is drawing near for the Laker Class of 1983's fifth class reunion. This week is the last time to send in your reservation. So do it now so you won't forget. If you have any other questions, please contact Tracy S. at 463-2779. Hope to see everyone there.

I'm a conservationist from the Pigeon Area, and I enjoy watching the trees grow in our area. I would be very hurt to see someone cut one down out of my yard, just to make paper bags. That's why my wife and I and my young son are very "pro-plastic."

We think the plastic bags are great and we wouldn't have it any other way. Besides that, they're stronger, and we're growing for a better future in the plastic world. Signed, Pro-plastic and family.

Is it true there are no skunks around? Someone told me that, and come to think of it, I haven't seen any for quite a while. What is the truth about this?

I think gambling in Detroit is a really stupid idea. We don't need more crime. They've got enough of it in their town and schools already.

So, it seems the sheriff is going to work somewhere else. It appears Stokan is getting out just in time.

Even though we did attend graduation this year, thank you for the stories and pictures. We appreciate them, and they're already in the scrapbook.

With all this heat and humidity, I'm a young person who'd like some of the older fellas to tell us what people did before air conditioning was around. It seems everywhere is cool, now.

Congratulations, Village Owik Stop. $30,000 in prizes is a lot of winners. Thank you.

Well, at least they've oiled the road at the bridge detour. It's not great but it's better than nothing. If we could just get the local folks around there to slow down some now.

Yes, I'd like to know when the new message sign will be working in Caseville? And how can we get our message put on it?

Don't you have to be a car dealer to sell cars? Then how do some people get away with doing that on their front lawn?

I was very impressed with the article I read in several papers concerning Robert Finkbeiner, who is seeking the office of Huron County Sheriff. Being Undersheriff, he has the training and all the qualifications for the job. He has proven to be fully aware of the needs of the county and possesses the abilities to administer to those needs with responsible actions.

His records indicate he is honest, reliable and capable to take on the responsibilities of Huron County Sheriff. He gets my full support.

You saw about as much coverage of that track meet as you saw about Caro's and Bay City's track meets in all local papers.

The garage sale weekend idea was good. We found many bargains. Thank you.

I keep reading about a program that is designed for schools. It is called SADD, Students Against Drunk Driving. How SAD. The only good program in my opinion is SAD, Students Against Dope of Any Kind.

Call it what you will, beer, wine, whiskey, grass, crack, tobacco, it's all dope of some kind. Try to quit any one of those and see how much hold it has on you.

If you use dope of any kind, sooner or later you are going to drive. I used to see people so drunk they would hang on the grass to keep from falling off and still insist they could drive. If it takes 10 beers before you consider yourself drunk, if you take two beers you are two-tenths drunk, any way you look at it. It would not hurt if the older people joined SADD along with the children. Signed, Carl P. Dast.

While Laker netters Connie Schulz and Jenny Warren have put their volleyballs and equipment away following the 1987-88 school year, they will soon be reaching for them again when they become part of a Michigan delegation of athletes selected for an overseas summer tour.

Schulz, a senior this fall and Warren, a 1988 Laker graduate, will join a team of Michigan volleyball players who will play their sport with teams from Wales and England for 10 days, from July 11-20 — and will do plenty of sightseeing, too!

They and two other Laker athletes, Brenda Buschlen and Jackie Ginter, were handpicked by coaches scouting Michigan high schools for volleyball talent — when the International Sports Exchange had been asked by the Volleyball Federation of Wales and England to assemble a team to compete in volleyball matches in Great Britain.

But the other two players chose not to make the trip — and plans were soon underway for Schulz and Warren.

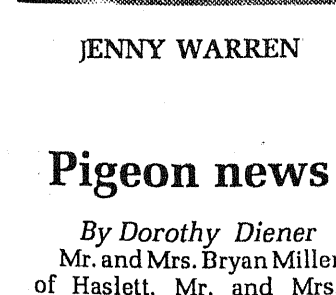

In addition to the volleyball competition, which will take place in Wales, the students will make sightseeing stops at the Windsor Castle, ruins from the 11th Century and an evening at an authentic Medieval Banquet in Cardiff Castle. They will also visit Westminster Abbey, Piccadilly Circus, Trafalgar Square, Hyde Park and shop at the world-famous Harrod's Department Store. The itinerary also will include stopovers at London's well-known Hard Rock Cafe, where team members can purchase souvenirs, t-shirts and take a visit to the Welsh Open Air Museum, according to ISE State Coordinator Diane VanArsdalen, coach at Hillsdale College.

While being selected for the sports exchange is a privilege, says VanArsdalen, the $1895 cost of the 10-day trip is up to the team members and their families.

Both Warren and Schulz are hoping to raise at least part of their fares locally through service organizations and fund-raisers.

ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE THIS SUNDAY

With your father on hand to be there in command
Of his household, when you were so small,
You had later to learn of his constant concern
For the problems you couldn't recall.
Then before you were grown, you created your own!
When you thought you were smarter than he;
Until much later on, when it started to dawn,
He was wiser in every degree.
So examine your heart; as your faith will impart:
Let your love for your father abound;
He will never object to the warmth and respect
You can show him, while he's still around.

Rev. Nusz says final local sermon

SAYING GOOD-BYE: The Rev. Gordon Nusz and his family of First United Methodist Church, Pigeon, moved on Tuesday to their new parsonage in West Branch.

His last local service will be this Sunday, June 19 at 9:30 a.m., followed by a coffee hour in their honor. His new parsonage address is: Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Nusz, 2458 W. State Road, West Branch, MI 48661.

Rev. Nusz is pictured here with his wife, Shirley and children Christina, age 10 and Philip, age 14. PHOTO FURNISHED

Who is my neighbor?

Read Luke 10:25-37
But he, desiring to justify himself, said to Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?" Luke 10:29

One report on aging suggested that with advances in medicine and nutrition, the average life expectancy may rise to 85 years by the turn of this century.

The Soviet Union claims three million people over 80 years of age.

In the Ukraine it was reported that one man lived to 158 years.

A lawyer stood up before Jesus and put this query: "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?"

When Jesus asked what the Scriptures taught, he quoted from Deuteronomy and Leviticus: love God and love your neighbor.

This, affirmed Jesus, is living: "Do this, and you will live."

By nature we do not have this life because we have rejected it.

We have instead chosen death.

To reject God and to fail your neighbor is death. We need rescuing from our fatal choices.

Jesus has done that by His own life offered into death for us. In Him we find life anew.

To teach us what such new living means, Jesus gives us His Good Samaritan parable.

In that story we learn of the risks and commitments such a life of love requires. But we have no other choice once we have accepted Jesus as the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

DEAR JESUS, Your love compels us to love our neighbor as You love us. In You we find the power to live. AMEN.

German Browns

There was a period that most members of Company B, 9th Division Artillery dreaded—going to the field.

For the vast majority of soldiers serving Uncle Sam in those post World War II days, "going to the field", meant military maneuvers. To me it meant camping out, and I looked forward to it with the anticipation of a young child at Christmas.

Our "field" was the rolling, pine-studded forests commonplace in northern Europe, and more specifically, located just outside a small town named Grafenwehr, in West Germany. It was here, that twice a year the entire artillery unit stationed at the comfortable barracks near Schwabisch Gmund would load up, lock-stock-and-barrel, and move to a bowl-shaped artillery range to participate in the bi-annual European war games.

The range, rumored to have been used by Adolph Hitler to train his artillery units, was the perfect place to use the large-caliber howitzers. Units would scurry along the rim of the valley in mock combat, and then pull into position and fire at the shattered remnants of long-used targets. At the end of the training period, everyone except the officers would return to their home base. It was customary for the "brass" to stay an additional week, and complete more training, but this time, on paper only.

Since I liked being in the field so much, it was only natural to volunteer when our captain asked for a jeep driver to remain behind and escort him for this extra week. And, catching a glimpse of Captain Bailey stashing a flyrod in the back of the jeep might even have helped me make up my mind.

Even without fishing, the extra week in the field was right up my alley. Armed with a jeep, radio, and a small 2-wheeled trailer to transport our camping gear, we toured the German countryside and played out a pretend war.

Captain Bailey would receive orders from his commander, and then direct his imaginary forces into position for a make-believe battle. Once completed, we would start the whole thing over again. But, as I was to find out, all would not be work.

Late one afternoon as we pulled into a nondescript German town, Captain Bailey turned to me and said,

I didn't fish, and he didn't offer to share...

"Got any Marks?"

I dug through my pockets and produced several bills and coins that made up the German medium of exchange. Captain Bailey added them to his and headed for the market located in the center of town.

He returned with a large onion sack filled to the brim with Brats, rye bread, and apple strudel, laced heavily with a sweet-sugar icing. After weeks of "C" rations the bag full of goodies looked every bit like heaven.

"I'm tired of playing war," he said, sliding into the passenger side of the jeep, "and I'm tired of eating crappy food. Let's go fishing."

He directed me to a small stream a couple of miles outside the village, and we were soon joined by several other officers from different units. I got the feeling they had been here before.

I pitched the wall tent and rigged the captain's cot and sleeping bag while he dug out his fishing equipment. My down bag would rest atop an air mattress on the ground, the perfect position for a non-commissioned officer. We dug out a couple cans of Sterno and propped the Brats over the weak flame to sputter and sizzle as we slipped towards the water.

I didn't fish, and he didn't offer to share his rod with me, but that was all right, I got just as much pleasure watching him fight the feisty Brown Trout as if I were tugging on the rod myself. Each fish hooked was immediately released, rules of the owner, the captain later told me.

I hurried back to the Sterno cans and loudly announced that supper was ready. Blackened Brats wrapped in coarse rye bread and smothered in tangy mustard was the fare of the evening.

A bottle of dark German beer to wash down the meal made it all that much better. Later, licking the sugar icing from a long-gone strudel from his fingertips, Captain Bailey turned to me.

"I guess you could say those fish we caught today were true German Browns," he said.

Where do you get the "we", I thought to myself....

A Straight Answer To All Their Silly Questions.

Nissan Sentra.
$600 more than a comparable Dodge Omni.

The folks over at Nissan seem to spend a lot of time hypothesizing about what people want from a car. They talk about things like power brakes and rear window defrosters and fitting your lifestyle. And although they also talk about affordability, it seems merely lip service, especially when you look at the Sentra 2-door sedan. It's $600 more than our Dodge Omni America, comparably equipped.* Now, $600 more may not seem like a lot until you look at what Nissan doesn't give you. The Sentra doesn't have a 2.2 liter engine, a 5-speed transmission, tinted glass, intermittent wipers, rally wheels with trim rings, or body side moldings as standard. Omni does. Plus, Omni is backed by the Dodge 7/70 protection plan.† And they still ask you for $600 more, comparably equipped. The fact is, Dodge Omni America gives you more value than any other American or Japanese car in its class. Maybe it has something to do with the fact that while they're sitting around talking about things, Dodge is out doing them. Dodge Omni America. Built for the most important human of all — you.

PUBLIC NOTICE:

THE FOLLOWING IS A MANDATORY NOTIFICATION BY THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH.

Sampling by the Michigan Department of Public Health has confirmed the presence of lead in drinking water from certain piping systems where the water has remained stagnant for a period of time. Levels in excess of the current drinking water standard (50 parts per billion) have been detected. Laboratory testing has shown that the principal sources of lead are lead piping and lead based solder and fluxes used to join copper piping. Based on these results and those from other studies, the Michigan Department of Labor, Bureau of Construction Codes and the Michigan Department of Public Health have supported legislation which prohibits the use of lead based solders and fluxes in potable water piping systems. The plumbing industry and homeowners who may construct potable drinking water piping systems must no longer use lead based solders and fluxes for joining copper piping. Other solder materials or joining methods are available and must be used. Lead piping has not been allowed for new installations for about the last ten years. Building copper piping water systems constructed to date likely contain lead based solder and flux.

Water is the universal solvent and even relatively stable water when stagnant for a period of even a few hours in contact with lead solder and flux can result in a significant concentration of lead in the water. The health department is recommending that those piping systems in which the water has remained stagnant overnight or for longer periods be flushed for several minutes prior to using the water for drinking or cooking purposes. This typically has been found to satisfactorily reduce the level of lead and other metals that may concentrate in the water within the building's piping system.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.50 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest...

...if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
...if your home has copper pipes with lead solder and,
...if the home is less than five years old or,
...if you have soft or acidic water, or,
...if water sits in the pipes for several hours.

Besides lead in water from certain piping systems, there are other exposures pathways to lead including: air-from industrial discharges automobile exhaust; food-from airborne deposition of lead on crops and lead solder seams in some food containers; nonfood items-lead based paint, dirt, solder or any object containing lead.

It should be noted that the minor source of lead exposure and lead poisoning in the United States is due to children consuming lead based paint chips.

People who may have concerns about the concentration of lead from their building or household piping are advised to contact a reputable private laboratory for a water analysis. Others who may have specific concerns relative to any possible health effects are urged to contact their physician.

For more information about this matter, please contact your Village of Pigeon Water Department at 453-2733.
