

As we see it editorially

One can STILL make a difference!

Persons of all ages are told "Each person can make a difference" in life. The common perception that "every vote counts" is famous, but is it really true?

In these modern days, it's far easier to think the system does NOT work and that goody-goody notions such as "one person matters" or "go with the flow" are out-of-date. It's perhaps more realistic to realize one person often CANNOT make a difference, cannot defeat a vastly-larger enemy — cannot win.

Then, we must simply look at Poland and what one man named Lech Walesa has done.

This 45-year-old man had a dream 15 years ago. The shipyard electrician wanted to see an independent trade union in his native land. It didn't seem as though he was asking for much — except his country of Poland was and is under harsh communistic rule. No unions, independent or not, existed. Period.

So, Walesa started by handing out illegal "underground" leaflets from his daughter's baby carriage. He fervently dreamt of and spoke about a world where common people had a say in how their country would be governed.

No one gave him any chance of success. Yet Walesa did not give up. He realized workers needed protection from the brutal government after Polish soldiers shot and killed about 300 workers who were protesting food price increases. They were simply complaining about big cost rises which they had no control over — and no money to pay anyway.

Walesa became internationally known when he led a workers' strike in the Lenin Shipyard in his hometown of Gdansk in 1970.

The Soviet-backed government later imposed martial law to end the strike and confined Walesa to his home for nearly a year, but the germ of freedom was growing. His trade union Solidarity was even banned, but Walesa — the one man — never gave up.

Later, Solidarity was accepted for what it is: the voice of the Polish people. Walesa's attitude and diligence brought him the Nobel Peace Prize in 1983, but his work was far from done.

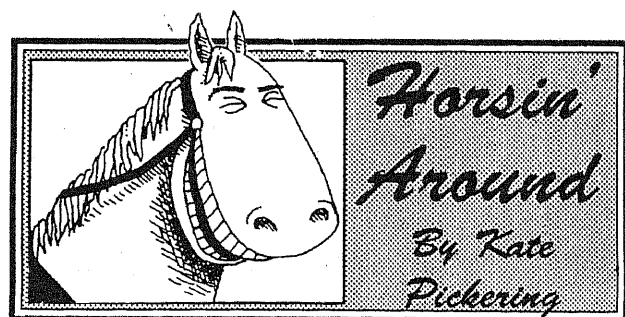

This past year, in Poland's first partly-free elections in 45 years, Walesa's Solidarity candidates widely defeated the communists, taking nearly every legislative seat it contested.

And, even more amazing, Polish President Jaruzelski last week agreed to let a Solidarity prime minister take office, allowing the first non-communist leadership for a Soviet bloc government since World War II.

And it all started with an electrician's dream. It all started with one man, a man with vision, a man with no more power than any other person — but a man who never gave up.

Lech Walesa didn't seek any of these new positions for himself. He enjoys the advisor's role off-stage far more than performing in the center of the spotlight.

I'm just a common man, not a prime minister, Walesa said last week. That's not totally true. Walesa is everyman's leader, who started with a dream, a prayer, hopeand determination.

FAT CELLS - BRAIN CELLS

I consider myself a lawyer of sorts - specializing in "Murphy's Law!" You're familiar with Murphy's Law - you know, "if anything can go wrong it will!" For so long now I have tempted these "fates," only to find myself duped by them over and over again. But I'm starting to give up the ghost. I "knock on wood," when I tell someone how well my car's been running. I throw salt over my left shoulder when I knock it over on the table. I never get too excited over an upcoming event, or plan too thoroughly for a vacation trip, for most assuredly such preparedness will be rewarded only with disappointment.

Anyone who doubts the flinty enforcement of Murphy's famous law by these unknown "fates," needs only consider this small, ironic fact . . .

If you imbibe a great deal of liquor, or abuse chemical stimulants of any kind, you will kill many of your brain cells. This is bad. It is bad because none of us can say we have many to spare. But, the bad news? They never regenerate! A dead brain cell is a dead brain cell!! If you have 100 brain cells, and 50 die, you only have 50 to work with - forever. No second chance, no forgiveness, no refund, no exchange. Just get used to forgetting little things (like your children's names) for the rest of your life, world without end, Amen!

But oddly enough, in complete contrast, if you eat like a pig, and have all your life, you have given life to some nasty, unattractive, hungry little fellows called, "fat cells." This is bad. It is bad because very few of us can say we're too thin.

But, the bad news? They never die! If you have 100 fat cells, you will always have 100 fat cells. You can shrink them, or you can try to ignore them, but they never go away. No second chance, no forgiveness, no exchange, no refund. Just get used to being pleasantly plump or pathetically porcine for the rest of your life, world without end, Amen!

Okay, so a quick review - brain cells die and cannot be reborn - fat cells are born and cannot die. Equation = a new Murphy's Law!

So - you say I sound a little jaded? A tad bitter? Well, folks, it is because this information has come to me the hard way. You see - I have "offed" a lot of brain cells, and given birth to even more fat cells! So you can call me . . .

RECOLLECTIONS
Of By-Gone Days
BY GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

A lot of things are going on right now and I just can't take them all in. But I try to choose the best ones and I'm enjoying them all.

I'm pretty busy, but it doesn't take much to keep one person busy!

Last Friday I went to Caro to see the gas engine gathering or whatever they call it. I enjoyed seeing all kinds of old gas engines and tractors. Some of them I remember as new tractors and some were a lot older than I am.

They brought in a grain separator and thrashed some oats and blew the straw on a pile, then some money on it and let kids hunt for it. Then they had an old straw baler bale it up and had a Fordson with a pulley on it to run the baler. It was an old Fordson and it sounded really good.

It has been a long time since I heard one run. It didn't have any fenders on it and it had angel iron legs.

Another man my age and I told each other how we used to work with them and we agreed if you got them started before dinner it wasn't too bad. But if you still had to work on them after dinner it made you mad!

Then on Friday night our church had a retreat at Bay Shore Camp in Sebawaing. On Saturday I went to Sylvan Miller's sale and bought a few things, because if I had a sale and nobody came to buy something, I'd feel bad.

Our retreat lasted til Sunday noon and everybody had a good time. We had a very good speaker from Massachusetts.

On Wednesday my daughter-in-law took her two children to see the Huckleberry Railroad in Flint and took me along. I had wanted to see it for a long time and I sure enjoyed it!

The old steam engine sounded just like those old engines used to sound when Pigeon used to have an eight-passenger train go through it.

They have a lot of old buildings there. I saw them make cider and I remember the old cider mill back in Berns. Then an old saw mill made some 2x4s just like Frank Diebel used to make, where the Cooperative Elevator office is now.

They had an old store where you could buy all kinds of "old" things. I bought some old rockhound candy you can't get any more around here. They had some lady shoes that came up halfway to the knees and they were button shoes. I remember yet when a young fellow wanted to give his girlfriend a present he'd give her a pearl-handled button hook and she was well pleased.

In Prov. 22-28 it says, "Remove not the old landmark which thy fathers have set."

Well, that doesn't mean you can't tear an old house or barn down, but it does hurt when you see people take down fences and make much bigger fields to make bigger farms, then hear people complain how hard up they are.

Then they buy a $50,000 house, a tractor and go to Florida. It doesn't make sense!

SINCERELY YOURS,
GEORGE KEIM

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was Rev. James A. Gorsegger, who united the children of Mr. and Mrs. Otto (Lorraine)

Fluegge of Elkton and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold (Genevieve) Mackezzyk of Ruth.

The altar was adorned with fountain bouquets of bridal pink roses, freesia, mini carnations and blue statice. The aisle pews were graced with colorful bows and flowers.

Providing special wedding music were the bride's mother, her sister Veronica and godmother Mrs. Evelyn Krohn.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a long gown of white bridal satin, featuring a sabbina neckline and short puffed sleeves. The entire bodice featured embroidery motifs and hand-beaded pearls and iridescents. The skirt front was adorned with embroidery cut-outs and hand-beaded tiny ruffles which fell vertically from the waistline back to the semi-cathedral train. Her tiered hand-rolled illusion veil was held by a pearl and rhinestone headband with a filament pouf at the back.

The bride carried a traditional bouquet of bridal pink roses, freesia, stephanotis, with satin ribbon and fern accents.

She asked her sisters, Mrs. Veronica Garza and Regina Fluegge, both of Elkton to be matron of honor and maid of honor, respectively. Other members of the bridal party were Kim Brown of Midland, friend of the bride; Cara Surline of West Branch, niece of the groom and junior bridesmaid Leigh Fluegge of Elkton, sister of the bride.

The attendants each wore a strapless gown of polyester taffeta with a shoulder yoke bias collar attached at the front with a bow accent. The tea-length full-skirt was attached to a drop waist. The attendants carried traditional bouquets of alstroemeria, bridal pink roses, mini carnations, blue statice, all accented with picot satin streamers.

The groom selected a friend, Brian Heilig of Uby, to stand as best man, assisted by groomsmen Larry Osen-toski of Uby, friend of the groom; Larry Mackezzyk of Sterling Heights, brother of the groom and Phillip Schmidt of Harbor Beach, friend of the groom. Junior groomsmen were Randall Surline II of West Branch, nephew of the groom and ushers were Grant Fluegge of Pigeon, brother of the bride and Arnold Mackdzzyk, Jr. of Auburn, brother of the groom.

The mother of the bride selected an evening length pink brocade dress with a flared skirt accent, short-sleeved tunic with a sweetheart neckline. Her flowers were a hair-piece of bridal pink roses accented with stephanotis.

The groom's mother chose a dusty rose tea-length gown with a flared skirt and crepe top, featuring a bow and rhinestone accent. She wore a corsage of bridal pink roses and stephanotis.

The newlyweds greeted their guests at a reception conducted at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Bad Axe, before leaving on a three-day honeymoon trip to Mackinac Island.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

John A. Champagne
-Director-

WHEN EMBALMING INDICATED

A State Board in each state specifies the circumstances which require embalming. The general rule of law does not require embalming; however, practical reasons usually do.

Over 90 percent of survivors request that the body of the deceased lie in state and/or be present at a funeral ceremony. When these requests are made, and there is a delay in the disposal of the body, embalming is usually performed. When transporting bodies dead of acute contagious disease, or by common carrier (airplane, train), embalming is required, as well as when destination of final disposition cannot be reached within 48 hours.

Embalming is practiced by funeral home personnel licensed by Michigan State Board of Mortuary Science to perform their art. The State Board in each state sets the education standards which must be met in order to be licensed to practice. Licensing professional embalmers insures that members of the general public receive the benefits of proper embalming by funeral homes.

FARMING IS A PART-TIME JOB

About half of Michigan's farmers see their work as a parttime job, according to a U.S. Census Bureau survey. Figures show that the average size of a farm in Michigan has increased, but fewer acres of land are under cultivation.

Many reasons for the decline are seen, including rising costs of feed, equipment and insurance; a lack of interest among farmers' children in continuing the family operation, and an increase in land prices because of non-farm development.

Since World War II, technological advances have forced many U.S. farmers to "get big or get out," says MSU Ag Economist Ralph Hepp. "The farm is not necessarily a place to make a living. It has a multiple purpose for families." Michigan has a high proportion of parttime farmers because many grow only crops, rather than raise livestock, a year-round job. Many state farmers maintained small farms in the 1950s and '60s while taking auto plant jobs or other city employment.

SEASONAL AG TIPS FROM SPECIALISTS

FROM DR. BETH ELLEN DORAN, Extension livestock agent: Vaccinate replacement heifers for Bangs between 4-8 months of age, and re-implant steer calves with a growth stimulant. Creep feeding can be cost-effective in last 60 days prior to weaning, especially if pastures are sparse. Average conversion ratio is about 9 pounds of creep per pound of extra calf gain.

FROM JIM LECUREUX, Huron ag agent: The next months will be the most hazardous time for farmers because of pressure to complete corn silage and corn grain harvests before harsh weather. Be prepared to meet emergencies to reduce risk, which includes designating specific responsibilities to people who will assist in repairing broken or stuck equipment.

And NEVER TRUST THE EQUIPMENT'S HYDRAULIC SYSTEM WHEN DOING REPAIR OR MAINTENANCE.

When harvester plugs, TURN OFF THE POWER. NO ONE SHOULD REMAIN ON THE JOB FOR MORE THAN 8 HOURS AT A TIME.

AND TAKE FREQUENT REST BREAKS, 5-10 MINUTES.

FROM ROGER SWARTZENDRUBER, Extension ag agent: Be sure you know what to do to reduce environmental damage in case of a pesticide spill. Prevent extension cleanup costs. If a liquid pesticide is spilled, immediately build a dam around the perimeter of the spill with dirt, then put on proper protective clothing specified on the label. Do not attempt to wash spill away with water, as that spreads it.

After the spill has been cleaned, spread the pesticide-contaminated material as thinly as possible on the field where chemical was to be used. For complete information, consult Extension Office. Failure to report a hazardous spill can result in fines up to $25,000 per day. Even when handled properly, a spill can be costly.

GRAZING AND FENCING FIELD DAY

MSU Extension Service will host a grazing and fencing field day Saturday, August 26, offering the most current technology in grazing and fencing systems. Any producer who grazes animals or is considering a program is invited. The day will begin at 9 am with on-site tours of MSU grazing plots. Speakers, lunch, management information and rotational systems will be offered. Dr. Beth Ellen Doran, Extension livestock agent, has additional information.

TWO GREAT STORES SIDE-BY-SIDE IN PIGEON - MANY GREAT VALUES!

Going Once....Going Twice.... Sold!

Saturday was a record-setting day for the 10th annual Bluewater Youth for Christ Benefit Auction at the village park in Pigeon. Over a thousand area auction-goers dug deep in their pockets and purchased $40,000 of new and used merchandise, quilts, crafts and refreshments.

Organizers predict that after expenses, the one-day event should net Bluewater Youth for Christ approximately $25,000 to help support their programs for Thumb-area young people.

Featured on the auction block was everything from hand-crafted furniture to antique gold coins, and auctioneers from Albrecht Auction Service and Great Lakes Auction Company led the crowd through hundreds and hundreds of other sale items.

All the while, volunteers produced barbecued sausage sandwiches and slices of fresh pie to keep the festival mood alive.

In the end, the auction's resounding success showed once again how strongly local people will support a good and important cause.

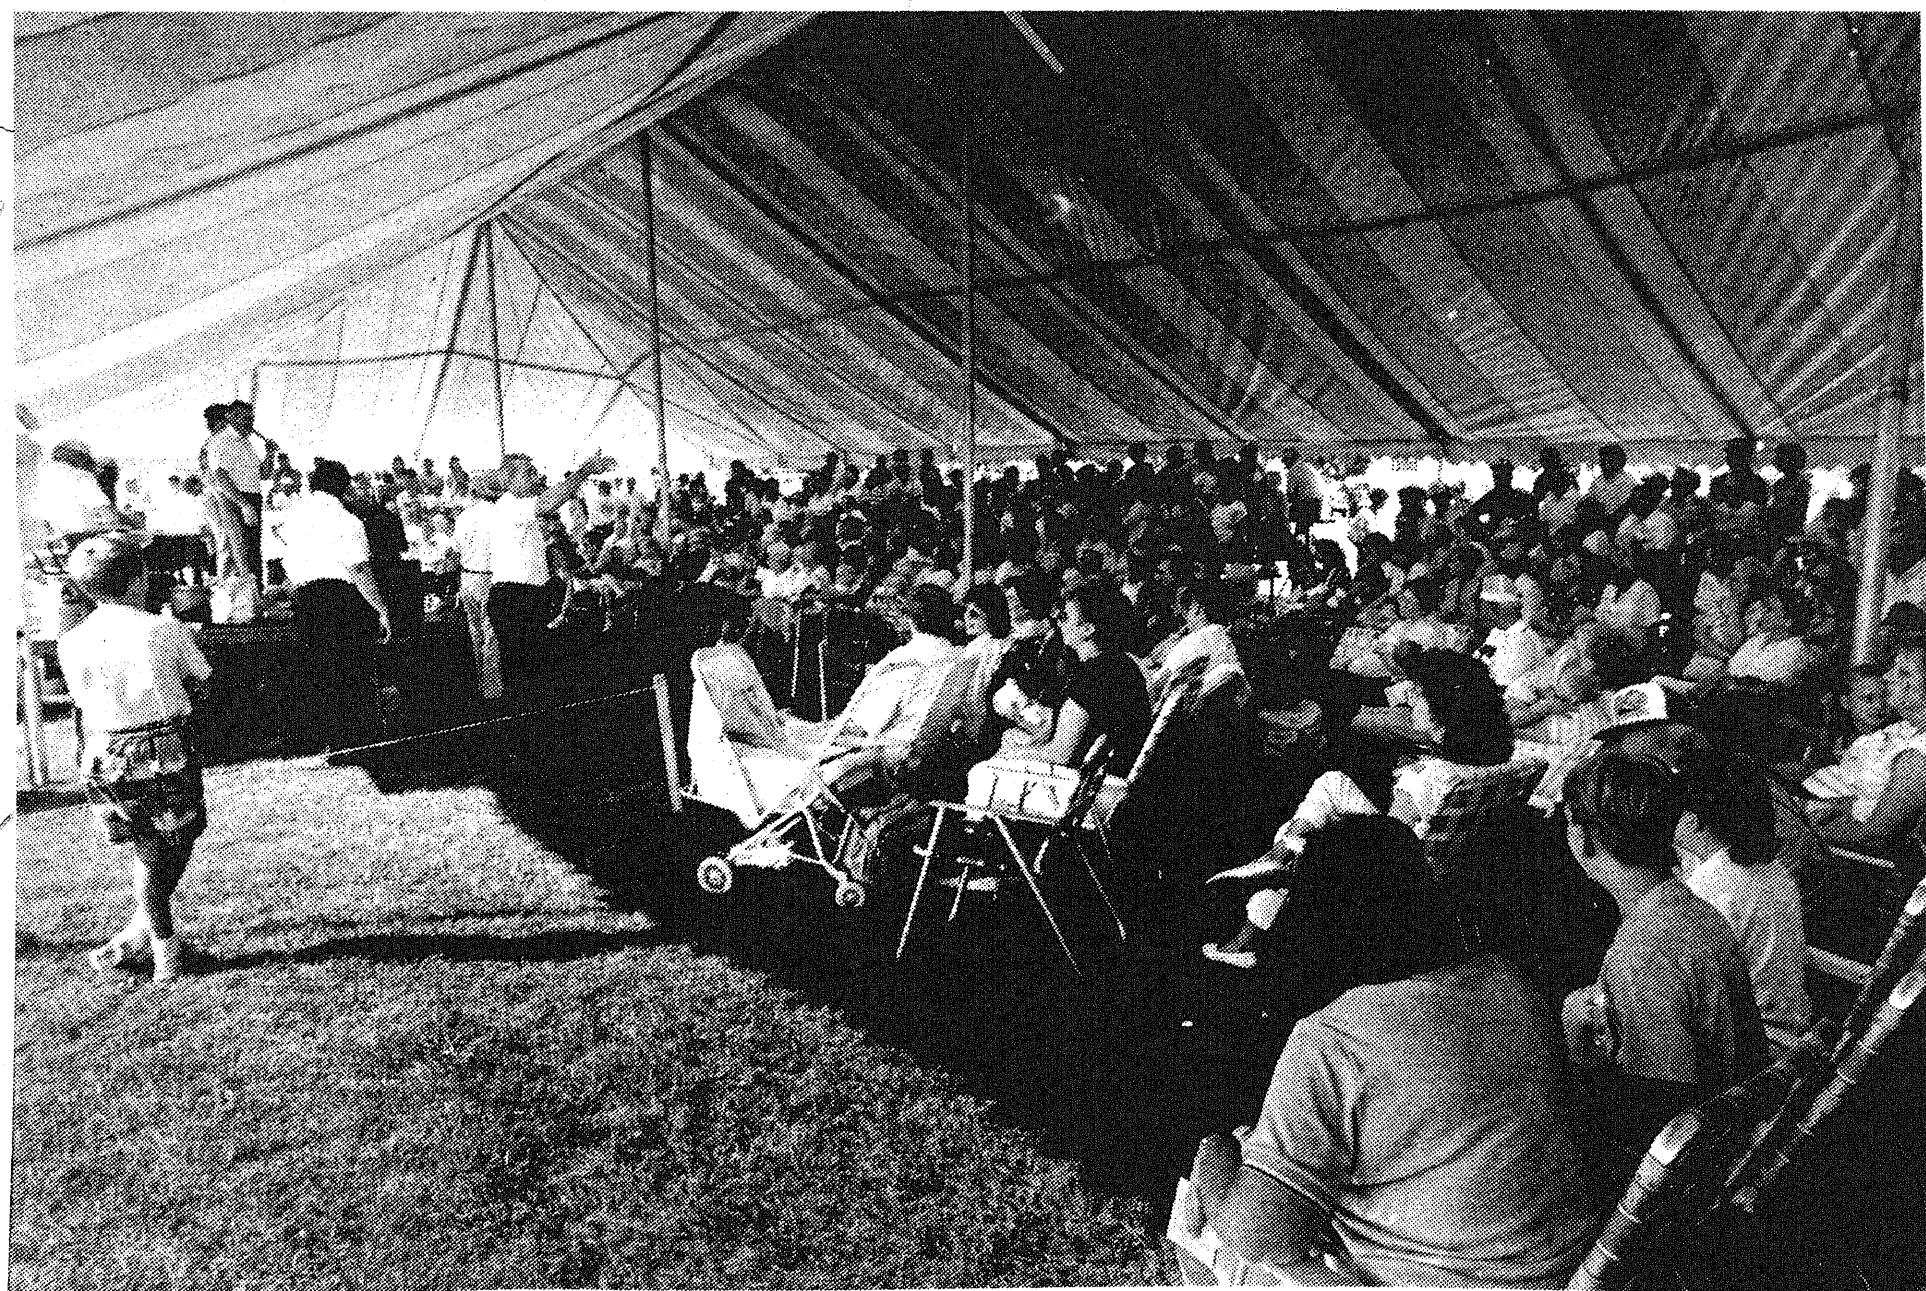

THE AUCTION ACTION was hot and heavy.

THERE WAS something special for everyone.

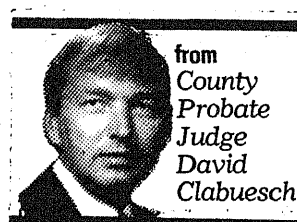

VOLUNTEER CHEFS kept the crowd satisfied.

AN OVERFLOW CROWD filled the auction's main tent Saturday in Pigeon.

Outdoor Report

Excellent catches of Walleyes were reported throughout the Thumb during the past week and Salmon action was good to excellent during the same period. Charity Island continued to be the "hot spot" with Walleye chasing Hot 'N Tots in several different colors. However, Port Austin reported great catches of Walleye along with Lake Trout and Kings to make it last week's best bet for all around fishing. Walleye action was also good near Grindstone City and some good Lake Trout fishing was available early in the week.

With Michigan hunters being less than 2 weeks away from the opening of the early goose season, fall can not be very far behind. This year's season will be the 4th attempt of the DNR to help control the rising population of giant Canada Geese. Properly-licensed hunters will be allowed to take 3 birds daily. Even though duck population, especially those who are considered year-long residents, have been in the explosion stage. Hunters can expect some great shooting come September 1.

The NRA has released statistics indicating a 50% decrease in accidental firearms fatalities during the past 20 years making hunting one of the safest sports. The NRA is quick to point out that their firearms safety programs can claim part of the credit for such a decline.

TEEN P.O.W.E.R. DAY Packed A Punch

Somewhere in Huron County, there is a teenage girl walking around in a derby hat and a black T-shirt, overlaid with WIOG window stickers. Smack on her imaginary lapel is a 3-inch black-on-white button that warns readers about the possible dangers of casual sex. Miss Sticker Shirt was one of approximately 750 Upper Thumb young people who attended Teen P.O.W.E.R. Day, a 5-hour health and safety "expo-happening" held on Monday, August 14, at the Colony House near Cass City.

Designed to present a positive youth role model and reinforce "safe behaviors and good health choices," the party was thrown to attract teens from Huron and Sanilac counties to a location where they and their parents would be offered opportunities to learn about adolescent health services.

HSOA lined up entertainment attractions designed to pique teenage interests, and spent a third of their $10,000 project budget on advertising. In 10 weeks' time, they planned for every possible educational and security need, tying up loose ends as quickly as possible. They even arranged bus and van transportation from central locations.

"I was hoping for four or five hundred kids through the course of the 5 hours," told Dianna Schafer, Huron County Health Department project coordinator. "We were supposed to open at 4 pm, and kids were already here at 3. From that time on, they just kept rolling in."

Kids came by the busload, carload, alone and with their parents. Registration information reveals that 3 times as many Huron County teens came as did Sanilac County teens. Most of them fell in the 13, 14 and 15-year-old range, and the boy-girl balance was fairly even. At least 200 parents showed as well.

Asked why they came, teens gave fairly uniform answers.

"I thought it would be interesting and stuff like that," said one young lady as she munched her nachos and cheese.

Her companion was more definite. "Cars," he said firmly, "the mechanical side. 'I'm into engines and stuff like that.'"

Another big draw was the WIOG Giant Jambox, an enormous black truck trailer converted to look like a an oversize radio. WIOG was even generous enough to send 2 of the station's most popular DJs with the jambox.

"See," nodded an elated Bad Axe teen. "Scott Shannon and Renee Andrews signed my shirt!"

Buick Motors sent a couple of racing cars and there were monster truck rides. Inclement weather prevented the advertised hot air balloon rides, but there was a show of sorts when the patchwork-colored balloon was inflated between thunderstorms.

Display booths ringed the interior of the Colony House, offering information on health services, drug abuse, hunting, water and auto safety; and much more. Bluewater Youth for Christ and the Pigeon Community Bookstore were there, as were a T-shirt shop and representatives of several military branches.

Betty's Boutique did make-up demonstrations and color analysis, while Huron County Home Economist Barb Neuman and staff mixed blender after blender of non-alcoholic drinks, pouring out samples of colorful, fruity concoctions, and hot toddies. Other snacks included frozen yogurt, nachos and popcorn. Kids did not go away hungry.

Nor did kids go away early. An unexpected byproduct of Teen P.O.W.E.R. Day was the fact that it offered—if only for a few hours—a safe place for teens to gather and socialize.

"They came and they stayed," said Dianna Schafer. "That was something we didn't expect, but that's great. The longer they were there, the more they took in as far as health and safety messages."

Kinde resident Jeff Harmon, 19, agrees. "I just went there out of curiosity and wound up making new friends. Everybody was there looking for something like that... at that age, kids are trying to fill their head with all kinds of information. I would have loved something like that when I was younger."

Leann Blair, 16, of Bad Axe also went "to check it out," but ended up staying until the closing hour.

"I made a lot of new friends. My favorite thing was the Community Book Store and the slide show from Campus Life. I really liked the drug education display, too."

"I think they accomplished [providing] a place where kids could go for a positive outlet, where they don't have to be drinking or doing drugs. The information they gave out was really just giving kids alternatives."

Brad Fiebig, Matt Kauffold and Dale Hare went from the USA area. Dale's mom, Kathy Hare later commented, "When he came home, it said it was 'OK, but no big deal.' Then he proceeded to talk about it for the next hour." Brad and Matt both said they'd go again if there were another opportunity.

At this stage, another Teen P.O.W.E.R. Day—or its equivalent—is already in the planning. Dianna Schafer confirmed their 1990 Adolescent Health Services grant has already been approved.

"The next morning, I got 3 calls from parents, and we've received some letters, too," said Mrs. Schafer. "Things like this tell us that we've had an impact on the community, and that's very encouraging."

Another encouraging note was that virtually every health and human services agency represented at Teen P.O.W.E.R. Day ran out of pamphlets, booklets, etc, and none were found littering the display area or parking lot.

"One of our goals was that teens and their parents would be exposed to the variety of helping agencies within their county," said Melinda Schumann, Adolescent Health Coordinator. "As a rule, I don't think people know what is out there. This helped expose them to some of the resources in the area and provided an opportunity for parents and teens to have some time together."

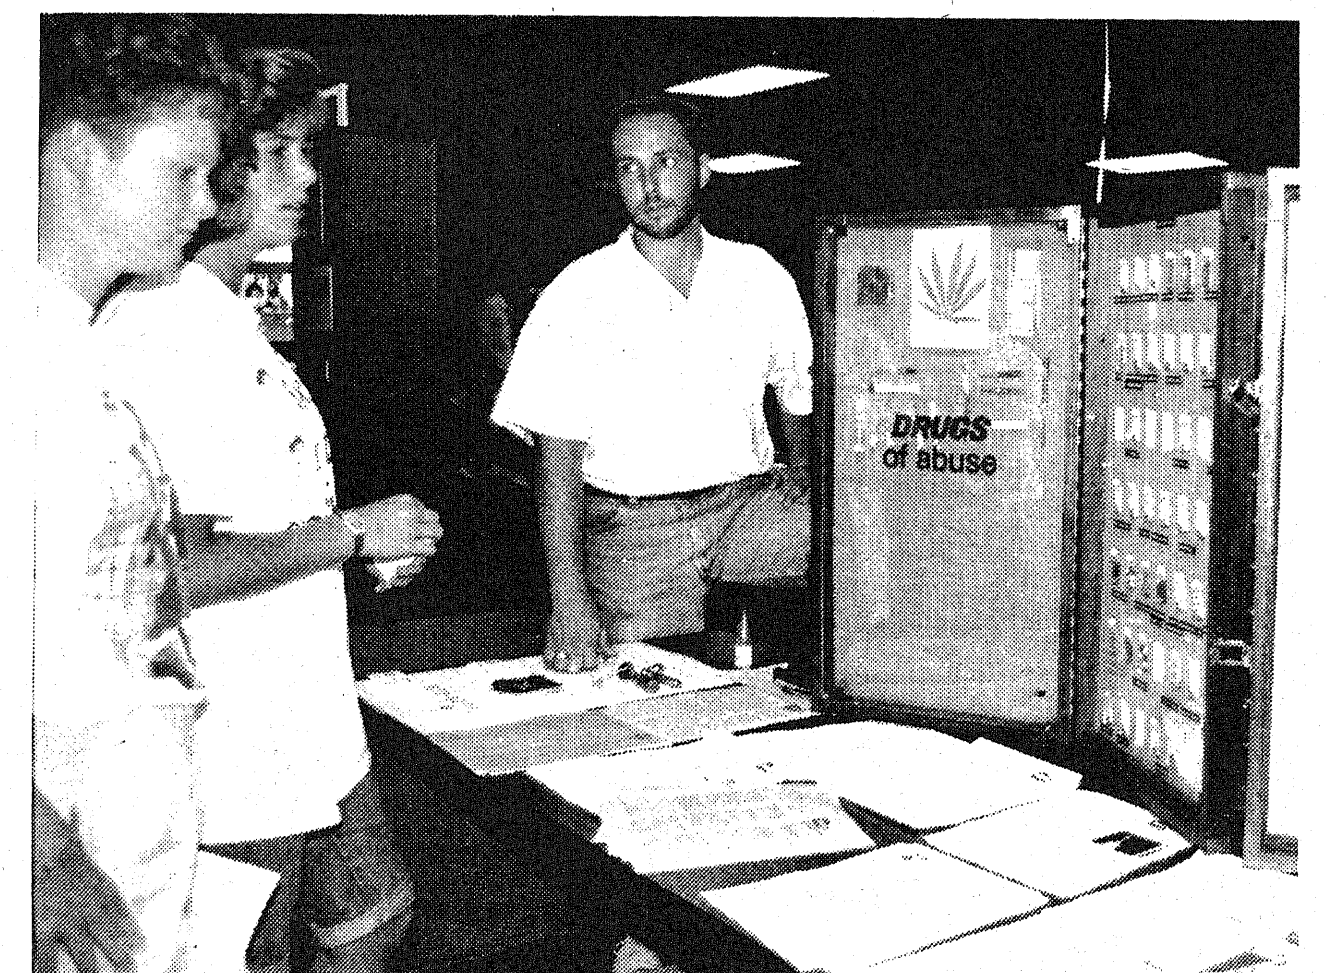

In fact, Mrs. Schumann quipped, "the only parental complaint I heard was that they couldn't get their child to leave."

PHOTOS FROM TOP: WIOG DJs drew a huge crowd when it was time to distribute a few Party Lizard T-shirts and caps.

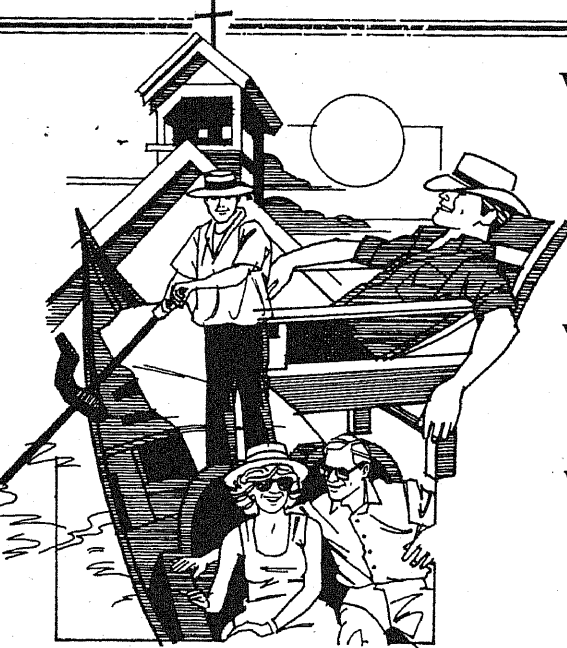

MIDDLE: Non-alcohol party drinks were mixed up and served for teen taste-testing.

BOTTOM: Drug abuse education included a first-hand look at legal and illegal drugs kids are most likely to find around home, school and community.

WHETHER YOU TRAVEL OR STAY HOME, GOD IS THERE

Like Many of us, you may have a vacation looming on the horizon, and of course your budget will dictate where you will spend it. You may visit another part of the world, or just lounge around the house. In any case your vacation can be a very enjoyable and rewarding escape from the realities of everyday living. Moreover, wherever you are the Lord will be there to watch over you. Thank Him for his protection at any House of Worship, and even if your travels take you beyond the orbit of civilization, there is always the Bible. Put it on your list of things to pack in your suitcase. In fact, that's a good idea no matter where you're going. To borrow the advice of a well-known TV commercial, "Don't leave home without it."

I shall have the prayers of the church to preserve all that travel, by land or water.
—Jonathan Swift

"Thanks a MILLION"

By Percy Ross

Partnership keeps light burning...

DEAR MR. ROSS:

The Gloria Dei Lutheran Church has a long history of social concern and outreach. Our congregation of 250 people is truly generous in supporting a multitude of causes, like giving to the pastor's discretionary fund which is used in quiet, informal ways to assist people in need.

The well runs dry every now and then. Today I'm looking in my own wallet to see if I can spare $100 for some very worthy requests: Annabelle needs $60 in groceries for her family of six, which includes a pregnant daughter. They've used the food shelf allotment three times this month, plus food stamps and their money is down to nothing. They need food now.

And Loralee, I just heard, is still not on insulin, because it would increase her appetite, and she can't afford to maintain a good diabetic diet on her $375 a month. Then there's Cheryl, who hasn't paid her light bill for three months and if she doesn't come up with at least half of the bill, her electricity will be cut off. What she and her five children will do without a refrigerator in this hot weather is beyond me.

Coming up with the money is a big concern, but equal to it is the problem of burnout. Even the words, "for God loves a cheerful giver" seems like a pain in the neck some days.

It would help us all lighten up to have a "Percy Ross Partners" fund. Perhaps we could match an amount of $500 with you and use this fund when the coffers are empty. Please let me know—we'll do anything and everything to insure that this is a good direction for your prudent generosity. — Mrs. W.G., Duluth, Minn.

DEAR MRS. G.:

All you have to do is graciously accept the $500 check I'm sending and continue doing what you're already doing!

DEAR MR. ROSS: My husband and I both work to make ends meet. We are the parents of two children, ages 15 and seven. My daughter had an eye operation last year and needs to wear special glasses. My son has had the same pair of glasses for the last four years.

We need to purchase new glasses for both of them, but without extra money, we can't afford it. We only have regular bills—no credit cards or outstanding debts—but no matter how much of a priority we make it, we can't afford these glasses.

Both pairs will cost about $200. I've checked and found this to be the lowest price available. If you cannot help, I will understand. There are a lot of needy people in this world. — Mrs. J.D., Fort Myers, Fla.

DEAR MRS. D.: It's that time again, before the school year starts, when I'm flooded with requests for school clothes and glasses. That's my responsibility and I'm working fast and furious to accommodate as many as possible.

As a rule, the requests are far more desperate than yours. I chose to put yours in print, because you're an average family which hasn't overextended itself financially and is just trying to make an honest attempt at securing the basics.

You could have asked me for more but didn't. I appreciate your honesty and challenge some of my other readers to learn from your example; $200 is on the way. — $$$$$$

DEAR MR. ROSS: I'm involved in something that has great importance to the scientific world. However, this study has no support from the science world, because its object has not been proven to exist. It is an animal which the public jokingly calls "Big Foot."

The entire subject has been left in the hands of private citizens, like myself, who are intrigued enough to go out and search for signs—like getting good photographs of these creatures. The most recent information indicates that a group of "Big Foot" creatures is now living in the area of Pike's Peak. I have tried to organize a small expedition, but times are tough and I lack partners and money.

Five hundred dollars would go far to pay for supplies and the trip to Colorado. I hope you will consider financing me. — Mr. M.Q., Fargo, N.D.

DEAR MR. Q.: I'm not promising anything, except today that maybe if hell freezes over, I just might pop for a $500 expedition in quest of "Big Foot."

— $$$$$$

A GAME TO REMEMBER — Dianne Kohr of Pigeon will always remember the golf game she played on Aug. 5 at the famous Arnold Palmer golf course "The Legend" near Bellaire — she scored a "Hole in One" on hole #9, a feat that course officials said is extremely rare.

She was playing "The Legend" — rated one of the top 50 resort golf courses in the country — with her husband, John and John and Donna McGill, while they all attended a Michigan Bean Shippers Association convention at Shanty Creek Resort. Hole #9 measures 111 yards, officials say.

Her excellent luck on #9 also carried through to the rest of her 18 holes. She shot a score of 99, which "Legend" officials called "a very good score for a female golfer" on that course.
