As we see it

Considering that first Thanksgiving...

O ur harvest being gotten in, our Governor sent four men on fowling, that so he might know how the country looked for future plantations. As they returned, the Governor determined to give thanks to God on a certain day. And atdine the men, as it chanced, being after a good thanksgiving than he had in the open field, in the presence of God and many Englishmen. So it was this day of thanksgiving was chooseth from the first day of November, and it is said, that our Governor sent two messengers among the Indians, as much as the country would endure, to make them understand that the English meant to keep the day of thanksgiving forevermore. And therefore, it was the first Thanksgiving Day that given in New England.

To be thankful is the first thing we should do in our lives, and it is a fine thing to be thankful.

At which time, amongst other recreations, we exercised ourselves to indure all the works of God and all the works of nature, and to live simply and modestly. And among all the rest, it seems that God spake to them on this Thanksgiving Day.

And they named the place in which they first landed Five Corners which they brought to the place where they first called the Conscript and others.

These words written in December, 1631, told of the thanksgiving being held by the Pilgrims in the America. The Pilgrims, by order of Gov. William Bradford, held a three-day festival to remember God’s kindness. The Thanksgiving Day was not celebrated by the Pilgrims in the same way that we do today. They did not have fireworks, parades, or any other public events. But, they did thank God for their blessings and for the freedom they had in the New World.

The first Thanksgiving Day is said to have been 35 years after the Pilgrims landed in Plymouth. It was held in 1631. The Pilgrims did not have houses, or even a church. They had to build a temporary shelter where they could keep the rain out.

The Pilgrims did not have any furniture in their homes. They had to make all of their own.

They did not have any food. They had to go out and hunt for it. They did not have any clothes. They had to make all of their own.

Pirates rob Lake Lakers of District title

By AMY MURPHY

The Lady Lakers came five points short of taking home basketball this Friday night, but it wasn’t to be as the Father Bechter Pirates claimed the Lakes 58-53, leaving the Lakers with an overall season record of 18-18.

Named the district’s girls’ basketball coach of the year, Lake head coach Dede Hanson said she was proud of the girls’ season. The Lady Lakers’ season began in December, and Hanson said she was proud of the girls’ progress throughout the season.

The Lady Lakers struggled in the first quarter, trailing the Pirates by five. But they came back to tie the game at halftime with a 10-10 score. The Lady Lakers’ defense came out strong in the second half, and they went on to win by 10 points, 58-48.

Hanson said she was proud of the girls’ effort throughout the season and that they had come a long way since the beginning. She said she was proud of the girls’ dedication and teamwork, and she was proud of the fact that they had never given up on each other.

The Lady Lakers’ season ended with a win over the Pirates, and Hanson said she was proud of the girls’ hard work and dedication. She said she was proud of the girls’ ability to rally together and fight through the tough games.

The Prince of Alberta Springs

WOODS AND WATERS
By Duane Guetterman

The Prince of Alberta Springs was a man who loved nature. He spent his life exploring the woods and rivers, and he was known for his wisdom and knowledge of the natural world. He was a legend in his community, and people came from far and wide to hear his stories and learn from his experiences.

The Prince's domain was vast, covering thousands of acres of forest and thousands of miles of river. He was the king of the woods and the master of the waters. His knowledge of the natural world was unmatched, and he was revered by all who knew him.

One day, the Prince was out exploring the woods when he came across a group of children playing by a river. They were having a great time, splashing in the water and catching fish. The Prince watched them for a while, then approached them and asked if they knew the story behind the river.

The children were curious and asked what the Prince meant. He explained that the river was a living thing, just like them. It had a spirit, a soul, and a history. And just as each child had their own story, so too did the river.

The children were fascinated by this idea and asked the Prince to tell them more. He sat down by the riverbank and began to讲述 the story of the river, how it had formed over millions of years, how it had carried the history of the land and the people who lived alongside it.

The children listened intently, their eyes wide with wonder. They asked questions and made comparisons to their own lives, and the Prince smiled, knowing he had touched a deep and profound part of their nature.

As the sun began to set, the Prince got up and wished the children well before continuing on his journey. The children watched him go, their hearts filled with a sense of wonder and awe.

The Prince of Alberta Springs was a legend, but his spirit lived on in the hearts of the children who had heard his story. And the river, with its own spirit and soul, continued to flow, carrying the history of the land and the people who had come before it.
