Local dairymen see no silver lining in higher dairy prices

By AMY HEIDEN

Dairy prices have been at record levels in recent months, but some local dairy farmers aren't dancing in their milking parlors because of it.

Both Gary Fortman and Bruce Baur, who head large dairy operations here in the Western Thumb, agree that the current high milk prices won't last much longer, but both say dairy farmers are long overdue for a decent price for their product.

Wholesale milk prices have had their most dramatic increase in years, rising from about $14 per hundred pounds of fluid milk to around $16 today.

Experts say there are several reasons for the higher prices: the floods of 1989 and the drought of 1990 reduced the amount of good-quality feed available; the government breed buy-out program in 1986; increased U.S. exports to Europe; no excess production for the government to purchase for its price support program; and increased consumer demand, particularly 2% milk, cheese, and skim milk.

Bruce Baur, who milks about 120 cows at his farm near Bay Port, thinks dairy farmers are finally getting paid for the work they put in 365 days a year, but adds, "I don't believe it's going to last."

Baur believes the herd buy-out program had a greater effect than most people realize.

"It wasn't just one generation of cattle. It was the next two generations, also. They cleaned out three generations of heifers," he says.

"I hope we see more decent prices in the future. No one could have imagined that prices would come up to this level," Baur says.

And while Baur may enjoy an increase in his milk checks, he says he's not planning to increase his herd. "I haven't bought any cows in 10 years and I don't intend to do it now."

Gary Fortman sees the increase in milk prices as a seasonal adjustment. "Milk prices normally go up in the fall and go down in the spring. That's the trend," he says.

"There's more demand in the winter," he also says that more government demand for dairy products has had an effect on prices.

"The government has no dry milk on storage right now. In one case, they literally sold one country and turned around and bought it back." Fortman says he doesn't expect dairy farmers to notice a whole lot more money in their pockets. "On the whole, it's not putting a lot into anybody's pockets. There are certain fixed costs, and a little extra is not enough to say I'm getting rich," he says.

"I'm not excited about it. The market turned up and down like this for years."

Two named to Beam Commission

Pigeon is the only community in the state to have two of its own farm leaders serving simultaneously on the Michigan Beam Commission.

Jack Sturm, Pigeon area farmer, was appointed to the Commission as a farmer-member, and Tod Leipprandt, bean market specialist with Cooperative Elevator of Pigeon, was named as a shipper representative.

Both were named last week by Gov. James Blanchard, and both appointments were for three-year terms. All terms are subject to confirmation by the Michigan Senate.

Sturm is replacing Bill Renf, also of Pigeon, who served the two consecutive terms permitted under the Beam Commission law. He will represent beam producers of Huron County.

Leipprandt, recently-retired manager and chief executive officer of the Cooperative, will fill the position held for two terms by Jim Ostricki of St. Johns.

Leipprandt will serve as a representative of bean shippers and elevators in Michigan.

Another appointment announced last week was that of Kendall English of Breckenridge, who was re-appointed to his second three-year term. He represents Genesee County bean growers.

BEAN STOCKS DOWN SLIGHTLY

Opening MASS -- the Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service's the Beam Commission stated that dry bean stocks in elevators across Michigan are down about 100,000 hundredweights below that of the same time last year.

The report also stated that 2.5 million hundredweight bags of dry beans are in commercial storage bins around the state. Those include 2.1 million bags of Nevins and 400,000 of other dry bean classes.

In 1987 elevators held about 3.55 million hundredweights. There is no report of numbers of bags in bins by farmers in their on-farm storage.

It's time for Bay Port Carnival!

Mark this Saturday, Feb. 10 on your family calendar, for the annual Bay Port School Carnival kicks off a school-full of fun at 6:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Bay Port P.T.O., the Carnival features a cake walk, glass pitch, bingo, games and lots of prizes for carnival lovers of all ages, according to Bay Port Principal Todd Biggar.

The night also includes kitchen specialties at 8 p.m., including pizza, hot dogs, popcorn, milk and pop.

The newest way to buy beer has hit the scene, in fact, it's so new that it's called "beer-on-the-way." The name says it all. The result of this booming beer industry is that now, you can buy beer on the go.

Pro-aggression is required by Pabst Blue Ribbon and Michelob. Others like Pilsner Urquell are not allowed to do this. In fact, many bars have stopped selling beer on the go.

The reason for this is that the pro-aggression beer industry is a threat to the beer industry. In fact, many bars have stopped selling beer on the go in order to protect their own profits.

For more information on this new beer industry, please see The Power Agency's "Beer and the Law."

New Thumb C weaker without local teams...

The other side is about how to fail, and it’s certainly that. You know that the world will never again be the same. Since the majority of the Thumb’s college-age population is now gone to school, and not many local teams....

Preschool Story Hour

The Thumb’s preschool story hour has been extended for another month. Miss Janita, the library’s story hour volunteer, will be at Story Time at the Thumb Library on March 23.

Beef Short Course Thursdays

The Beef Short Course program is now in full swing. It is a great opportunity for those interested in beef production to learn more about the latest practices and technologies.

The Lady Lakers have won their third straight game in the Metro Classic League and have won 10 of 11 games overall. They have a 6-0 league record and a 10-1 overall record.

The Lakers are on track to win the Metro Classic League and are one win away from a perfect season. They are currently in second place in the league, trailing only the Lakers. With two games remaining in the regular season, the Lakers have a chance to tie the record for most wins in a season.

The Lakers have a strong defense, allowing only 10 points per game on average. Their defense has been the key to their success, holding their opponents to below their season average.

In addition to their defensive prowess, the Lakers have a strong offensive game, averaging 30 points per game. They have been able to dominate games, scoring more points than their opponents in all but one game.

The Lakers have a balanced roster, with players contributing in various ways. Their star player, Senior John Smith, has been a consistent contributor, scoring double digit points in every game.

The Lakers are looking forward to their next game against the Lakers, a tough challenge. However, they are confident in their ability to win and secure their place in the league.

The Lakers are a team to watch in the Metro Classic League, and their success this season is a testament to their hard work and dedication.

Lose weight, exercise to lower blood pressure!

Controlling hypertension is important because 35 million Americans have high blood pressure, and it is a contributing factor in three-fourths of heart attacks and strokes. Exercise strengthens the cardiovascular system and reduces the risk of cardiovascular disease. Athletics help prevent high blood pressure, a major risk factor for heart disease, the letter noted.

"These people are always thin. They eat just a little at a time, choosing foods that are low in fat but not missing out on flavor. They are getting some physical exercise every day. If you follow these principles, you can lose weight quickly. Just follow these suggestions:"

Blood pressure: D To 10
Very low: Most cases of hypertension don't have a specific identifiable cause. Because some medications and/or high blood pressure have been found to increase blood pressure, it's important to be able to lower the dosage, or eliminate the need for medication, if a real pill. Exercise may help some people—especially those with borderline high blood pressure—in get rid of excess weight. Exercise may be enough to reduce tension, or lower blood pressure, with Dr. Godfrey.
"People should design an exercise program that fits into their lifestyles, and which will help them maintain," suggest Dr. Godfrey.
"Many people are chronically sedentary, such as the popular North Dakota, which influences the motions of coronary artery. Coronary artery surgery is recognized by symptoms in the chest with an increase in coronary artery stenosis. "High blood pressure is manifesting something we should all be aware of because as a man, women over children of all ages, men and social classes," said DeNiro. After much talk about exercise the person with your physician about how lifestyle changes—including regular aerobic contests—can help you avoid this potentially dangerous condition," she added.

Exercise reduces Triglycerides

According to Kenneth J. Cooper, M.D., F.A.C.S., Ph.D., who is the founder of Aerobics, this is one of the major benefits of regular physical activity. To achieve this, any form of aerobic exercise is effective. The American College of Sports Medicine recommends at least 20 minutes of moderate-intensity exercise on most days of the week. Exercise reduces triglycerides by:

- Increasing fat oxidation
- Reducing inflammation
- Improving insulin sensitivity

Abnormal triglyceride levels are associated with an increased risk of heart disease. If your triglycerides are high, your healthcare provider may recommend lifestyle changes, such as diet and exercise, or medication to lower them. Regular exercise, coupled with a healthy diet, can significantly lower triglyceride levels over time.

WOODS and WATERS

Carving blocks

By Diane Guenther

February is located smack in the middle of the "winter season," which means it's time to start thinking about all the activities that make this season so enjoyable. For many, this includes spending time outdoors, enjoying the warmth of a fireplace, and indulging in hearty meals. With the cooler weather, it's the perfect time to gather with friends and family, creating lasting memories that will be cherished for years to come.

Some may find themselves spending more time indoors due to the colder temperatures. This can be a great opportunity to engage in activities that require less outside movement. Perhaps reading a good book, baking some delicious treats, or even starting a new hobby can bring a sense of comfort and enjoyment.

Regardless of how you choose to spend your February, remember to take some time to appreciate the beauty of the season and the warmth of the people around you. The coming weeks will undoubtedly bring new opportunities and experiences, and it's important to embrace each one with open arms.

The Progress-Advocate... Outdoor Report

Recommendations for 1998 recreational grants were finalized by the Arkansas Natural Resources Trust Fund Board of Directors, and local groups were awarded over $1.1 million in grant money to undertake projects. The board is pleased with the results, and looks forward to similar projects in the future. The grants were awarded to a variety of projects throughout the state, ranging from trail improvements to wildlife management initiatives. The board is committed to supporting these projects in order to provide recreational opportunities for all Arkansans.

The board is currently accepting applications for the 1999 fiscal year. To apply, visit the website or contact the Arkansas Natural Resources Trust Fund Board office for more information.

Thanks a Million

A New Year, and a New Beginning. With the passing of another year, we all have the opportunity to make a fresh start and refocus on our goals.

When it comes to business, this means looking back on the successes and challenges of the past year and planning for the future. For many, this involves setting new goals, exploring new opportunities, and making changes to improve their strategies.

Similarly, when it comes to personal growth, it's important to reflect on the lessons learned and the progress made. This can help us identify areas for improvement and set realistic goals for the coming year.

At the end of the day, the most important thing is to be open to change and to embrace the new possibilities that come with it. With the right mindset and a positive attitude, the coming year is sure to bring many opportunities for growth and success.

EAGLES SPLIT WEEK’S GAMES

By KATHY MEYER

Caseville's Basketball Team split last week's games, losing the first and winning the second.

The Caseville Eagles lost to Deckerville last Tuesday 64-53. Jeff Brunni led the Eagles with 17 points. Dale Delmotte had 12 points and Dan Smith had 12. Then the Eagles turned around Friday night and defeated Caseville-Port Sanilac 72-65. Brunni again led the scoring with 24 points, and Brian Kraus followed with 14.
