Bay Port resident R. Dale Wertz will be seeking a third term on the Huron County Board of Commissioners, in the primary election coming this August. Wertz currently serves as chairman of the board, and represents District 2, consisting of the Townships of Win- sor, Chandler, Oliver, Cenant and Sheridan, including Villages of Pigeon and Elk- ton.

He is currently the chair- man of the Transportation Committee of the Michigan Association of Counties, serves on the Human Devel- opment Commission Board of Directors, the Huron County Human Services Board, and is a member of the finance and personnel committees of the Human Development Commission. He has been a member of the Pigeon Rotary Club for 24 years, where he has per- fected attendance. Wertz also a member of the Huron County Farm Bureau. Wertz attends Salem United Methodist Church in Pigeon, where he serves as worship leader and a various church committees. He is well- known in the area for encoun- tering many civic, village, and county functions. He owns and operates Great Lakes Auction Company, and is a salesmen for Jim McCormick Motors in Pigeon.

Wertz said one of the big- gest challenges facing the county was enhancing the area’s tourism and recreation. “We are facing the challenge of increasing an awareness of recycling as a way to control our solid waste program,” Wertz said.

“I’d like to see Huron County expand its industrial base to our children can re- turn from college or home communities to jobs that are commensurate with their education,” Wertz stated. “I also want people to know that I am the same ‘people- person’ I was when I was originally elected to the board. I listen to everybody, and I haven’t changed.”

He is married to Floris Wertz, who is employed at Community Bookstore, Pi- geon, and they are the par- ents of two sons, Bryan, a junior at Saginaw Valley State University, and Ken- dell, a U.S. Navy seaman recruit attached to the U.S.S. Forestal, based in Florida.

Pigeon gets trash hike

Trash collection rates are going up in Pigeon begin- ning June 1 - but not as much as they’ve risen in the past. Pigeon Village Council Monday night accepted the low bid of Cove Sanitation, Bad Axe, for weekly resi- dential trash collection for one year, for $7.59 per month per home. That’s up 10% from the current $6.25 monthly rate.

That was 10 cents per resi- dence per month less than the other bid received, from Waste Management of Michi- gan, Midland, based in Al- ment. Waste Management’s $7.35 monthly bid included “while goods” such as used stoves, refrigerators and coolers, that cost. When asked winning bidder Cove Sanitation whether he too will pick up such large items, although salvage companies are now picking them up.

Pigeon Board doesn’t need Headlee

By AMY HEIDEN

Final figures from the Huron County Equalization Dept. show a 0.04% increase in State Equalized Valuations for 1999, so the Laker district won’t be asking for a override of the Headlee Amendment in the June 11 school election. Laker Board members decided at Monday night’s meeting. Previously, Sup. Bob Drury had anticipated an SEV in- crease of 5.19% for this year, based on tentative figures from boards of review. But final figures show only an increase of 4.89%, only slightly above the 4.19% inflation rate. Because no construction in the district is excluded from any Headlee figures, the district won’t need to ask for an override of the Headlee amendment, Drury said. The board will still be asking for a renewal of 3.5 mills for five years at the election.

The Headlee amendment requires school districts to roll back their millage levies whenever SEV in the district rises at a rate below the previous year’s rate of inflation. If the district was forced to roll back, it could only levy 28,917 mills instead of the 28,962 currently authorized. That would mean a loss to the district of about $16,000. Drury called dropping the override request “good news and bad news.”

“The good news is that we only have to ask for the renewal. The bad news is that I still feel strongly that the district will be impacted by Headlee and this could have been an opportu- nity to educate the public as to why we might need to override it,” he said. He warned the district may still need to ask for an override next year because anticipated expendi- tures will be greater than revenues in the next school year. He anticipates a deficit of $135,000 next year.

That deficit will be covered from the district’s $570,000 fund balance, but Drury warned that the district could not afford to balance its budget that way for many years.

“Our fund balance is only about 10% of our budget, and that’s the bare minimum a school district should have,” Drury said.

Benefits for staff and teachers are expected to be increased about 10% next year, and a negotiated 6% raise for teachers will be in effect next year, he said.

OTHER BUSINESS: The Laker Board will send a letter of support to the Huron County Road Commission for re- placing two bridges within the district. A bridge over the Pinnabog River on Buna Road in Chandler Township is currently closed, and a bridge on Bronder Road in Winson Township over the Pigeon River is closed, causing detours for school buses.

The lesions will be forwarded to the Michigan Department of Transportation for action in replacing the bridges this year.

The Board discussed property in Bay Port supposedly owned by the district that Pa’s Haven Township wanted to buy or lease for expansion of the township fire hall. The property is located just north of the Bay Port Elementary school, between the school and the current hall.

But after researching plats and maps available at the Huron County Courthouse, plus other available documents, Drury discovered that the property is most likely a right of way for Poplar Street, and the district doesn’t own it.

RELAUNCH!

In February, the American Red Cross launched its $300 million emergency fund program to ensure that disaster relief can be provided to those affected by disasters. The program provides grants to local Red Cross chapters to support disaster relief efforts. Because of that effort, Red Cross officials are able to provide immediate assistance to people affected by disasters. The program is funded through donations from individuals, corporations, and other organizations.

ELKTON RESIDENTS MEET THE CHALLENGE — AGAIN!

The Riverview Mini-Mill in Columbia welcomed a new management team this week when it was announced that a branch of their new Elkhorn Mills mill will be opened on the new site.

The new site will be located in the former Pulaski County municipal building, which is now under new ownership.

The new site will offer prospective tenants such as offices, retail, restaurants, and more. As mentioned in the previous issue, the former building was vacated by the county due to financial constraints.

The Riverview Mini-Mill is a leading producer of paper products, and the new site will allow for increased production capacity.

As we see it

Can’t we do it for the good feeling...

You have to wonder more and more how things are going to get around the old world keeps spinning around. Then, you’ve got to consider the answer to stories such as this.

A Joseph, Michigan was vacationing in Florida recently, when the wife dropped her purse. When they reached the hotel room, she found that her checkbook was missing. It was her husband’s checkbook.

The lady’s purse contained $15,000 in jewelry and nearly the same amount in “to get their hands above water” financially. On the other hand, she was old and sick and theMichigan couple who lost the money.

But when the purse was found, the wife pulled out the money and did the right thing: she returned it to the rightful owners. The old couple, the couple gave the lady $500 for her trouble.

Here’s where the story gets frustrating. The Michigan couple, being of the right mind, returned the purse and comments and called them “whitewash” and “chink-skate” for getting the lady a $500 for her trouble.

Now, in $500 seemed as a reward for doing the right thing $1500 enough, or too much? How about $2000 or $25,000?

Or, is the grateful thanks of a relieved person appropriate if he returns a purse to someone for $500? And what kind of example is being set for this 15-year-old girl? Will she now think every good deed deserves a reward? And to say it’s a reward that’s ample enough to properly compensate

Imagine the next time that little girl gets a chance to do a good deed. Will she stop to consider a possible reward before doing it?

It’s not the little girl who complained her reward was inadequate. It was selfish adults, greatly self-centered adults who live mile hill into a mountain.

Here’s a Crash Course in College Success...

Going away to college is one of life’s most memorable milestones.

You’re growing up, leaving the nest, and making the leap into an adult world.

You have learned forward to this significant and exciting time.

But you can be a little wary, too. No one will remind you to set your alarms, do your homework, or eat nutritious meals.

Here are some tips to ensure you succeed:

STAYING HEALTHY

A lot of your new friends may encourage you to try new things.

But you can keep your health in check by:

- Eating a balanced diet
- Drinking plenty of water
- Getting enough sleep

You can also avoid common illnesses by:

- Keeping your hands clean
- Wearing gloves when handling food

REMEMBER...

- Always wash your hands before and after handling food
- Cook meats and poultry to the proper temperature
- Avoid cross-contamination

Refrigerate leftovers promptly and use them within 2-3 days

You can also avoid common infections by:

- Covering your mouth and nose when you cough or sneeze
- Getting vaccinated for flu

REMEMBER...

- Get your flu shot
- Wear a mask in crowded places

SELF-DEFENSE

In a college dorm, you are vulnerable.

- Keep your doors locked
- Use a personal alarm
- Report any suspicious activity to your RA

YOU CAN SURVIVE COLLEGE...

- With the right attitude
- By making wise choices
- By seeking help when needed

The bottom line is that you have the power to make your college experience a success.

You can do it!
Confidence and Preparation Clinch the Job...

PREPARATION COUNTS

A little preparation will enhance your confidence. And it includes everything from brushing your teeth and planning the interview to preparing answers to possible questions.

Know what the company does. What other companies are its competitors? What is the competition doing? What’s their price? What’s their reputation? What are their strengths and weaknesses?

Learn about the company, especially the person you are meeting with. Have you heard of him before? What is his experience in the company? What is his experience in the industry?

Dress for success. Make sure you know the dress code. Are you allowed to wear casual clothing? What is the dress code in this industry? What is the dress code in this company?

Interview Don’ts...!

Don’t be late. Make sure you know the exact location of the company. It is better to be early than late. If you are late, call ahead and let them know.

Don’t be nervous. Remember, you are the best candidate for the job. You have done your research and prepared for the interview.

Don’t ask personal questions. Don’t ask questions that are not related to the job.

Don’t ask questions that are not related to the job. Don’t ask questions that are not related to the job. Don’t ask questions that are not related to the job.

Don’t be negative. Don’t say anything negative about your current or former employer.

Don’t be phony. Don’t lie about your skills or experience.

Don’t make any promises. Don’t promise anything that you can’t deliver.

Don’t be too casual. Don’t dress too casually. Make sure you are dressed appropriately for the job.

submit will earn the grade you want. When that happens, promise yourself to do better next time and put it behind you. Develop a circle of friends to whom you can turn when you need a sympathetic ear, and call home when you need a shot of TLC. Establishing a routine can help you avoid stress, as well. Do your laundry and clean your room on the same day each week. Develop regular study habits.

Divide a sheet of paper into a square for each hour of the day. Fill in the times you are sleeping, going to class or working at your part-time job. Notice how many empty blocks there are and plan them wisely. Then stick to it.

If your well-laid plans fail you and an unexpected disaster tempts you to look for solace in drugs and alcohol or even to consider suicide, tell someone at once. College campuses have counselors trained to help you with problems you can't handle alone.

ROOMMATE ROULETTE
How you choose and deal with your roommate are crucial factors in determining your happiness and success at college. It's probably best to room with a friend from your high school, since you'll be more likely to exclude new people and experiences from your life if you do.

Unless you specify a particular person, most colleges assign roommates randomly, which is an excellent first step in learning to deal with the many different types of people you'll meet once you're on your own. Your new companion may not turn out to be your best friend, but by working together you can create a pleasant climate of study and relaxation for both.

Be open and honest with your roommate. Make a pact that you'll discuss any habits or irritations that get in the way of your peaceful coexistence. Give each other plenty of space and time alone.

Both of you need to agree on security precautions. Keep your door locked whenever you are away from your money and jewelry and other valuables at home, but store those you do bring out of sight and in obvious places.

Most campuses have a system for switching roommates if yours is intolerable, but try your best to reach your own difficulties before you resort to that option.
