Caseville's new $7.2 million sewage system and wastewater treatment facility is becoming a reality, as contractors started to work on the project last week.

And official groundbreaking ceremonies are scheduled this Friday, Nov. 2 at 12 noon at the Caseville Municipal Harbor, according to village officials. The harbor area was chosen for the groundbreaking ceremonies because it will be the site of the main pump station.

The sewage system will include three sewage treatment lagoons and about 15 miles of sanitary sewer, according to Caseville DPW Supervisor Bob Peter.

The treatment facility was mandated by the Department of Natural Resources after studies showed that some residents had sewage going directly from their septic systems, through the drain fields, and into the Pigeon River.

Financing for the project will come from a $2.88 million loan and $1.4 million grant from the Farmers Home Administration, and a $2.9 million loan from the Environmental Protection Agency.

The loans will be repaid from proceeds of revenue bonds previously sold by the Village, Peter said.

Sewage will be pumped to the lagoons, located on the Pigeon River off W. Kinde Road, Peter said. There, bacteria and algae in the lagoon will work to break down wastes.

Previously, state water control officials have said that odor from the lagoons should only be noticeable in the spring, when ice formed during the winter on the surface of the lagoons begins to break up and the water begins to turn over.

Peter said some limited treatment of the lagoon water will take place, and the treated water will be discharged into the Pigeon River twice a year.

The three lagoons have a capacity of 57 million gallons, which is about 15 percent above the capacity actually needed for the village's needs, Peter noted. He said that the system should be in limited use by Sept. 1, 1991, but that the rate of construction this winter will depend on the weather.

Lanzo Construction of Roseville is the contractor for the sewer lines, and Angelo Iafrate Construction of Warren will be building the lagoons.

The battle for a new water system in Caseville Township may be over for now, but opponents of the project are sure the war isn't over yet.

Officials from the township water committee shelved those plans last week, citing lack of support for the project among township residents.

Township leaders wanted to extend water service from the Village of Caseville's water treatment plant into Caseville Township as a way of improving the water supply to residents and improve fire protection.

Officials said water quality in the township has deteriorated and that increased residential growth would require a water system.

Residents would have been charged $37 per front foot for each benefitted lot, officials said, and agricultural land would have been exempt. A $850 capital charge and a $600 connection fee would have to be paid for each resident hooking into the system.

Each user would have been charged $62 per quarter for 20,000 gallons, the same as village residents.

Costs were one of the main reasons the plan was shelved. Many residents protested that the costs would have been too high for the many senior citizens living in the township.

Other residents said they simply didn't think the new water system was needed, that their well water was satisfactory. Township officials had said that costs could have been spread over a 20-year period, making the costs easier to handle.

Opponents, spearheaded by the efforts of Bob and Barb Engleman, sponsored a petition drive aimed at defeating the proposed project, after township attorney Mike Otto gave an opinion saying that a voter referendum could not be legally held.

Velja Cullen, a member of the township water committee, said that the board didn't have the necessary signatures of 51 percent of the township's property owners to proceed with the project along its proposed route.

"The engineering study and other data from the project are being retained and could be reactivated at a future time if the township desires or if some government agency should mandate that we provide a community-wide source of pure water for the people," Cullen said in a release.

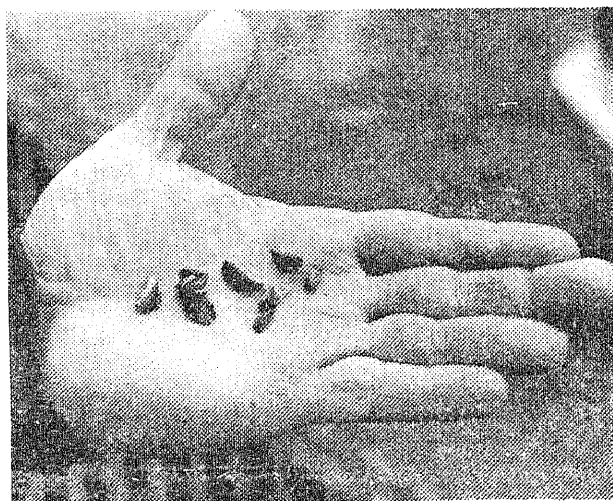

Barb Engleman, who gathered signatures on petitions against the water project, said she was "shocked" when she learned the project had been shelved.

But she warned, "They can bring it up again anytime. I have all the minutes and the petitions. I imagine they'll bring it up again in six months."

Her husband, Bob, said that township officials had exaggerated claims that the EPA would be checking private wells and municipal water systems.

"Politicians can manipulate things and get projects going and the taxpayers pay for them," he said. "I'm glad it's been shelved."

"They've been giving different reasons like water quality, but that's untrue. They're trying to scare people and the people didn't fall for it."

Although the dreaded Zebra Mussels have been showing up in the lower Great Lakes for several years -- and some appeared in Lake Huron early during the past summer -- Saginaw Bay had been considered free so far.

No more. Last week, Bay Port Fish Company crew members found the first of the mussels on a net anchor while lifting nets.

The worrisome little beasts are held here by Dan Terrian, longtime Bay Port fisherman. He says Zebras are about the size of a small fingernail.

Not only U.S. government agencies, but similar governmental groups in other foreign countries, are working to find remedies to eliminate or reduce Zebra Mussel populations.

A new dues structure was presented to the Pigeon Chamber of Commerce and accepted by the members present at the group's quarterly meeting last Thursday at the Pigeon District Library.

President Rhonda Buehler designed a new classifications structure, using gross sales, number of employees and business classification.

"It is our hope that we can pursue additional chamber members if we have an equitable dues system," Buehler explains. "The way it has been in the past, our Chamber would have no way of seeking additional members because we had no real system for determining a fair dues rate for a business."

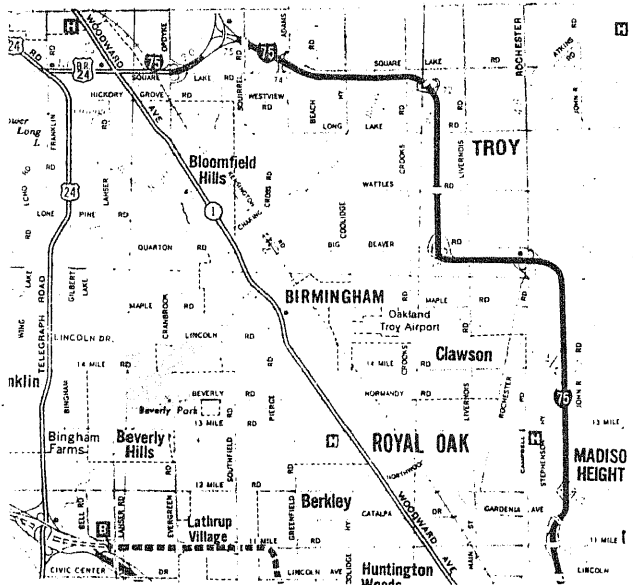

"Now we hope to approach businesses who should be chamber members but aren't, plus we can open new classes of chamber membership to churches, non-profit groups, farmers, etc. We aren't intending to raise present dues, but are hoping to open up new avenues for gaining members, which will automatically increase our revenues," she adds.

John Schaefer and Carol Diener will work on a Membership Committee, using the new dues structure, which will be explained in a letter distributed to all Chamber members.

SAVINGS CARD: President Buehler explained a proposed Chamber promotion, a Customer Discount Card, which would allow cardholders to enjoy discounts on a variety of items at participating merchants.

The offerings would change each month and would be advertised in a Plus on Page 28

SEVERAL THOUSAND local folks will be cheering on the Laker Football Team (9-0) at 1:30 p.m. this Saturday, when Region 4 State Semi-Final play begins versus Detroit Country Day (9-0) at Country Day's home field, at the corner of Lahser and 13 Mile Roads in Birmingham.

Drivers can take I-75 south to Square Lake Road, and follow it west past Woodward to Lahser. Turn left (south) and follow it about five miles south to the school.

Country Day earned second-place ranking and Coach Bill McLellan's Lakers placed third in points in State Class CC for the region. Also at 1:30 on Saturday, number 1 ranked Detroit St. Martin DePorres (8-0) plays fourth-ranked Flat Rock (7-2) at Hammerberg. Winners of the two contests will face each other at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 9 or at 1:30 p.m. next Saturday, Nov. 10. State semi-final locations will be named Nov. 12. GOOOOO LAKERS!

First one, now TWO theatres!

First there was one, and now there are two. The former Bad Axe Theatre has been transformed into Bad Axe Cinema I and Cinema II, thanks to a unique remodeling effort which made the former balcony and main floor into separate movie showcases.

Owners Tom and Jeanie Pfeifle say the renovation should help bring in more customers to the central Thumb's only movie theatre, since the quality of presentation and comfort for customers has been improved.

CINEMA I on the main floor holds 346 seats and features surround-sound stereo, to help make patrons feel they're in the middle of the movie action. The projectors for Cinema I are behind the screen of the upstairs Cinema II, and new color-coded interior wall motifs are more pleasant, Pfeifle adds.

All theatre seats have been cleaned or refurbished, too. CINEMA II has seats for 167 movie-goers in the former balcony. The projectionist there oversees crowd behavior in the intimate venue, as well as operating the fully-automated movie projectors for Cinema I.

"We opened on Friday, Oct. 19, and the upstairs theatre has been outdrawing downstairs 2-to-1," Pfeifle said.

Two theatres allows more movies to be shown for more variety, he adds. The main lobby, ticket sales and concession areas have been completely rebuilt, too.

OWNER Tom Pfeifle shows the unique horizontal platter projector. The bottom platter shows a complete movie film, which is collected on the top platter as it runs.

Prosecutor contest heads Election '90 match-ups

By MARY DRIER Staff Writer

The outcome of the Huron County Prosecuting Attorney's race will decide whether Leslie Hagen or David Herrington becomes the county's first full-time prosecutor.

Previously, the Prosecuting Attorney has been a part-time position, with the elected prosecutor also allowed to operate a private law practice.

Running for prosecutor are Democrat David Herrington and Republican Leslie Hagen.

In races for the County Board of Commissioners, only Districts 4 and 6 have contests.

In District 4, squaring off are newcomers Democrat Alfred A. Grika, 50, and Republican Julia Heilig, 47, for the position vacated by Jean Talaski, who did not seek reelection.

In District 6, incumbent Republican Martha Thuemmel, 47, of Port Austin, is challenged by newcomer Democrat Robert D. Quinn of Caseville.

The commissioners in the following districts are unopposed:

District 1, incumbent Republican Bruce W. Kuhl, 55 of Sebewaing.

District 2, incumbent Republican R. Dale Wertz, 43 of Bay Port.

District 3, incumbent Republican Robert Hogan, 64 of Bad Axe.

District 5, incumbent Republican Robert Witherpoon, 60.

The non-partisan positions are unopposed for both incumbents, 52nd Circuit Court M. Richard Knoblock of Port Austin and 73rd District Court (First Division) Karl E. Kraus of Pigeon.

Judge Kraus was named by Gov. James Blanchard to fill the vacancy created last year, when longtime District John John Schubel retired.

There are four townships with millage proposals:

Chandler Township voters will decide on a renewal of 1 mill for two-year proposal for roads.

Gore Township voters will decide on a renewal of 2 mills for five years for roads.

Pointe Aux Barques Township is going for a new millage proposal of 4 mills for two years for gypsy moth control.

Rubicon Township voters will decide on a renewal of 3 mills for 5 years for roads.

The following township elections are to fill vacancies and all candidates are unopposed:

Brookfield Township - Republican Dennis J. Engelhardt is running for trustee.

Grant Township - Republican Theodore Sheldon is running for trustee.

Sigel Township - Republican Donald Wolschleger is running for clerk.

Sherman Township - Republican Leo Emming is running for supervisor and Republican Karen M. Gunter is running for trustee.

Sheridan Township - Republican Vicki M. Roth is running for treasurer.

Chandler Township - Republican William Renn is running for supervisor.

BAY COAST GUARD GROWTH

The U.S. Coast Guard will add 25 officers at its new Tawas Bay station next May, when the $1.7 million facility opens at the end of Tawas Point Road. The 30,000-sq.-ft. building will replace the existing Coast Guard station at Tawas Point, which has operated continuously since 1876 and presently is home to 15 officers.

Coast Guard Tawas Station Commander Robert Moore says the station is being enlarged to handle the growing demands of boating traffic in Lake Huron and Tawas Bay. The federal agency will retain ownership of the Tawas Point lighthouse and property near the tip of Tawas Point, where a fog horn is positioned.

FIRST NATIONAL SETS DIVIDEND

A 40-cent-per-share cash dividend has been declared for all stockholders of First National Bank of Bad Axe, for all shareholders of record as of Oct. 31.

The dividend will be paid Nov. 15, according to Thomas G. Ouellette, president and chief executive officer of the bank, a subsidiary of First of Huron Corp.

First National Bank of Bad Axe, with offices in Bad Axe, Sebewaing and Harbor Beach, has assets of $85.9 Million.

M-24 OPENS AT M-138

"Road closed" signs came down over the weekend opening the M-138 section of the M-24 extension highway south of Unionville. This marks the completion of the third phase of a four-phase project to extend M-24 northward from Caro to join M-25 in Unionville.

The project calls for M-24 to continue past M-81 north on Cleaver Road, curving west to Bielle and going cross country to M-138, which runs south into Unionville connecting with M-25.

The 5.3 mile, $1.8 million improvements to M-138 ran few weeks behind schedule because of rainy weather and an unexpected addition to the project.

A portable weigh station pit was added to the project, to help weigh masters check trucks for overloads. Work on the last M-24 segment should begin by early 1993.

COURT PROCEEDINGS

In 73rd District Court (Huron County), Judge Karl Kraus recently heard the pleas of or passed judgment on:

OBSERVATIONS BY CO-PUBLISHER MARK RUMMEL AND ANYBODY ELSE HE CAN GET TO WRITE 'EM!

NAMES MAKE NEWS: We've seen several local folks and places "out in public" this past week, including:

■ Pigeon's Peggie Leipprandt and daughter Jill, interviewed Thursday night on Channel 5's 11 p.m. newscast about holiday shopping trends;

■ Sebewaing's Bruce Kuhl, County Commissioner and incoming leader of the Michigan Association of Counties, featured in a recent picture and story in the national newspaper USA TODAY.

■ One of my favorite Thumb sites, the Pointe Aux Barques lighthouse at the tip of our Thumb, is featured in the Historical Society of Michigan's eighth annual lighthouse calendar.

The lighthouse, now open to the public as a museum, was built in 1857 and is 89 feet tall.

Folks who'd like a copy should contact the HSM, 2117 Washenaw Ave., Ann Arbor, 48104, and remember, there is a charge...

■ Lyle Gascho's hand-made oak furniture was featured in a full-color ad for Art Van Furniture in Sunday's Detroit News/Free Press magazine. They correctly say these beautiful dining tables and chairs are made by "Amish and Mennonite" craftsmen—and remember, they're made right here in Pigeon and the Thumb...

WHO'S POPULAR THIS HALLOWEEN? You'll see plenty of Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles trick-and-treating on the streets tonight, according to national costume experts. They are popular choices, as are Bart Simpson look-alikes and Little Mermaid costumes. Also, blue-haired mama Marge Simpson will be popular too.

(PERSONAL NOTE: The above facts come from reliable national news sources and are accurate. The fact that nine-year-old Sarah Rummel MAY be Marge Simpson and six-year-old Andrew Rummel MAY be Bart Simpson for Halloween this year is a coincidence, honestly...)

Anyway, a large number of Civil War look-alikes will be on the streets, as will Barbie (the doll) and other "whimsical" characters. That's a refreshing change from ghoulish and gory characters of past years, the experts say...

ONE-TWO-ONE HUNDRED: I'm just fascinated with Detroit's on-going efforts to recount for residents missed by the U.S. Census in April. The Census Bureau counted 980,000 or so folks, short of the magic one million number needed for "extra" federal and state aid. They had hoped to find 30,000 folks who weren't at home or didn't respond, since this was the first time Detroit had fewer than a million residents since 1950.

So, Detroit sent "volunteer" folks to find those who weren't counted and what happened? They magically found 121,350 more people!

I think Detroit should be allowed to "add" 13% more population IF the rest of our towns and cities can do the same. I'm sure I could find 100,000 or so folks who forgot to be counted here in the Thumb—and we'll get more governmental aid!

Sounds fair, at least from here. And if they can find that many more folks, maybe they should try balancing my checkbook one time. I could use 13% more money, too...

HAPPENING IN THE THUMB: ■ Sandusky voters will be asked to approve construction of a new $12 million high school there, following 18 months of study.

■ Berger & Company's Brown City elevator has been sold to J & J Farm Services, as of Friday. Berger is restructuring, and sold its Cass City elevator last month to Wruble Elevator, Inc., of Ubyly. It also plans to close its Sandusky elevator after this harvest season, but will keep open Berger elevators in Crosswell and Deckerville...

■ Trinity, Elmer and Moore United Methodist Churches in the Snover area are merging to form the Heritage United Methodist Church. Rev. Mike Norton says the new church will better serve the area.

■ Finally, Terra International will close its Sandusky store, the fertilizer and chemical company says, and may expand its Marlette and Applegate stores instead...

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "The man who claims that his mother-in-law can't take a joke forgets himself!" (Karl Hertz)

Guest Viewpoint

Let recycled products meet their makers

For many years I owned a Smith-Corona portable typewriter. Ribbons cost less than $2 and could be reused until the words on the paper were a dull gray. By banging hard, I could get up to 600 pages out of one ribbon. When I threw the ribbon away, I knew I had gotten my money's worth, and I saved most of the used spools for the kids to play with.

Then I got an SCM personal word processor. It was easier, quieter and faster. It beeped when I typed "quiet" instead of "quiet." The only problem with the thing was that it didn't use ribbons. It used "multi-strike ribbon cartridges" that lasted about 200 pages. These were larger than audio cassettes and cost almost $8. You couldn't just replace the ribbon. You had to buy a whole new cartridge and throw the old one away.

Much as I enjoyed my new word processor, I hated throwing away all that unrecyclable plastic. I let used cartridges pile up on the mantel while I tried to figure out something to do with them. Finally, in desperation, I sent one back to the manufacturer with a note saying I thought the product was overpriced and created more trash than was necessary. It was an emotional act, and I didn't expect anything to come of it.

Ten days later, I got a form letter full of platitudes about commitment to customer satisfaction... along with a new cartridge. A week later, I sent off another used cartridge and, once again, got a new one for free, with another letter about customer satisfaction.

So now, whenever I run into a useful product I feel is packaged wastefully, I send the packaging back to the manufacturer when I'm through with it. Pump toothpaste? The only way to go when you have small children, but why aren't the pumps reusable? I've sent several used Aqua-Fresh pumps back to Beecham Products with notes asking that question. Every time, Beecham sends me free products and a stack of coupons worth at least $5.

I'm making money at this. I've written dozens of letters to politicians, and I've never gotten so much as a ticket to a bull roast. But every time I write to a consumer products manufacturer, I get free products or coupons worth at least $2 or $3. But money isn't the main reason I write to companies instead of to government officials.

Governments don't care about us, and big companies don't care about governments. We can hold hundreds of rallies and pass petitions to all our neighbors. Maybe, after a lot of work, we can get some sort of bill introduced to outlaw unnecessary packaging. Even if, by some miracle, a waste reduction bill gets signed into law, corporate lawyers will hack away at it in court until it is meaningless. Direct action, on the other hand, has a fighting chance of success.

Imagine, for one second, that you're president of Beecham Products, the maker of Aqua-Fresh, and you read about 200,000 people going to an Earth Day rally. What do you do? Shake your head a few times and turn to the sports pages?

Now imagine your reaction if, instead of going to an Earth Day rally, each one of those people sent you a used Aqua-Fresh toothpaste pump along with a note asking you to throw it away. What would you do? Probably call your packaging department and ask it to design a refillable pump.

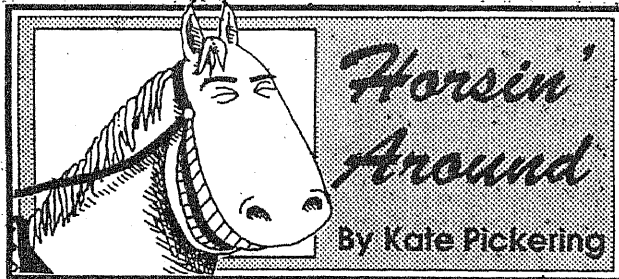

The great thing about this protest is that anyone can do it, anywhere, at any time. You don't have to join anything, or go to meetings or drive anywhere. You don't have to find a babysitter. All you need are stamps, envelopes and some paper.

Will your voice count? Million-dollar ad campaigns have been pulled because small groups of religious fanatics didn't like a particular TV show. Major cosmetics manufacturers have suspended animal testing because their customers wrote and told them they didn't like the idea.

Members of Congress may not care about your views, but consumer product executives do, because they can lose their jobs over tiny declines in market share.

Look around your house. You'll find at least a dozen products packaged in nonrecyclable containers you can return for under $1 in postage. I looked, and by the time of the second commercial break in The Simpsons, I found 15, including disposable diapers. I decided to dispose of the diapers. There are limits to everything.

HAVE A SAFE AND HAPPY

For those of us with bad food and candy addictions, Halloween ushers in the deadliest six months of the year! Between Halloween in October and Easter in April, we are forced to endure Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Years and Valentine's day. That's one food-or-candy-filled holiday per month, (with the exception of St. Patrick's day in March, when we get drunk instead.)

The coming winter days will be filled with chocolate comas and caramel calories, no matter how conscious an effort you make to avoid the leftover snack-size Snickers in your kid's trick-or-treat bag, to turn away from the seven varieties of pie presented at the Thanksgiving Day table, or to ignore the aroma of Christmas cookies coming hot out of mom's oven.

But as intoxicating and deadly as these food-stuffs may be - all goodies aside, there is still an orange-and-black charm about Halloween that separates it altogether from every other holiday. Halloween is, after all, the only holiday that celebrates a really different concept. All the other holidays are so rosy - buttons and bows, hearts and flowers, gifts and glitter, colored eggs and candy. Halloween's central theme, on the other hand, is horror, fear, death and decay. And with the exception of some egg-head know-it-all who mentions it once or twice every year, we have all but forgotten that Halloween began as merely a precursor to All Saints Day. Some very wise marketers early on in this century figured out, though, that All Saints Day was not really as profitable or as easily marketed as perhaps All Hallow's Eve. (Would you, after all, buy or fashion a costume patterned after, say - St. Francis of Assisi? Well, it would be easy enough - true.)

But on the lighter side (?) who among us actually feels any real horror or fear on Halloween night? Despite the fact that we glob on make-up designed to simulate exposed entrails, or award prizes at parties for the most horrific costumes, don't we actually get more laughs than lamentation out of Halloween? Well, if that isn't - in its own unusual way - a tribute to the human spirit, what is? It just goes to show we'll have fun with just about anything - even fear and death. What a country! The only real fear any of us have on Devil's night and Halloween is not of the dead and dying, of spirits and witches or ghosts and goblins - but of ourselves - poisoning little kids with contaminated candy, destroying and burning valuable property and buildings. Heck, if given a choice, bring on the dead people! After all, has a ghost ever put a needle in a Twinkie, smashed a child's pumpkin, or burned down a grandstand?

Have A Safe And Happy Halloween
— AND BE NICE —

TELLING STATISTICS

Statistics tell us things. They tell us how much and when and where. Statistics use numbers that mark trends. They help us back our hunches with facts. They help mark place and time and people.

Statistics do not have the final say; they just point a direction. Behind statistics are the people affected by the trends that numbers mirror. Behind statistics are the trials and successes, the tear and frustrations.

With this column, "Telling Statistics," "From Under the Willow" begins a new approach. "Telling Statistics" columns will appear occasionally and will attempt to reflect in numbers and trends some of the happenings in rural life and in the larger contemporary society that we are a part of.

BY GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

Last week one day, several of us older men were drinking our coffee. Some young men came in and we saw some big loads of sugar beets going past and we started to talk about how we used to take out beets years ago.

I still have a beet lifter. It has a steel beam in it. Years ago they had wooden beams and if the ground was hard, once in awhile they'd break. I remember one fall I was working for a farmer and the ground was very hard. We had to hitch three horses to the lifter.

The boss was a little man and he made me lift the beets. Well, it wasn't a bad job but if you hit a stone or the clevis pin broke, you'd fly over the handle just like a plow. And if you didn't say anything but "Oh my," you were a pretty good man or you didn't get mad very easily.

Then you pulled the beets out of the ground and knocked them together and either threw them in a row or on a pile and took your beet knife and topped them, made piles and covered them up with tops so they wouldn't dry out 'til you got ready to haul them to the weigh station.

Those beet toppers, as we called them, are getting scarce. I have some around yet and I'll hang on to them yet for awhile.

Some came with a hook over them, but the sugar factory didn't like them because they said it bruised the beet too much. If you were helping

PRESCHOOL STORY HOUR

The Tuesday Preschool Story Hour theme for Nov. 6 will be "Scarecrows" with the stories "Happy Harry and The Scarecrow" and "Sam and the Scarecrow."

Exercises, fingerplays and a game will be part of the activities the children will participate in. "Show and Tell" will be the highlight of the hour and each child may bring in one item to show.

Children from age three to five are invited to attend either the 9 or 10:30 a.m. session. A registration fee is required, per family, per year.

made possible for each of the public libraries in the White Pine Cooperative through a LSCA (Library Services and Construction Act) Grant. The libraries will use the machines to fill interlibrary loan requests for magazine articles and other cooperative business. The Pigeon District Library will work with the library board to set-up policies and procedures.

The local library is a member of the White Pine Cooperative, which covers 11 counties in the East Central Lower Peninsula.

MEADOWBROOK HALL TOUR

Several feature films are planned for area seniors on Thursday, Nov. 8 at 1:30 p.m. in the library's community room.

Featured films will be "The Man Who Loved Bears," based on the story of a man who raised a grizzly bear; "Man: The Incredible Machine," via sophisticated photogenic and recorded techniques, the human body is revealed to be a complex, yet efficient living machine" and "Busy Bodies," Laurel and Hardy court disaster as they work in a planning mill.

In the final moments their Model T Roadster heads for the bandsaw.

These films are open to all senior citizens in the surrounding area. "Bring a friend!" encourages Librarian Naomi Jantzi.

Richmond, Trost represent Pigeon at GFWC Convo

Pigeon was represented by two delegates of the Pigeon Worth While Club last week when 215 women gathered in Perysburg, Ohio for the General Federation of Women's Clubs Great Lakes Conference.

Roberta Richmond, 35-year member now serving as president of the Pigeon Worth While Club and Eleanor Trost, 49-year club member who has served on the GFWC local, county and state levels, represented the Pigeon club. During 1990-91, GFWC is celebrating 100 years of service to communities, the nation and the world. It is the world's oldest and largest nondenominational, non-partisan women's volunteer service organization, consisting of more than 8,500 clubs and approximately 350,000 members active in communities across the U.S. and around the world.

The entire GFWC national board was in attendance at the conference, which included workshops and seminars during the three-day event.

The Great Lakes Region of GFWC is comprised of Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois and Ohio.

Attendants at the conference listened to GFWC National President Phyllis J. Dudenhoffer speak on the topic, "Igniting the Future." Other conference speakers included Joanne Owens-Nausler, state director of Health and Physical Fitness Education for the Nebraska Department of Education; Janey Orr Reed, a speech consultant and clinician for Shaklee Corp. sales leaders and current GFWC Public Relations/Communications Chairman and Elizabeth Anderson, GFWC Conservation Chairman, who, along with Shell Oil Co. representatives, conducted seminars for state and district conservation leaders.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

John A. Champagne — Director —

OPEN/CLOSED CASKET

Opinions and sentiment among the individual denominations on the question of having an open or closed casket at a funeral. Some of these differences are religious, others regional. Here is what a recent survey found.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergy unanimously prefer a closed casket during the religious service. They are divided, however, on the question of whether it should remain closed throughout the entire proceedings or be opened prior to the service, which gives those who were unable to come to the funeral home time to pay their respects - and then closed. Some Catholics and most Protestants favor a viewing period before the service, though there is considerable variation

Wesleyan congregation dedicates church Sunday

By AMY HEIDEN

It's been five years since the first Wesleyan church was founded in the Western Thumb Area. The Community Wesleyan Church's 36 charter members first met in the rented First Baptist Church on York Street in Elkton, but worked steadily on a building fund for their own building. That church building is now a reality, and the congregation has been holding services in the new church on Whalen Street since March. And now that all that's left to finish is a few minor details, members of the church will dedicate their new church home this Sunday, Nov. 4 at 3 p.m. with a special service.

The district superintendent of the Eastern Michigan District of the Wesleyan Church will be the guest speaker, and a reception will follow the service, according to Community's pastor, Rev. DeWeerd Smith. The 7,000 sq. ft. building includes a fellowship hall, kitchen, five classrooms, pastor's study, nursery, and secretary's office. The entire church is barrier-free, and accessible to the handicapped, Smith said. The sanctuary can seat nearly 275 worshippers, and was furnished with pews and altar furniture from a church in Crosswell. "You'd have thought these pews were made for this church," Smith says. The organ was donated by the Houghton Lake Wesleyan Church, and the piano was donated by Charles and Sharon Cole, the daughter and son-in-law of one of the charter members, the late Neilan Hoffman. Hoffman's will made a bequest to the church, Smith says, the first gift to the church's building fund. And brick from the house that formerly stood on the property will be the backdrop for a memorial board in Hoffman's honor. Most of the labor on the church was volunteer, Smith says. Most members and many friends of the church joined in to help paint, dry-wall, or sand, and Wesleyan church members from other parts of the state came to lend their expertise and strong backs. Smith noted that the Sheriff's work crew put in many hours helping with the project, and their careful work shows in the sanctuary. The congregation had originally planned to buy a parcel of land south of Elkton, but Smith said the deal fell through when it was determined the church would need a pumping system for sewage. Then he noticed a small sign on the property on Whalen Street, and the property was purchased from Frank and Paul Bliszak. Groundbreaking ceremonies were held in May 1989, and construction has progressed steadily since then. "The employees of the Village and everybody has been fantastic," Smith says. "And the local businesses loaned a lot of equipment for us to use. It's just been unbelievable all the way through." As an example of the generosity of friends of the church, Smith points out the copy machine in the secretary's office, and the like-new cabinets in the kitchen. Even the microwave, stove, and television were donated, he says. Sunday, Nov. 4 was chosen as the date of the dedication because it's the fifth anniversary of the first service the church held after its establishment in Elkton, Smith says. "The congregation is very excited about the new building. It's almost beyond belief what's happened," he says. The public is invited to the dedication.

WESLEYAN PASTOR DEWEERD SMITH relaxes for a brief moment sitting on the other side of the pulpit before Sunday's Dedication Service.

A planning meeting for the Laker 1981 10-year class reunion will be held Tuesday, Nov. 6 at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in attending may call 453-3956 or 883-3135. Your input will be welcome.

If the politicians of the Village of Caseville are worried about the traffic problems in town, why don't they have some traffic lights installed? Also, M-53 outside of Bad Axe could use a few.

Why should Caseville village residents have to pay for projects that will only line the pockets of the merchants of the town?

Where could I find someone to paint a picture on a Christmas tree ornament? Please reply in Listening Ear.

The article regarding the commercial fishing ban in last week's paper contained one major inaccuracy by Forrest Williams. He stated that the commercial fishermen have bent over backwards to resolve the problem.

The Concerned Citizens of Sand Point also attended meetings for years and found the commercial netters emphatic in their refusal to compromise. When the DNR presented options that would serve the interests of both commercial and sport fishermen, the netters adamantly rejected them.

Records prove that there was opposition by DNR biologists but their objections were erased by political interests. Mr. Williams also stated that netters only took 16% of the total perch catch, yet neglected to point out that their take is of the spawners, which leaves the sport fishermen with his "minnows."

We live on Crescent Beach Road. We resent saying the address is Sand Beach. We are PROUD to say our address is Pigeon. DEVOTED PIGEON FANS.

Hey, Peggie L., you looked pretty good on the 11 p.m. news Thursday night. Do you have your Christmas tree up already?

News reports say that morale is pretty low among the troops in Saudi Arabia. So I think it's important that we all get together and contribute to these drives for recreational equipment to go to them. And I hope everyone will send cards and letters to the service people whose addresses you can find in The Progress-Advance. We may not agree with the reasons they're over there, but we can show we haven't forgotten them.

Remember how the Vietnam vets felt when they thought the American people had forgotten them. They're doing a job, folks. They're not paid to think about why they're doing it.

Thanks, C.K. for sharing the "Bluebird of Happiness." It will bring a smile and probably a tear or two, plus a whole bunch of memories of a happy time. I can see why she likes it. It has a great message.

What a fantastic game the Lakers played Friday night! Your offense was great, but the defense really shined! The defensive players are often overlooked, but they are the 'steel behind the rock.'

The fans really helped support the boys, and those fans better be that noisy this Saturday to cheer the Green and White to victory over Country Day.

Sugar moving well

After 11 days of good sugar beet harvesting weather, Monday morning found about 380,000 tons of beets—amounting to 62%—of the crop either processed or on the piling grounds.

Ag Manager Dick Jacoby of the Sebewaing Plant of Michigan Sugar Company said that's good news but he added that harvesters and truckers are "still stopping a lot of mud around."

The past 5 days saw just about 37,000 tons of beets delivered each day, Jacoby said, adding that "4 or 5 more big days will ease all of us of a lot of pressure." Weather forecasts for the coming days are "good", he said.

When 85-90% of the beets are in, the pressure breaks and continuing deliveries are easier to handle, Jacoby explained.

A problem is the big amount of mud and soil that comes in with each truckload. When growers bring 30-32 ton loads, sometimes 3-4 tons of dirt are taken back to the fields.

Sometimes, however, a single-axle 15-ton truck might weigh back at 10 tons.
