HELP! Ambulance Service may close if volunteers aren’t found

By AMY HEIDEN

Your spouse has a bad accident at home. You call the ambulance for assistance.

But instead of the local Scheurer Ambulance crew—people you know and maybe do business with or attend church with—a new and different ambulance pulls in the driveway and a strange EMT crew jumps out.

Then imagine that several weeks later, you receive the bill for their services. Scould be very well be twice or three times what you expect it to be, or what you’ve heard your friends say they’ve paid.

Could never happen, you say.

It could, if severe shortage of Emergency Medical Technicians to man the Scheurer Hospital ambulance isn’t alleviated soon.

And although Scheurer’s EMTs don’t like to talk about it much, they’re personally suffering from burn-out—the result of too much stress and too many dilusions in their lives from too many hours spent on call.

Scheurer Administrator Dwight Gasco says the burn-out problem is caused by having the EMTs handle the numerous transfer runs, and the hours spent on call.

There are nine technicians on the roster, but only six of those can be on call seven days a week, 24 hours a week, Gasco says.

“Your can’t expect people to run all the time. Some of them would like to retire, but they feel a keen sense of responsibility and they stay on,” Gasco said.

CLEAN-UP: Jet crash investigation tries to prevent repeat

By SALLY RUMMEL

The area around George Swartzendruber’s farm is a constant reminder of the dangers that aviation brings to this area. The Swartzendruber home was hit by a jet as it crashed near the residential area.

The pilot was said to be under investigation by the National Transportation Safety Board.

The Swartzendruber family has been very active in aviation safety efforts.

The Swartzendruber report indicated that the pilot was under the influence of drugs at the time of the crash.

The investigation is ongoing and more information will be released as it becomes available.

Meanwhile, Paul and Ralph Swartzendruber are doing all they can to help in the investigation.

Keeping morale from bottoming out is new EMT class.

A new class of EMTs was recently formed at the hospital.

The new class is expected to increase the number of EMTs available to serve the community.

The new EMTs will be trained in advanced life support skills and will be able to provide care in a wide range of medical situations.

The new class is expected to improve the quality of care provided to patients in the hospital.

The hospital is also looking into the possibility of expanding its EMT program in the future.

For more information on the new EMT class, please contact the hospital’s emergency department.

The scenario described above, with a strange ambulance crew, could happen.

Gasco says, “If the EMTs are doing their jobs properly and the current EMTs are doing their jobs efficiently, the situation could get worse.”

The EMTs are working hard to provide the best possible care to those in need.

The hospital is committed to ensuring that the EMTs are properly trained and have the necessary equipment to do their job effectively.

For more information on the EMTs and their roles in the community, please contact the hospital’s emergency department.

The job of an EMT may be a tough one at times, Swartzendruber said, but it is his own reward.

There’s a real sense of helping people. When you make an ambulance run, there is a sense of knowing that people are looking to you for help.

Active workers beginning to feel the pinch

BY AMY NEIDEN

As the lockout at Active began, the union kicked off its 10th week, and many workers are beginning to feel the pinch. Necessities from the company, including coffee and lunch, no longer appear to be as cheap as an cheaper settlement than the one they were offered in the last round of negotiations. Union members rejected the contract, which would have allowed the company to reduce pay and cut benefits, and ratified a new contract that included a 3.3% pay raise.

What was good for Lake High School's football team, wasn't so good for their fans. Chad Daniels, who is the head coach of the Boca Raton High School's football team, announced that they will be participating in a rock-rolling tournament to help raise money for the Lake High School's football team, which is being affected by a severe financial crisis.

In order to make a good impression, the team members of the Boca Raton High School's football team, wanted to make sure that they have the best chance of winning the tournament. They decided to purchase new uniforms, and the team members began to practice hard, so that they could be ready to face their opponents.

The tournament will take place on Saturday, and the team members have been practicing every day, so that they can be ready for the tournament. They are very excited about the tournament, and they are looking forward to showing their skills on the field.

Andrei Daniels, one of the team members of the Boca Raton High School's football team, said: "We have been practicing very hard, and we are very confident that we can win the tournament. We are very excited about the tournament, and we are looking forward to showing our skills on the field."

Tips to help you cope...

On the help side, you will find a little help, and once you get there, you will see that all of the help that you need is there and you will know what to do.

One day you pick up a bottle and put it down, and you think that you are doing fine. The next day you pick up the bottle again, and you think that you are doing fine. You are not. You are not doing fine.

The cost of living is high, and it is difficult to make ends meet. It is important to take your time and make sure that you are making the best decision for your family.

As we see it

We’re doing our part, but where’s Japan and Germany?

Once again, we Americans are stopping forward to our part in stopping an evil dictator’s rule. With great courage, we’re taking on the fifth wheel in the Gulf War, even though we’re not on the front lines. We’re not in the region of conflict. Yet, we’re still doing our part to make sure that their attack on Kuwait is stopped.

Historically, Saddam Hussein has been feared not only for his military might, but also for his brutal policies. He has invaded and occupied neighboring countries, causing fear and uncertainty throughout the region.

Operation Desert Storm was not an American one. It was a coalition effort involving forces from many countries around the world. From Australia to Portugal, the coalition was a diverse group of nations joined together to stop Hussein.

The United States and our allies have been working hard to ensure that the Gulf War is resolved peacefully. We’re doing our part to prevent further aggression by Saddam Hussein.

As we move forward, it’s important to remember the sacrifices made by our military personnel and civilians alike. Let us continue to support our troops and work towards a peaceful resolution in the Middle East.

The military must keep MDA on its toes.

It has been a little more than a week since the first Battle of Kuwait. The United States, under the leadership of President George H.W. Bush, has been working hard to ensure that the situation is resolved peacefully.

MDA has been working hard to keep up with the demands of the war. They have been working around the clock to ensure that the United States is prepared for any potential threats.

MDA has been providing intelligence and surveillance to the military. They have been working with the commanders to provide them with the necessary information to make informed decisions.

She finds hidden treasure

FINDERS KEEPERS: Bernadette Hinson of Charlevoix has a treasure tucked away in her garage and rediscovered it 40 years later.

Her adventure started when she was a child. Eight years old, she was at home watching television when she turned her head. She saw a small box in the corner of the room, which she had tucked away in a drawer, which she remembered until she rediscovered it recently.

Hinson's version of Piggy银行's true wonder: a time capsule, carrying groceries, clothing, and other goods. Chasing Jettie Smith, the next door neighbor, she was told to keep the piggy bank. Hinson stored the piggy bank in Piggy every year, thinking it would be in the same place for her parents for 40 years, until it was destroyed by fire in the mid-1980s.

Jet crash clean-up

The recent crash of the F-16 fighter jet in Fair Haven Township near Bay Port has prompted further debate among the Michigan National Guard and the Michigan Department of Transportation’s Bureau of Aeronautics about a proposal by the National Guard to create a second military operating area in the northeastern Thumb, as well as over Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay.

It would allow 137 more flights each month and reduce the altitude jets could fly to just 300 feet above the ground and surface level over the water, according to reports Monday morning.

The M-DOT Bureau of Aeronautics agrees on the need for increased military training, but doesn’t think the Thumb is the right place for it.

The agency has told the National Guard the proposal would inhibit commercial traffic at Thumb airports. Garrett Klazdyk, manager of Huron County Memorial Airport in Bad Axe, says the proposal would have “an isolation effect up here.”

Because there is no civilian radar in the Thumb, says Klazdyk, the only way to keep private and military planes apart during training flight times is “to keep the other people out.”

The new proposal for the second military training area, which would allow 137 aircraft, confirms F-16s, to fly from only 300 upwards to 4,000 feet each month during daytime Mondays-Saturdays, twice a week at night and Sundays during the weekends.

Presently, military planes can fly between 4,000 and 18,000 feet above the ground, or roughly one to three miles. On four corridors, military flight times go as low as 500 feet above ground. This area, one of 10 military operating areas in Michigan, would remain if the new area is allowed.

This proposal has been in the works for the past several months, according to the Michigan National Guard, but talk has intensified since last Saturday’s F-16 crash in Huron County.

The public will have a chance to comment about the proposal before it goes to the Federal Aviation Administration later this year, according to Michigan National Guard Lt. Col. Brian Downey.

LOCALS, members of the Huron County Farm Bureau are questioning whether animal production might be damaged or reduced because of sonic booms or other loud noises from low-flying planes.

And, private pilots also worry their use of low altitudes might be jeopardized by faster-moving jets. Caseville private pilot David Kraft says, “It’s definitely too low and too dangerous, especially over residential areas.

“Besides, private aircraft can’t fly less than 500 feet except for takeoff and landing. It’s very dangerous because of the speed they fly.” He pilots a Cessna 172 and has been licensed since 1975.

Likewise, “Butch” Miller of Pigeon realizes the Air Force needs test areas — but doesn’t want one here.

“With their low level training flights, it wouldn’t be very safe in the air. There are many aerial sprayers and sightseeing flights in our area,” Miller says.

During the time of the investigation, Swartzendruber asked about the condition of the doomed pilot. He learned Wednesday that Brig. Gen. Stump is at home and said, "around" following for the last 15 minutes before the Schreier Hospital Ambulance picked him up for treatment in Pigeon. The pilot asked Mark Wiebe of Bay Port to report to Selfridge Air Force Base that he was being taken to Schreier Hos-
