The Progress-Advance
Locked-out Active workers get food help

By AMY HEIDEN

AWL Local 628 members get a bit of help with their food needs last week, when union officials opened their food bank.

Most of the non-perishable food items were purchased from a surplus food bank with monies from the Local's vending fund, according to union president Bob Wilson, and donations from members for the food items will be used to purchase even more food for the following weeks.

Each family also received a box of macaroni and cheese donated by Local 111 at Sobeisinger Industries, Inc.

Any food purchased with donated money, or food donated by other unions or individuals, will be given away free to union members, Wilson said.

Also on Friday, union members received a letter detailing the company's position on the proposed new contract.

The letter, signed by Active General Manager Donald Stern, spelled out the offers that pressure from automakers is having on suppliers such as Active.

Part of the letter said, "They (the automakers) are eliminating current suppliers from future business by continually pressuring them to reduce prices. Active has had to make four such reductions during the past three years.

"To make matters worse, our increased cost of doing business are unable to be passed on to our customers in the form of higher prices; costs can only be covered through increased efficiencies at plant level operations.

"The letter, with copies of articles from the Wall Street Journal, Detroit News and Detroit Free Press, also explained some details of the proposed health insurance plan, which would change from 100% coverage to an 80/20 plan.

"Cost of an employee's wage and benefit package would rise by 6.6%, from $22 per hour to $23.46 per hour worked, the letter said.

Union officials dismissed the letter as a ploy to cause friction between the bargaining committee and the union's members.

2-Cylinder Club meets Saturday

The Thumb Two-Cylinder Club will meet Saturday, Feb. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the Owosso Fireball.

The group is dedicated to the restoration and preservation of John Deere two-cylinder tractors. Members and interested persons are invited.

GREGORY AND JULIE CRAIG make their selections from the food bank which is provided to locked-out Active employees by AWL Local 628 union officials.
