

As we see it

There's a Laker pride... and they've earned it

Half-way through the third quarter of Friday night's Laker basketball District Final game against Uby, a quiet sense of reality settled in on the thousand-plus visiting fans in the Laker gym. As their team slipped further behind in score, some of the Bearcat fans once more began thinking, "There's that 'Laker luck' one more time." There were the Lakers, on their way to Regional play. As has happened innumerable times in the 30-year tradition of the Upper Thumb's first consolidated school district, another group of people had jealously misjudged exactly what really happened. Then, on Saturday, both the Laker Mock Trial Team earned the right to compete March 23 in State Finals, while the Laker Volleyball Team won its Regional trophy and prepared to go on to Quarterfinal play.

COUNTING THE COST OF ANOTHER WAR

Will the American people see the face of this war yet? Now that the ground war is over and truces have been declared and Iraq's forces are in retreat, will we begin to see the faces and count the cost?

In the homes of those who have lost loved ones in the war, mothers and fathers, husbands and wives and children are beginning to count the cost. They count it minute by minute as their grief is measured out in painful recollection.

Men and women who have lived months in the desert know the cost, too. For the rest of their lives, they will tell the stories and live with the twist of fate that placed them in action.

But the public has seen little of the face of this war. The Gulf War flashed through our consciousness in small sound bites and in quick clips of video cleaned up for television audiences. Carefully managed on all sides by military and media (both Iraq and the Allies handled this well), the war has yet to hit home for the American people.

Americans have been caught up in a fervor that says "we won," yet most adults know enough about life to realize that there are never real winners and real losers. Sometimes those who lose gain the most. Sometimes those who win find out that winning costs more than they thought.

The face of the war now becomes clearer as we count the cost in billions of dollars spent and thousands of lives interrupted. What seems like such a clear war for right and wrong pales into gray complexity as stories and statistics emerge.

Where have the children of Iraq been? We have not seen their faces in the news. We heard unsubstantiated reports of incubators being shut down in Kuwait City hospitals, but we never saw the disruption of schools and playgrounds in that city or in Iraq itself. Who will bring aid to these children now? Have some been killed? How many? Modern warfare looked so clean on television, but what has happened to the children of the Middle East?

Why are we closing down dissent? Our congressional representatives who voted to let sanctions work a while longer back before the January 15 deadline are now being castigated for their anti-war stance. Have we become a nation that thinks that war solves it all? Don't we allow our leaders the right to disagree? Are we equating patriotism with one-sided paranoia? Does an all-out action like the Gulf War now become the standard for how the U.S. handles foreign policy? Will the Western Alliance become the global bully?

What is happening to America's people? Where are the victories over measles and AIDS and cancer? When will we have a renewed educational system that doesn't channel some of our best youth into military reserve units because they can't afford to do anything else? When will we have a forward looking energy policy that doesn't rely on natural resource usage, ours or anyone else's?

Where is a nationwide health policy that treats people with dignity and assures mature citizens the same quality care that those in the private health care system get? When will we take a good look at our cheap food policy and begin to address the farm issues and food issues?

When will we face up to the fact that one fourth of American's children live in families of poverty and have limited futures?

What about standard housing? What about rampant drug and alcohol use? What about dead end jobs at low pay? What about crumbling roads and bridges in the country and inner city neighborhoods that are in shambles?

This victory in the Gulf, any military victory, for that matter, must now translate into new initiative. For any victory abroad is shallow if America refuses to face up to the troubles at home. The U.S. needs dedicated leadership and the kind of determination that will turn attention to a host of domestic troubles—troubles that threaten not only America, but the world.

The solution is not found in making war. It is found in making a nation. That's the hard task that now faces us as we begin to count the cost of the Persian Gulf War.

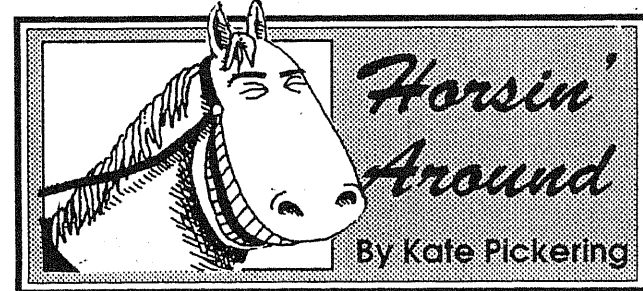

More of that "Laker luck?" Yes and no. It's a cheap shot to say there's a mystique or some kind of tradition of winning that umpires, referees, judges and others award to one team or group, just because they're part of "Lakers."

Actually, there's really one primary reason a sports and educational excellence continues year after year -- and event after event -- at Laker Schools: HARD WORK. It's that simple.

Whether the subject is football or band, volleyball or Future Farmers of America, basketball or drama, art or scholarship, Laker High IS a leader.

Mix carefully elements such as competent students, adequate facilities, supportive parents, top-notch coaches and teachers with that "winning tradition" and you'll find a mystique that's not really that difficult to figure out. Why can't other schools match it?

They could, but most don't. And, no other local school is as widely-diversified as is Laker High. Its students EARN their achievements the old fashioned way, through hard work.

PEEPER!

It dawned a gusty, grey day in mid-September. The skies threatened rain, but the billowing wind blew warm. I jumped in my pick-up and headed east first as I needed to run into Bad Axe for a minute before heading to work. As I approached the main traffic light in that town and slowed to a stop, a slight movement down on the pavement caught my eye. At first I thought it was a feather, so tiny, white, and fluffy that the gusts from the tires of each passing car blew it to and fro, ping-ponging it perilously about the oncoming traffic. Then the feather looked up at me! With shock and horror I realized that, whatever it was, it was alive! With shameful disregard for my fellow motorists (who, I might add, showed shameful disregard for the live thing trapped in the street) I racked my pick-up into park and dove out onto the street. Bad Axe is hardly downtown LA, but during peak hours of commerce it can seem like it! Cars and trucks and even semi's were whizzing past, honking their horns and hollering obscenities. I kept my eyes pinned on the teeny weeny creature, so slight, so frightened. I scooped it up and dashed back to my vehicle, eyes closed, praying I would make it back unscathed.

Once inside and well out of harm's way, I pulled off to the side of the road and unfolded my hands to behold the thing I'd saved. It blinked up at me and peeped, but it was not a bird. It was a kitten... a dirty, white, rag-tag, minuscule baby kitten, and it dug its needle-like claws into my sweater and clung to me for dear life.

Now what? Well I hadn't completely forgotten that I had business to attend to, and yet, the little "peeper" wouldn't let go of me. I took it in with me to pay my bills, but no one seemed to take notice of the "living brooch" pinned to my sweater. With my errands run then, and the clock ticking, I had to decide what to do with my impish new friend (who, by this time I had discerned, was a girl.) The horse barn had proved itself a safe haven to many strays and misfits over the decades, and so it seemed the logical place to drop Peeper. That's where I headed.

I fed her, gave her milk, and introduced her to the other cats (who displayed none of the animosity toward her I'd feared they might) then I left her. I worried all day that in a disoriented fit she might come to some harm or find her way under a hoof, but my visit back at nightfall proved that she - although too timid to come out of hiding - had adjusted quite nicely. It bothered me because I knew she was too little to be without her mom. I pondered at great length how a baby so little came to be in such a precarious position beneath that traffic light.

September rolled warmly over into October. My decision to bring her to the farm hadn't been a popular one! It was decided instead that once she was big and hearty enough, she would have to go just like the other kittens of summer,

RECOLLECTIONS
 Of By-Gone Days
 BY GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:
 I wrote before that I was around a long time and I've got a lot to remember. Once in awhile I remember things that I wish I couldn't, but they are always things that happened. No matter how bad they were, always some good came out of it.

I remember I could run a lot faster than most boys could and once somebody told me that for as big and fat as I was, I could get around pretty good.

I don't know why, but every once in awhile some boy would get after me and my legs kept my head from getting hurt.

Once a boy as big as me but older told me he was going to beat me up. Well, I started to run and he took after me and I ran into John Diebel's hardware store and shut the door. John wouldn't let the guy in so he stood by the door looking in and shaking his fist at me.

I asked Diebel if I could go out the back way and he said, "Yes," so I went out and looked back and I saw that fellow still looking in the door. So I yelled at him and took off and was home before he got started to chase me.

For a couple of days I went through the alley so he couldn't catch me. Well, I guess he cooled off and we became good friends when I went to the country school. We had a girl there who didn't go out and play like other kids did and always watched the rest of us and used to tattle on us. The teacher made a rule that you couldn't read any library books during school time.

I was in the sixth grade and a fourth grader left his book laying on my desk, so I picked it up and looked at it and this girl ran up and told the teacher I had a library book and was reading it.

Well, the teacher came down and took the book away from me and saw what it was and she gave the girl a good talking to and told her to quit her tattling.

It got quite muddy in the school yard and the teacher told us not to get dirty or we'd have to stay in. She made us all go outside to play and she made the tattletale go out too.

Well, nobody wanted to play with her and one girl chased her and she fell into the mud. She ran in to tell the teacher.

Well, she was a little ugly that day and she said, "I suppose you came in to tattle again and here you're muddy."

"Well, I've just about had enough of your hanging around all day and not going out to play like other children and you don't study like other children do, so I'm going to give you a licking." And she got her rubber hose out and gave her a couple of cracks where kids should get hit and that made a good girl out of her. No more tattling and she went out and played with the rest of the children.

In Timothy 5:13 it says a lot about tattlers and if there's one kind of a person I don't like it's a tattler because I got into a lot of trouble because of a tattler.

Once a girl tattled on me and I asked her why she tattled because I didn't do it. Well, she said, "You're into everything so I thought you did it, too!"

SINCERELY YOURS,
 GEORGE KEIM

Twoooooo Nice... Lady Lakers repeat at regionals!

By AMY HEIDEN

When Sue Frederiksen took over as Laker High School varsity volleyball coach three years ago, she set right to work setting up a whole new training regimen -- a whole new style of play. She took over a team with a long, proud tradition of winning and made it into one to be reckoned with, a team that made it all the way to the final four of the state finals last year.

They started out this year as a rather loose-knit group of players, with only three seniors, a junior, and a pair of sophomores as starters. Now, though, they are a true t-e-a-m, ranked eighth in Class C and they won their second straight regional title Saturday by defeating No. 3-ranked Atherton 15-12, 8-15, 15-7, and earned a berth in the state quarter-finals in Kalamazoo this Friday night.

To get to the regional finals, they first had to defeat Sandusky, which they did 15-7, 14-16, 15-11. They didn't do it their way, though, as Frederiksen admitted. "We didn't get up for the match. It was a very slow paced game and we played at their pace in the game. When we play a slow-paced game, it gives us too much time to think about it and look at each other," she said. Although the Lakers weren't at their best in defeating Sandusky, they played at the best when they took the floor against Atherton.

Atherton, looking at knock off the defending regional champs, has been one of the toughest teams to beat this year. And, they played an entirely different game than Sandusky.

But the Lakers knew what to expect and actually prefer that quick, tough style of play.

"I told the girls before the game, we have to want to dominate and get fired up. That's all I said," Frederiksen said.

In the first match, the two teams scored quickly and got out to a 5-5 tie. Then the Lakers took off with a five-point scoring run before Atherton took a time-out.

When they returned, both teams traded several side-outs before the Lakers got two points on a Kelly McLellan spike and a Brenda Beyer and Anne Sturm block.

Then Atherton began a scoring run of their own, scoring six straight points before the Lakers got the side out on a Beyer tip. Holly Esch's tip gave the Lakers a two-point lead at 13-11. Atherton would manage only one more side-out and point before the Lakers took control and added the final two points for the win.

Then came the second game, which saw Atherton rally for a 8-0 lead. The Lakers couldn't seem to get the ball to their way, though, as Frederiksen admitted. "We didn't get up for the match. It was a very slow paced game and we played at their pace in the game. When we play a slow-paced game, it gives us too much time to think about it and look at each other," she said. Although the Lakers weren't at their best in defeating Sandusky, they played at the best when they took the floor against Atherton.

"We weren't aggressive on passing the ball," Frederiksen said. "I called my time out and told them you have to want the ball to come to you. I said be aggressive and take a look at that server and say serve the ball to me. And then they started playing, but they had too much of lead on us."

Atherton managed to stay in front, though, scoring eight more points while the Lakers would only manage a point.

Then—the deciding game. Each team has a game in the win column. The No. 3 ranked team in the state vs. the No. 8 ranked team, both teams equal in talent. But in the end, the outcome rested on one thing—who wanted it most.

Wanting and getting don't always go hand-in-hand, but they did in the final game. After Atherton took the first point, the Lakers quickly got the side-out and scored four straight points before Atherton could score again.

The Wolverines actually took the lead at 5-7, but that would be their last lead and their last point of the day and the season.

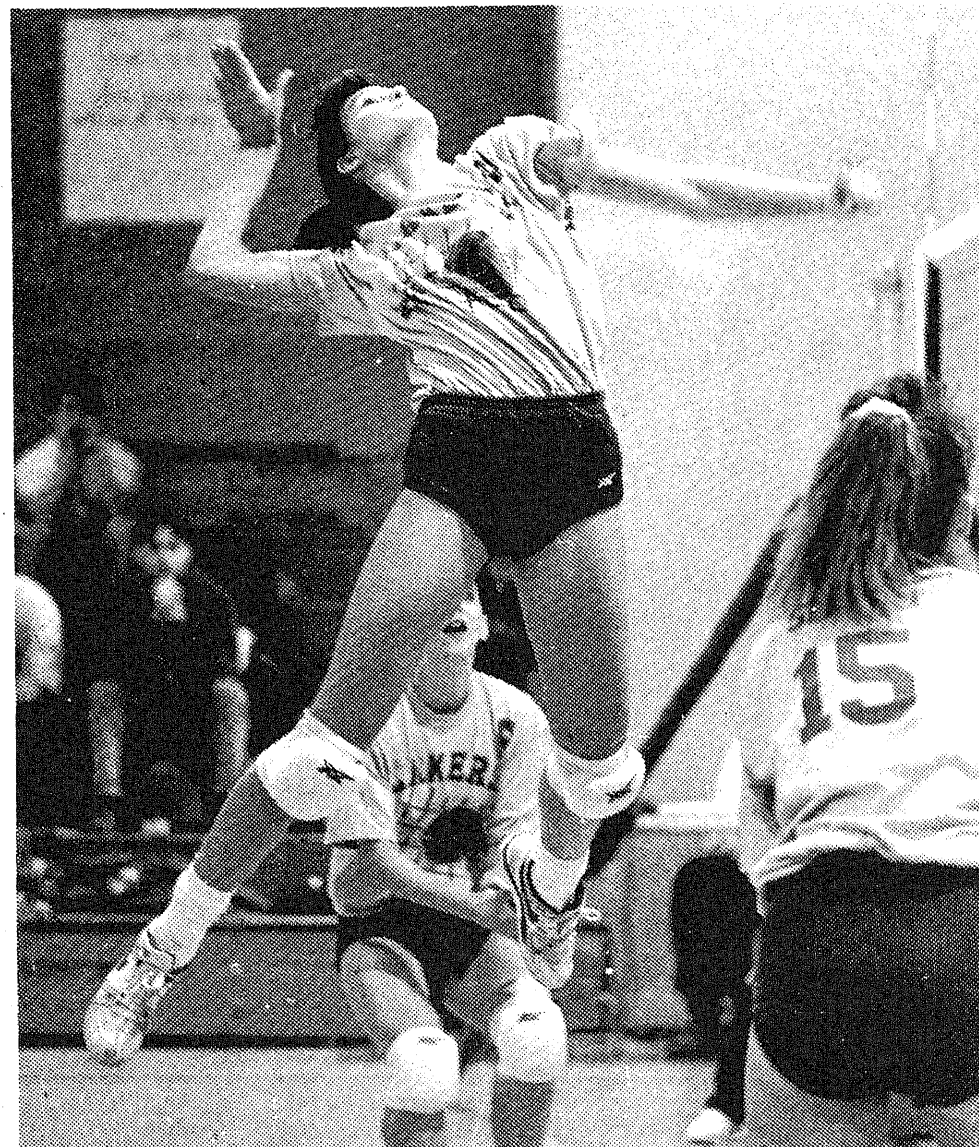

The Lakers came storming back, getting the side out on Esch's solid spike. With senior Anne Sturm serving, the Lakers tied the game and took over the lead for good at 9-7 before Atherton called for a time-out.

Beyer, normally an outstanding setter and blocker, got a hit to extend the lead to 10-7. Atherton called another time-out for a pep talk when the score got to 11-7, but it failed to help when Esch's spike from behind the 10 ft. line put the Lakers up by five at 12-7.

The Lakers got another point before the teams traded side-outs, and one more when Atherton failed to get the ball over the net.

When the ball fell out of play on the final serve from Anne Sturm, the Lakers found themselves receiving their second straight regional trophy and a trip to Kalamazoo.

Although Atherton is a team with very few weaknesses, Frederiksen found one spot to exploit. "I scouted them earlier in the year and we took down all the areas we felt they were a little bit weaker. But they're such a solid team, they really don't have much weakness.

"But one of the things was we hit down the line on them from our outside hit," Frederiksen said. But the real key, she said, was the type of play that won the district title.

"We ran a quick shoot out to our outside hitter and she pounded that ball. And they went to one blocker in the middle, and Kelly pounded that ball. And those were crucial to us."

Esch led her team with 16 kills. McLellan had 9 kills, 20 digs, 4 aces, and 21 blocks; Sturm had 19 blocks and 7 kills; Beyer had 36 assists, 21 digs, and 3 aces; and Amanda Barry had 5 aces.

The Lakers now travel to Kalamazoo College on Friday, where they'll meet Riverview Richard at 7 p.m., in state Quarterfinal play.

Ubly falls as Lakers win b-ball Districts, again

By AMY HEIDEN

"Revenge is a dish best served cold."

That quote, which admonishes the defeated to wait till just the right moment to taste their revenge, could well have been the Lakers' credo Friday night as they met the Ubly Bearcats in the district finals.

After all, last December the Bearcats handed the Lakers their first defeat of the season with a 54-52 win.

That game two months ago was certainly in the backs of the Lakers' minds as they turned the tables and soundly thumped the 'Cats with a 96-70 win Friday to take the district basketball championship.

Their trip to the finals started Monday when they walked over the Bad Axe Hatchets 90-40. They then met Harbor Beach Wednesday night, winning 63-54, but found the Pirates to be a much more difficult opponent.

The Lakers led by only a point at halftime after a miserable first half. "We put up enough bricks to build a house," Laker coach Bill McLellan said. Harbor Beach managed to take the lead in the third period and into the fourth, up 48-44. But then the Lakers got into their game and reeled off seven points to take the lead for good.

Craig Sears led the scoring against Harbor Beach with 19 points, with Reggie Ignash hitting 17 and Dan Gonzales chipping in with 10.

That win set up the finals match with Ubly, who had handily defeated USA on Tuesday night. And before a standing-room only crowd, estimated at over 2,200 by school officials, the Lakers played what McLellan said was their best game of the season.

By the time the clock hit 4:00 in the first quarter, the Lakers had run out to a 14-0 lead, with 10 of those points scored by Reggie Ignash. "When you get up 14-0 in the first four minutes of the first quarter, the game's about over," said Ubly coach Fred Ligrów.

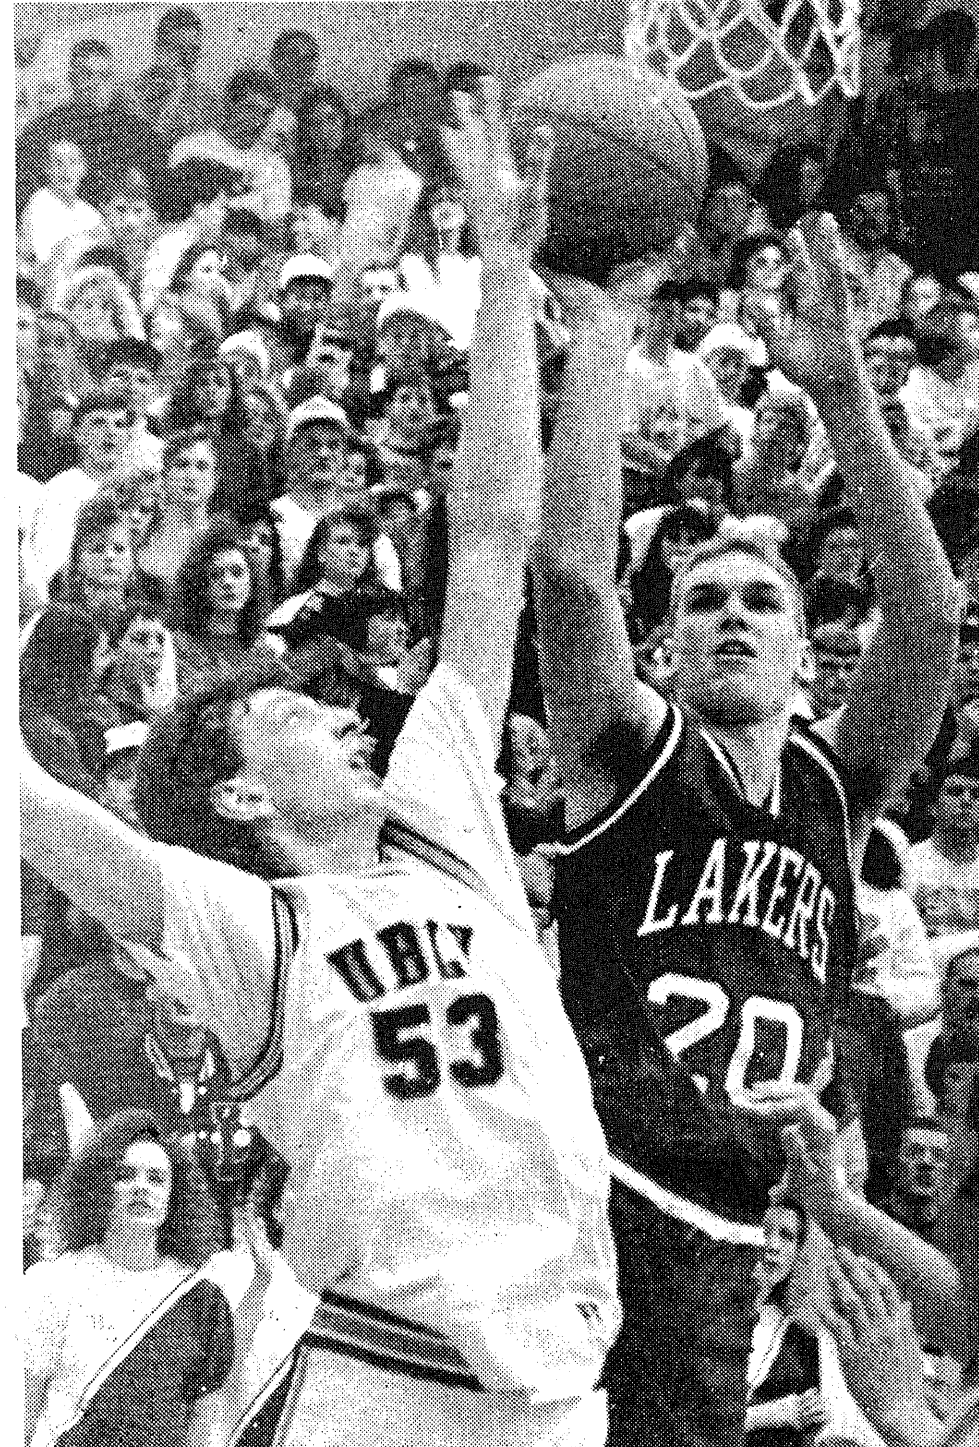

The Lakers finished out the first half with a 24-9 lead, sounding early the death knell for Ubly.

The Lakers didn't have it all their way in the first half, though, as Kevin Picklo pickup two fouls, Jeremy Esch got two, Craig Sears picked up his third, and Dave Geiger and Mike Keefer each picked up three fouls.

Foul trouble aside, the Lakers still outscored Ubly 19-12 in the second period to take a 43-21 lead to the locker room at the half.

McLellan warned his team during the break to keep up the pressure, reminding them that Ubly had come back from a 14 point deficit to win their last contest.

And keep up the pressure they did, outscoring the Bearcat 26-16 in the third period.

OVER YOUR HEAD! Kevin Picklo (20) stretches for the shot over the hands of Ubly's Cory Peruski, in the Lakers' 96-70 rout of the Bearcats.

Several times, the Lakers led by as many as 30 points throughout the final two periods. But a team that only scores nine baskets in three periods of play can't be expected to make a run for the win. "Everything we tried to do to come back, we couldn't counteract whatever they did. They took it to the basket better, they handled the ball better, and they shot real well," Ligrów said.

The Bearcats did outscore the Lakers 33-27 in the final period. They managed six three-pointers, but the damage was done.

When the Laker reserves right down to the end of the bench came into the game with 2:00 left in the game and a 90-63 Laker lead, it was all over but the shouting. And with less than a minute left, Eric Wissner swished a trey to give the Lakers a 96-69 lead.

Free throw winners

FREE THROW WINNERS: Zac King, Betsy Drury and Matt Otto won the regional Knights of Columbus Free Throw Contest in Carrollton on Feb. 23. They will compete in state competition March 16 in Carrollton.

made the final point of the game, a free throw with five seconds left.

No one expected a blow-out, least of all Coach McLellan. "I figured it would be tight all the way. Ubly's been playing real well all year. But we played extremely well."

"We probably played our best game of the year. They would have had to play really well to beat us tonight," McLellan said.

Reggie Ignash led with 26 points, including 8 of 9 free throws, but McLellan said that his whole team contributed to the win.

"Everybody is always talking about Reggie, and he scored some points tonight and had a great game. But I tell you what, we had a whole bunch of great players."

"We had kids handling the press and getting the ball to the right people and rebounding and playing defense," he said. "Dan Gonzales got us off to a great start with a couple of threes and by being aggressive."

The key to the win, McLellan said, was keeping Ubly's three main offensive threats out of their game.

"The first half, our defense probably frustrated them more than anything, that's a key. You got to get their offensive players not feeling in the groove, Marty Swartzendruber, Howard Heilig and Cory Peruski. They're all real capable scorers."

"We did a real good job defending the three-point shot and also helped out inside on the post-up player Peruski. We just did an excellent job defensively," McLellan said.

The Lakers (20-3) won't find the games as easy to win, as they head into regional action Wednesday night in Almont against Flint Hamady (20-3).

"Now all the teams are quick and good. We'll put five players on the floor and have to lay solid basketball all the way through," McLellan said.

Along with Ignash's 26 points, Gonzales added 16, with his two treys and 6 of 11 shooting from the line. Jeremy Esch scored 14, Dave Geiger scored 12, Craig Sears had 10, and Mike Keefer scored 9. The team made 31 of its 45 free throws for 69 percent, and 31 of 69 field goals.

Phil Rohrer was the top Ubly scorer with 17 points, including four three-pointers. Heilig scored 12, while Marc McKenzie, Cory Peruski, and Marty Swartzendruber each had 10.

"Thanks a Million" By Percy Ross

Peace for ex-husband

Send your letters to: PERCY ROSS, c/o Progress-Advance, P.O. Box 35000, Minneapolis, MN 55435. Please include your telephone number.

DEAR MR. ROSS:

Thanks a million times over! The check you sent for proper-fitting clothes arrived last week. As I sit here writing, it's by the hand of a newer, trimmer me.

After almost two years of dieting, I've gone from 389 pounds down to 183. I basically look like a mildly overweight woman compared to the freak-show fat lady I was.

My outlook on life has changed 180 degrees. I no longer go to bed at night fearing I might explode from obesity. Considering how fat my body was, the permanent damage is minimal. Thanks so much for building my self-confidence to the point where I've arranged for a job interview.

When I go, it will be with head held high, looking presentable in my new clothes. Until your check arrived, I never realized what was meant by "People will help you, if you are willing to help yourself." Now, I do.—MISS W.P., Seymour, Ind.

DEAR MISS P.: Body fat can be likened to the baggage everyone carries through the voyage of life. The more excess baggage you carry, the more difficult the trip. Good for you and your health, too.

DEAR MR. ROSS: My girlfriend's ex-husband just committed suicide. While she is not really responsible, she doesn't want him lying in the morgue indefinitely. He had no job or insurance and was living in his car. Neither we nor his family have much money. We make enough to survive and little more.

His mother lives in Alabama. She wants to have him cremated and the ashes sent to her, but she has to wait until she can save the money. I am writing to see if you could send the money for the cremation. If you would, I could get the money together and send his ashes to his mother.

This would help out a great deal. I am not sure of the cost, but I could find out, if you are willing to help.—MR. L.N., Columbus, Ohio

DEAR MR. N.: It costs money to come into this world, and there is a price to pay when leaving it. After checking average prices on cremation, I found that $500 should restore this man's last shred of dignity. I commend your decency in taking an active role to find a final resting place for the ex-husband of your girlfriend. I'll accept your offer to forward the ashes on to his mother—my $500 is on the way. May he R.I.P.

DEAR MISS P.: I'm most sure if it takes courage or if I'm just plain foolish to print letters like yours. But do you honestly begrudge school children receiving medicated shampoo to kill head lice? If that's the case, I'm afraid you've gone from being a nit to being a bona fide twit!

DEAR MR. ROSS: I wrote you sometime ago outlining the devastation of a young female head of household and her family. In my letter to you, I tried to explain the severity and urgency of their situation. You chose to either ignore the letter, or it was deemed unimportant by your staff. Whichever the case, it doesn't matter now.

However, I was appalled to read that you chose to give $500 to a local school in Albany, Ind., for the purpose of buying shampoo to kill lice and nits. You stated that lice know no socioeconomic boundaries. Bully for them, but shame on you!

The family you refused to help may not have lice or nits to contend with, but recently, they have witnessed the death of their grandmother, a 24-hour eviction notice and life in the non-existent lane. But you, sir, are the biggest nit I have come to know, and I hope it is not catching. Thanks for nothing! NOTHING!! P.S. Are you courageous enough to print this one?—REFORMED NIT, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

DEAR W.I.C.: I did attend my 50th reunion, but not because I'm rich or thin. I had the attitude, "What do I have to lose?" After weathering the last 50 years of setbacks and mistakes, I was thankful to still be alive and kicking and lucky enough to have a few lights on upstairs. I'm sure you can say the same, so what do you have to lose?

DEAR REFORMED: I'm most sure if it takes courage or if I'm just plain foolish to print letters like yours. But do you honestly begrudge school children receiving medicated shampoo to kill head lice? If that's the case, I'm afraid you've gone from being a nit to being a bona fide twit!

DEAR MR. ROSS: My 50th high school reunion is coming up shortly, and I have mixed feelings about attending. I have accomplished absolutely zilch in those 50 years (partly due to chronic health problems) and would be horrified and embarrassed to voice the story of my "career."

It's quite likely you feel this letter should be written to "Dear Abby," but I already know what she thinks. In a recent column, she said only the rich and the thin go back to high school reunions. Did you attend yours?—W.I.C., State College, Pa.

receiving medicated shampoo to kill head lice? If that's the case, I'm afraid you've gone from being a nit to being a bona fide twit!

DEAR MR. ROSS: I wrote you a couple of months ago but, I guess, to no avail. Right now, I am faced with another dilemma. My sink has been stopped up for over a year, and I can't afford a Roto-Rooter or plumber. I need $100 and would appreciate if you would send me a check in that amount. Thanks.—MR. R.D., JR., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

DEAR MR. D.: If a sink stopped up for one year is a new dilemma, I'm curious what you considered a priority two months ago. You better not be a snake in the sink trying to rip me off. One hundred bucks is on the way.

DEAR MR. ROSS: When I read the letter in your column regarding overpopulation, I remembered an "off-color" joke my aunt told me when I was a young girl years ago. I'm now a 74-year-old woman, and I can't contain it any longer—I must tell someone. Here goes:

"When a young preacher accepted his first job, the congregation told him what his salary was to be. He accepted it. After a year, his first child was born. The young preacher met with the congregation representatives and explained he needed more money. They approved it.

"Each year his wife had another child, and the preacher asked for more and more money. Finally the congregation representatives told him they couldn't raise his salary anymore.

The preacher said, "How can you say this? God sent these children, therefore, they are representatives of God." The group answered, "Yes, they are. However, God also sends rain, but he doesn't say you shouldn't wear galoshes!"—MRS. R.G., Staten Island, N.Y.

DEAR MRS. G.: Your aunt must have told this same joke to the person who came up with the old adage, "The truth hurts." The truth does hurt, because my side aches from laughing so hard at your punch line.

Thank $ a million for being a reader with a sense of humor.

CONSTRUCTIVE GUILT

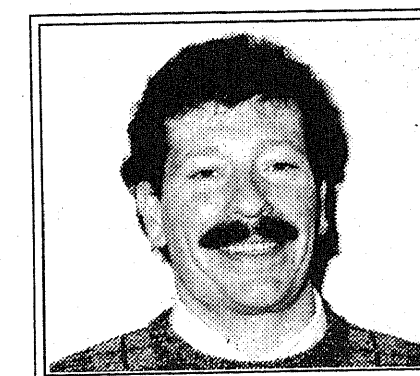

Many survivors feel guilty for failing to put the snow over the death of a loved one, often for no better reason than the fact that THEY remain alive. But what of those instances where the individual is, indeed, responsible for the death of someone close to them?

If a person is somehow responsible for the death or some other misdeed during the life of the deceased, that guilt should be dealt with in a constructive way. Allowing the guilt to fester only intensifies self-depreciation. Guilt cannot undo what has been done. Ideally, we can learn from past oversights and misjudgments and, at the very least, resolve not to repeat them.

For example, rather than to continue to berate himself

HUNTING STEELHEAD

By DUANE GUENTHER

The parking lot at 9-mile bridge was nearly empty. This is normal for middle of the week fishing, but for a Saturday, even one early in March, it was indeed a rarity. A slushy snow had fallen for the last two days, and that, coupled with a week of intermittent rain, was causing the river to run a wee bit higher than usual. High enough to spill over its low banks and flood the sparse timberland bordering each side thus making it miserable to walk streamside. I was hunting steelheads that Saturday morning.

Hunting steelhead is far different than fishing for them. When I fish for steelhead, I pick a particular hole where I have been successful before and proceed to spend long hours trying to wrestle the fish from their lair. When I hunt for steelhead I meander along a river bank until I spot a fish and then work my fly over them until they are hooked or spooked. Once the fish is "put down" or caught and released, I leave the spot and seek out new adversaries in new territory. Fishing steelhead is long.

tedious, boring work. Hunting steelhead is pleasant, enjoyable recreation. I sloshed through the freezing water for a half mile, dodging low hanging branches and skirting newly formed flood pools that looked deep and foreboding. A cable, marking private property, blocked my path which precipitated a long, and tiring detour, but once around I found myself back on the river searching for the early spawners. Although the river was deep, the water was quite clear, and with the aid of my Polaroid sunglasses the gravelly bottom was revealed for my inspection. Time and again I would stop and peer intently at a dark object riveted to the bottom, hoping it would materialize into a fish, but more often it turned out to be waterlogged wood, or some other river debris. Around a couple of more bends and at the beginning of a long, narrow stretch of fast water I spotted my first fish. I should say my first two fish. For parked on the shallow shoal was a pair of hen steelhead slowly moving their fins against the constant current. I slipped into the water below them and worked slowly upstream. This is a tactic I find very effective, both for stalking and for presenting whatever offering I am using. Today, it was a mayfly nymph on the end of my leader, and a yarn egg fly, off a dropper, some 3-feet above the nymph. All of this was attached to a floating flyline with a fast-sinking tip. I would have been better off with a running line and plenty of split-shot to get the nymph down, but I hate the time-tested "chuck and duck" method and, as of late, refused to use it. With a floating line I can still use my flyrod like it is supposed to be used, and with a little practice, have developed a method that allows the sink-tip to work my fly down where the fish are. After the fourth cast I was fast to one of the females.

Although small in size, she put up a good fight and made several long runs downstream. I battled her for several yards below her "redd mate" (that's a perfect steelhead pun), landing and releasing her without disturbing the other. Within a few minutes the other fish was on my hook and I thrashed up and down the stream in an effort to subdue her. Later that morning, and several fish later, I chanced on another angler intently working a good looking hole. "How ya doing?" I inquired.

"Pretty slow this morning," he answered. "I've been here for a couple of hours without so much of a bump. How's fishing with you?" "Not very good," I said. But the hunting is excellent, I thought to myself.....

Wanted: pop bottles!

Start saving those pop bottles because the Laker Junior High Choir needs them!

That's the word from choir director Anne Eichler, whose choir students will be conducting a bottle drive on Tuesday, March 26 from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

The money raised from the bottle drive will be used to finance a trip to Chicago to participate in the "America Sings" program.

Caseville club offers scholarship

The Caseville Rod and Gun Club is now accepting applications from students at the Laker and Caseville School Districts for their annual scholarship.

Graduating seniors of 1991 who have completed Hunter Safety courses are eligible. Interested students should contact their high school counselors.

K'garten Round-up set

Elkton Elementary School will conduct its spring Kindergarten Round-up on Tuesday, March 19 from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Kindergarten Room. Parents are asked to bring their child's birth certificate and immunization records.

OUTDOOR REPORT

March 11, 1991

ICE FISHING IS BEGINNING to slow down in the southern portions of the state and anglers have to be very careful while trying for late season perch or walleyes on Saginaw Bay.

The ice is deteriorating rapidly and many cracks and holes are appearing. The fishing has remained good to excellent during the spring break-up and plenty of fishermen are still trying to gather in that last mess of fish.

STEELHEAD ACTION is happening on the western part of our state, as many of the famous steelhead streams are preparing for the annual spring spawning run.

Those in the southern part of the state are filling with fish at a faster rate, but this is due to the warmer water temperature in that part of Michigan. Great fishing is still a couple of weeks away on such streams as the Big and Little Manistee and the Pere Marquette.

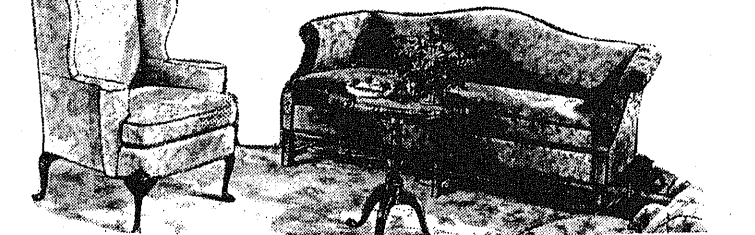

'Take 2' performs

"Take 2," a Christian comedy and drama troupe from Spring Arbor College, will perform this Sunday, March 17 at 1 p.m. at the Elkton United Methodist Church. Tona Thorp of Owendale is one of the five performing students, who will offer a wide variety of ministry, including skits, comedy, storytelling and music. The troupe's main purpose is to share the Gospel of Jesus Christ in a creative and concise way and to help encourage local congregations in their commitment to Christ.

Spring Arbor College is a co-ed, Christian liberal arts college, located near Jackson in south-central Michigan. The college is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges. The public is welcome to attend this performance.

Local Scouts observe Girl Scout Week, March 10-16

Girl Scouts in Service Unit #602 are celebrating Girl Scout Week, March 10-16 with a banquet held Monday, March 11 at the Pigeon VFW Hall.

Hosted by Pigeon and Bay Port leaders Laura Burk and Jane Himmel, the banquet was attended by over 107 Girl Scouts from Elkton, Pigeon, Bay Port and Caseville, plus family members and friends.

One highlight of the evening, in addition to an awards ceremony, was the making of a "Freedom Chain," connecting each Scout with the name of a service man or woman serving in the Persian Gulf. Actual chain links were made out of paper and the chain will be presented at the Mitten Bay Girl Scouts Annual Meeting.

The Girl Scouts were founded March 12, 1912 by Juliette Gordon Low, who decided that the girls of the United States needed an organization of their own to learn skills, develop self-esteem and to enjoy themselves. Those first 18 Girl Scouts have grown to more than three million girls and adults who share the experience of Girl Scouting.

Over the years, Girl Scouting has proved itself to be a highly flexible organization. While dedicated to those enduring values that have always been at the heart of the movement, today's Girl Scouts are exploring contemporary issues like "Right to Read: Literacy," "Growing Up Female," "Preventing Child Abuse," "Say No to Drugs" and more. Many troops participate in community recycling projects, while others hold workshops on art, music and drama. The Mitten Bay Girl Scout Council serves nearly 10,000 girls and over 2,000 adult volunteers in northeast lower Michigan.

ROCHELEAU - HAAG

Vicki Lynn Haag of Sebawaing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Haag of Sebawaing and Kevin James Rocheleau of Owendale, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Whaley of Gageton, were united in marriage on Dec. 15 at New Salem Lutheran Church, Sebawaing.

Rev. Keith Siverly officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The organist was Betty Pilon of Unionville and the soloist was Veronica Garza of Pigeon. Host and Hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bartle of Cass City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white overall lace, a sweetheart neckline and pouff sleeves sitting off-the-shoulder. The gown also featured a dropped basque waistline with a pearl accent. Her two-tiered, fingertip veil was secured with a wreath of silk flowers and pearls.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, poinsettias and lily of the valley, accented with Christmas greens and ivy. Raelyn Burgett of Bay City, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a red tea-length dress with a fitted, lace-covered bodice featuring a v-back and pouff sleeves. The flared satin skirt and basque waistline were accented with a satin bow and back peplum creating a bustle effect. She also wore red stretch lace gloves and a wreath headpiece of white lace and red satin. She carried a colonial bouquet identical to the bride's.

The bridesmaids were Lori Haag of Sebawaing, sister of the bride; Renee Baker of Unionville and Brenda Hoppe of Sebawaing, both friends of the bride and Denise Schultz of Petersburg, sister of the groom. The bridesmaids' dresses and flowers were identical to the maid of honor's.

Rick Brown of Bay City, friend of the groom, was best man. The groomsmen were Chuck Bell of Colorado Springs, Colo., John Retford and Jeff Leinweber, both of Owendale, all friends of the groom and Jason Torres of Gageton, nephew of the groom.

Ushers were Vincent Haag of Kalamazoo, brother of the bride and Bob Haag of Bancroft, uncle of the bride. Jake Schultz of Petersburg, nephew of the groom was ringbearer and Jessica Covarrubias of Gageton, niece of the groom, was the flower girl.

The bride's mother wore a royal blue, tea-length crinkle-knit sleeveless dress with a matching cardigan jacket. The groom's mother selected a tea-length dress of silver lace overlay with a chiffon jacket.

Both mothers wore a corsage of red roses and lily of the valley with accented greens and a white lace bow. After the ceremony, a reception was conducted at the Sportsman's VFW Hall in Sebawaing for 500 guests.
