Thumbs up & down for ongoing projects

Here is a selection of views, thoughts and comments about projects and efforts which are being conducted in and/or for our Thumb Area, from the perspective of the editor's chair:

FORE!

By Mavis Pechette

The life of a snowbird involves much travel. Those of us who spend part of the year in the sunny South begin to get antsy about the first of April. That's the time to think about heading North for the summer. Many people do begin their trek at that time, but I decided to wait a bit later this year.

A gentleman in our park has a restaurant supply business. He buys and sells used items as well as dealing in new items. On a visit to his shop I discovered some beautiful maple chairs for a dining room.

You've heard of a deal one can't refuse? That's what I got, and then the problem was how to get four chairs to Michigan. That became the focus of my travel plans. Some Ohio friends were heading up I-75 before me and offered to take some chairs for me as far as their place. When they finally got all the stuff packed in their van they had space for one chair. That left three for me to bring. With much maneuvering, I managed to get two in my back seat. So one chair is still in Florida; next year will be its turn.

There's a regular network of travelers and we keep in touch. I had been warned of construction tie-ups in the Chattanooga area. With an early start, no traffic problems and extra driving hours in Daylight Saving Time I made it through that area on Sunday evening. Friends had experienced 1 1/2 hours to go ten miles at that spot on a week day. I was happy to be past that scene.

As usual for me it rained all the way through Tennessee. It was good to reach the Kentucky state line and sunshine again.

An overnight stay with friends in Dayton found good fellowship, delicious dinner and a brisk bridge game. That sure beats alone in a motel anytime.

The next day I blew into Michigan and on home. I had been hearing about the beautiful Michigan weather before my arrival but that soon changed. I had a sample of local variety for about three weeks before heading back South.

The return trip was by air for a change. I boarded a plane in Detroit and struck up a conversation with my seat mate. When I said Caseville is my home, she responded, "Hmmm". "That sounds as if you know Caseville" was my reaction. She said her family is from Pigeon. She never lived there but knew many people in the area.

Further conversation revealed her parents are Jane and the late Otto Baur. Otto wrote "Letters to My Cousin Gus" in The Progress-Advance for several years. My traveling companion is the mother of twins mentioned so often in those letters.

I told her how I met her parents in Venice while visiting a friend in a mobile home park and she said she was going to that park to visit her mother-in-law who lives there. We shared notes on others in that park, on being widows and also talked about church related work. The morning spent with Judy Pugh was a delight.

The purpose of my return was to drive a lady in her car back to Michigan. We could have come together the first time but she wants her car here and we both have lots of things we tote back and forth on our journeys. And remember, I had chairs to bring.

As we were preparing to leave we saw a commercial for a Lexus automobile. We didn't remember ever seeing one of those and decided to make it a point to watch for one on the expressway. Would you believe we saw three in the first hour? Maybe they are more common than we thought.

Many years I've traveled the familiar route with only a dropped muffler giving me any automotive problems. The law of averages does catch up.

The car developed an awful shake near the Georgian city of Adel. (Must check the pronunciation with Georgia expert Peggie. Is it A-del with a long a or Ah-del with a short a? Or does it depend on which country-western singer you hear?) I stopped to check the tires but found no flat. We went slowly to the next exit where there were six gas stations ready to sell us most anything we could want, but no mechanic in sight.

We did get directions to a real service station about a half-mile into town. There we learned the wall of the tire had separated. It didn't take long to get a replacement and we were on our merry way.

You didn't forget my chairs did you? When we came to Ohio I called my chair-toting friend and asked her to meet us for a coffee break near her home. I told her we had some extra space in the back seat and could take my chair to Michigan with us. That pleased her I'm sure and I am enjoying 3/4 of my set of chairs. If only I had the Fore-th!

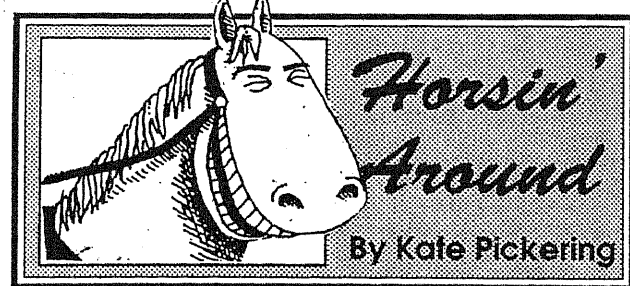

THUMB'S UP to Bay Shore Park and its '91 summer programs, which kicked off with a co-ed basketball camp this past Sunday. Bay Shore near Sebawaing isn't just for Methodists anymore -- and the mix of spiritual and positive direction being given to hundreds of statewide youthful campers this year is well-done.

And, if you haven't seen the new Youth Activity Center -- complete with up to six basketball courts and a super stage -- be sure to see it. Well done, Bay Shore Director Lew Tibbitts and volunteers!

TOO BAD we can't say the same thing for the uncaring vandals who have been stealing flower arrangements and disturbing personal monuments in Grand Lawn Cemetery south of Pigeon. These people have no sense of decency -- and are setting very bad examples for others who may be watching or even assisting. That doesn't even address the heartache felt by the family members who have placed such displays... only to see them stolen. Grow up, thieves!

Many newspaper companies are adopting literacy efforts, to help more people read and to help readers read more. One of the best efforts we know of involves observing National Newspaper Literacy Day or International Reading Day on September 8.

Some people observe a "Day of Silence," when a class (or office) communicates only on paper, with no spoken words. This helps increase vocabulary skills, and helps people appreciate the skills we have -- all the while they're sharpening those same skills to better read, write, think and LIVE!

ROAD CLOSED (?)

The dusty dirt road along-side which our horses are boarded has been little better than a wide cow-path since the dawn of road-dom. It's left un-plowed in the winter, is a foot deep in mud in the spring, and has the surface of a wash-board all summer long. I have sadly buried the remains of many a rusty muffler in its quick-sand like mud, and replaced many a worn shock absorber because of it as well. But nonetheless, for over twenty-five years we have fearlessly made it down and back alive, time and time again, and have seldom spotted a fool-hardy fellow passing motorist.

Last fall it became apparent that this particular stretch of dirt road was marked for improvement, when what should appear but a myriad of little orange flags waving gently in the breeze all up and down its expanse. We were informed that a big, gaping ditch would be dug and the road built up, hardened, and covered with gravel. Also, we were told, our fence line would have to be moved back away from the new "mote" to be dug. But no hurry.

Last week, road repairs finally began. Huge dinosaur-ish pieces of machinery were moved in, and they began gouging out the earth with their ferocious and powerful jaws. Mounds of dirt are now heaped up everywhere, and the narrowest, most precarious, muddy little goat walk has been left for residents (which is just us) to motor back and forth on.

But before all of this began, a sign went up at the corner of the road. It is a huge piece of signery, and is painted with the most vivid and fluorescent of orange paints. It is striped and has a flashing light which blinks out a warning night and day. The letters on the sign are large, black, and in a blocky type, and the words used are primarily monosyllabic, written in perfect, easy to read English. It says...

ROAD CLOSED - KEEP OUT
-- LOCAL TRAFFIC ONLY --

... but human nature is a funny, funny thing. If Barnum and Bailey had erected a flashy, glitzy gazebo with red, white and blue streamers draped generously about, and employed an amiable fellow in a pin-striped suit to beckon "step-right-up," there could not possibly be more traffic and curious on-lookers than has been generated due to that "ROAD CLOSED" sign!!!

RECOLLECTIONS
Of By-Gone Days
BY GEORGE KEIM

DEAR EDITOR:

I live by myself and get along very well. I'm like the fellow who used to talk to himself because he liked to talk with somebody who understood him and who couldn't argue with him!

I like to listen to the radio and TV, but once in awhile I get tired of them. Some people like to hear them dumb songs that come over them. Some are good but a lot of them don't make any sense.

But when a good quartet or chorus, especially if it is a religious song, I drop everything and listen.

When I was very young, I used to enjoy hearing people sing in church, because there was no such thing as a radio or TV. When I went to school, we used to sing in the morning before school started. We sang out of the old knapsack or the Pat's Pick. Somehow I've got both of those books and there are some nice songs in them. That was over 70 years ago...

I remember when I went to school, our teacher liked to sing. He encouraged us to sing in parts if we could. I could sing bars and my sisters could sing alto. Several of the boys tried to sing bass, but it just didn't work. One fellow tried to sing tenor and he didn't do too badly.

I remember once several of us were supposed to sing at a Christmas program, but we didn't have a tenor, so I tried it. Well, it worked alright, but I felt just like when I was a kid and we got company that came with a horse and buggy and we had to put up their horses, so we chased out a few cows and tied their horses in the cow stable. It worked temporarily, but a horse should be in a horse stable and a cow should be in a cow stable.

I know several people who can take a hymn book and if it has notes in it and some of the signs in it, they can sing that song. I had the chance to go to singing school, but I didn't think it was worthwhile. Now I wish I would have taken advantage of it.

When I was at home and on Sunday nights, we didn't go to church because it was too stormy or the old car didn't work.

My Dad, who was brought up in the Amish Church, used to get his old German songbook out and sing them old Amish songs. It was a thick book and there were no notes in it, but each song had a different tune.

Once in awhile, my Mother would join in and they'd sing a duet. Dad never sang bass or tenor, but he had a good voice and Mother could sing alto if she felt like it.

Last Sunday we had a good quartet from Ohio sing in our church. At 4 p.m. "One Accord" gave us a program which was very good.

In Psalm 100:2 it says, "Serve the Lord with gladness. Come before His presence with singing." So if you want a good time, sing, and sing good songs and I'm sure the Lord will be pleased with it.

SINCERELY YOURS,
GEORGE KEIM

Letter to the Editor
Caseville businessman offers best wishes to '91 graduates

DEAR EDITOR:

I wish to congratulate the graduating class of 1991 of our great Caseville High School.

Over the past weekend a few of them showed great ingenuity when they re-arranged the letters on my outdoor advertising sign to pay tribute to their graduating class. They did it with style and class. Nothing was broken and none of the letters were missing.

say to you and your classmates, good luck in your future years and may you always remember when you paid homage to your class by using my sign.

You're a great bunch of young adults (notice I didn't call you kids) and may you always have your sense of humor and never lose sight of where you came from.

Caseville Kiwanis Club members have twice the fun

By CHARLIE KIRK

I believe that it was George Keim who said, "A sticky subject in good hands can produce a bonding stronger than chewing gum left on a bedpost overnight."

His sage comment was proven to be right on the mark as guest speaker, Tom Brawner, President of Casey Pr. ducts, shared his experience in the production of epoxy adhesives with Kiwanis members last week.

Tom came to Caseville 10 years ago when Caseway was involved in the production of soap and degreasers. Cadillac, the largest plastics distributor in the world bought Caseway and soaps were out and adhesives in.

Tom, in turn, bought Caseway and continued the production of adhesives. Caseway sells its products to distributors only through factory reps.

Adhesives are used in four main areas: manufacturing, fabrication, furniture and in overseas markets. Tom also shared some of the problems common to small businesses brought about by the application of laws designed for big businesses yet applied to small businesses as well. He concluded by presenting a sample product to each Kiwanian.

I voiced a complaint that several Kiwanians were completely unaware of my humble, yet bordering-on-genius, accounting of our meetings in The Progress Advance.

Appropriate fines were levied and paid along with a promise of tutorial assistance when The P-A was delivered to them.

Mike Salvin was inducted into the club by Mike Power and welcomed by members. Ken Thaut co-shared the 50/50 drawing with George Beadle proving once again that when there's a hand out, it's usually Ken or George's - or both!

The Kiwanis Club of Caseville opened its arms in welcome to six new members. Kiwanis Lt. Governor, Terry Rock was on hand to officiate the induction of Ken Thaut, Pam Stahl, Ray Jordan, Ann Kennedy, Bob Schoenberg and Jim Greene into the club.

David Watts and Mike Slavin were unable to attend Wednesday's meeting and are certain to be hauled before Judge Power and the jury to be fined for missing the opportunity to get a piece of the Rock. They will be inducted and welcomed in the near future.

New member Ray Jordan wasted no time in demonstrating his desire for serving the club (wisely declining the job to wait tables) by accepting the role as speaker of the (Country) house. 4 attend GFWC convo

Four area women got a broader view of the work of the General Federation of Women's Clubs when they gathered at the 100th annual International Convention of the GFWC in Arlington, Va. June 8-10.

Representing the GFWC Pigeon Worth White Club were Roberta Richmond, Shirley Kraft, Florence Hoffman and Bertha McAulay, who joined over 900 women from throughout the U.S. and around the world.

Special highlights of the convention were guest speakers Lynda Johnson

Robb, Dr. Joyce Brothers, economist Julia Walsh and UPI White House Bureau Chief Helen Thomas.

An emotional event, according to the Pigeon delegation, was the "Presentation of the Colors" by the Alexandria Fyfes and Drums and the singing of the National Anthem.

An inspirational message was offered Sunday morning by Monsignor W. Louis Quinn, pastor of St. Matthew Catholic Church in Washington D.C.

The Pigeon delegation joined other women in touring the GFWC headquarters in Arlington, an historic mansion built by Rear Admiral Radford in 1875. The women who work in the mansion were all dressed in 1875-style garb.

During the awards ceremony, it was announced that Michigan received a HOBY Award for the work done by local clubs for the Hugh O'Brien Leadership Seminar. The Pigeon Club has participated in the HOBY Program for many years, according to Worth White Club President Roberta Richmond.

Elkton Village President's Corner

By GEORGE WILLOUGHBY

Village council established the millage rate for 1991 at 12.2042 mills which is .0539 mills less than what it has been for the past few years. This is the millage rate allowed under the Hedley amendment. I realize this isn't much of a decrease but at least we did manage to reduce taxes which is a step in the right direction.

This is being done in conjunction with the Parks Advisory Board and Department of Public Works. We hope to make a few improvements each year.

Our efforts to bring the ordinances up to date continue. Several ordinances were revised in order to bring them up to date. This is an area that has been neglected for several years and will take some time to complete.

I would like to personally thank the Elkton's Lion Club for the donation made for the improvement of the flower bed at the park across from village hall.

Specifically a special thank you to Alfredo Santos, Marty Baker and Sid Hurlburt who gave of their time and effort to get the job done.

I would hate to think of where our village would be if it were not for organizations such as the Lions, Rotary, Chamber of Commerce and others who take pride in their community by taking positive steps at making improvements.

In other business:

- Agreed to seek bids for sidewalk installation. Bid specifications are due by 4 p.m. July 8, and can be picked up at the Village Hall.
- Approved the replacement of burned-out bulbs by the front ballfield at Ackerman Park.
- Approved a resolution for the transfer of a liquor license from Frances Kasprzyk to Hartran, Inc., Bad Axe.

Elkton cuts its millage rate

By AMY HEIDEN

Because of increasing valuations, the Elkton Village Council last week voted to reduce the village's millage rate, from 12.2581 mills to 12.2042 mills.

The 0.0539-mill reduction will mean a $6,000 reduction in the village's revenues.

Jean Cunningham and Stephanie Pawlowski will be the new summer rec program directors. As director, Cunningham will be paid $5.25 per hour, while Pawlowski will be paid $4.25 an hour as assistant director. The recreation program starts June 24 and runs for six weeks.

OPEN/CLOSED CASKET

Opinions and sentiment vary widely on the question of having an open or closed casket at a funeral. Some of these differences are religious, others regional. Here is what a recent survey found.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergy unanimously prefer a closed casket during the religious service. They are divided, however, on the question of whether it should remain closed throughout the entire proceedings or be opened prior to the service, which gives those who were unable to come to the funeral home time to pay their respects - and then closed. Some Catholics and most Protestants favor a viewing period before the service, though there is considerable variation among the individual denominations on this point. Eighteen of the twenty-six Protestant denominations allow the casket to be open during the service. The majority of Roman Catholics are against the casket being open during the mass.

Only Orthodox Christian clergy request that the casket be open for viewing throughout the religious services.
