sive and money that may have gone for food is now spent on prescriptions.

Both situations happen all too often these days, and area food pantries are ready to help when money for food runs short.

The Caseville Food Pantry, the Pigeon Food Pantry, and the Bay Port RLDS Food Pantry all need financial support, not only at Christmas but throughout the year.

All receive foods donated by the Human Development Commission, but also need non-perishable food donations. Monetary donations are used to buy perishable foods such as milk or meat, and for food baskets during the holidays.

Most work through the Department of Social Services, but occasionally take referrals.

HURON COUNTY DSS VOLUNTEER SERVICES

The Huron County DSS maintains a hardly-known little fund, made up entirely of donated money. People like Sara (not her real name) who received General Assistance before being cut off the rolls when GA was slashed, were able to get basic supplies like shampoo or toilet paper through the Volunteer Services fund.

The fund is also used to help send children to summer camp, Youth Haven near Jackson. Those children mostly were in foster care through Protective Services. Occasionally money from the fund is used to buy toiletry items for children removed from their homes by Protective Services.

"The need is more apparent now with budget cuts," said volunteer services coordinator Lola Shivley. "Mainly it was used by people who paid their bills and didn't have any money left over."

The fund isn't large, with

CASEVILLE COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS FUND

An elderly couple lives alone on a limited income. The wife is sick a great deal and her medicine eats up a lot of the family budget. The husband is afraid to ask for help because he's fearful his wife would be placed in a nursing home.

By chance, their name is given to a member of the Caseville Community Christmas fund, and a donation of clothing and food gift certificates is readied for the couple.

When it's delivered, fund workers find the couple breaking up the kitchen table to burn for heat, and after making the delivery, the workers leave in tears.

That couple now is being helped by both the Community Christmas fund and the Caseville Food Pantry, but they're by no means unique, according to the organizations' leaders.

"I have plenty more stories like that and some of them would break your heart," said Colleen Poisson, co-chairman of the Caseville Community Christmas Fund.

The fund buys toys, clothing, and food gift certificates for the needy in the Caseville area. Each family member receives a new article of clothing and each child receives a new toy.

Caseville Area merchants, community organizations and churches donate to the fund, and donations are also welcome from individuals, Poisson said. And Haron Cable is getting into the act, offering a free installation or upgrade when a customer donates a new $10 toy to the fund.

To make a donation, contact Marie Quinn at St. Roch's Catholic Church, or Colleen Poisson at Bay Window Restaurant.

OTHER LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS NEEDING DONATIONS

BYC is entirely dependent on donations, plus its annual auction, to pay salaries of staff members and support its ministry. Donations can be sent to Bluewater Youth for Christ, Pigeon, MI 48755.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY—Huron County Unit

The main focus of the ACS is to provide funds for research and education about cancer, and to help patients who have the disease. Donations can be sent to American Cancer Society, c/o Sally Beers, 11911 Winter Road, Sebawaing, MI 48759.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Caseville Chamber speaks out against winter park closings

To the Editor:

The Caseville Chamber of Commerce is very concerned with State Park Management Proposals which would close the two nearby state parks (Sleeper and Port Crescent) for six months during the fall and winter months, or for that matter any period of time.

No specific logic has been issued by the State Park Offices to support these closings other than some sort of vague management reorganizational savings which seem very pale in view of the real impact on the collective economies of the entire Thumb area.

The shoreline communities of Harbor Beach, Port Hope, Port Austin, Caseville, Bay Port and Sebewing have made and are making tremendous investments in water, sewer, solid waste management and harbor facilities.

These investments are measured in the tens of millions of dollars and form the backbone, the infrastructure to make these communities self-sufficient on a year round basis and then the State Parks Management proposes to pull the plug on two of the most important tourist attractions.

Annually more than 450,000 people utilize the 1400 acres of woodlands, beach and camps areas that make up these two parks. With less than 36,000 residents in our county it becomes very apparent that tourism is a fact of economic life in each of our communities.

From a fiscal point of view, the parks appear to be reasonably self-sufficient and generate revenues in excess of $600,000 and little if any state general funds are needed to balance the park budgets.

We understand the mission of the State Parks is to provide outdoor recreation and

Caseville School offers savings program

By AMY HEIDEN

It's sometimes tough to encourage children to save their allowances in a piggy bank at home.

But when those children use a "school bank," such as that at Caseville Public School, the act of saving is a bit more fun.

The program, offered through the school by Thumb National Bank, encourages saving and at the same time, teaches the children about banking.

A teller from the bank visits the school twice a month, taking deposits from participating children and making entries in their pass-books.

According to Elementary Principal Janet Watts, all the accounts earn interest and no account is too small. To make a withdrawal, a child needs the consent of a parent or guardian.

"Kids are always excited about putting money in the bank," Watts said. But the best part, she noted, may be withdrawing the money at the end of the school year and seeing how much it's grown.

Accounts can be left over the summer, or closed at the end of the year.

Thumb National Bank, with offices in Caseville, Pigeon and Cass City, also offers the Young Bankers program at Pigeon Elementary in January.

GROWING MONEY: Thumb National employe Kay Fortsch takes a deposit from Jessica Ross, as Adam Nowak, Niki Cieslinski, and Levi Zagorski wait their turn.

Michigan Bell Service Bulletin

Important: Action you must take if your phone number begins with 656.

Now you have a choice of long distance companies for Dial 1 Plus service. Don't leave that choice to chance.

Watch the mail and make your choice soon.

If you have not already received it, you soon will be getting complete information from Michigan Bell by mail, along with a ballot listing your choices of Dial 1 Plus long distance companies. Your Dial 1 Plus options and the steps you should take are described in detail. And you will be given the date by which you must make your selection to avoid having a long distance company randomly selected for you.

If your phone number does not begin with the number above, don't worry. You will be notified when your area is ready for Dial 1 Plus service.

What is Dial 1 Plus?

Dial 1 Plus is simply dialing "1," plus the area code (when necessary), plus the telephone number to complete a long distance call outside of your LATA. Companies offering long distance service can now offer you the same Dial 1 Plus service previously available only to customers of AT&T.

Don't give up your right to choose.

As part of the restructuring of the telephone industry, you must choose a company for Dial 1 Plus service or such a company will be chosen for you. Should this happen, it will be a random selection by computer. We urge you to make your own choice—because a company selected at random will not necessarily be one that best serves your specific needs. The information you receive will include telephone numbers for the various long distance companies, so you can easily look into their services and charges before you make your choice.

Need more help? Let's Talk!

Michigan Bell cannot recommend a long distance company, but if you have any questions about Dial 1 Plus service, or if you have misplaced the ballot we mailed, just call your business office. The number is listed on your phone bill or in the front of your Ameritech PagesPlus® directory.

Lighthouse calendar features Charity Island

The Michigan Historical Society is offering its ninth annual lighthouse calendar titled "Great Lakes Lights." It features pen and ink drawings by artist Leo Kuschel of Taylor, and draws attention to the colorful maritime history of those sentinels that have marked the Lakes' routes for sailors since the 18th century.

This calendar series draws attention to lighthouse history and is prompting concerned citizens to support their preservation, said State Historical Society Executive Director Thomas L. Jones.

The calendars cost $9.48 each which includes postage, handling and sales tax, and are available from the Historical Society of Michigan, 2117 Washenaw Ave., Ann Arbor, MI 48104.

From Devil's Island in western Lake Superior to Tibbetts Point in eastern Lake Ontario, the 1992 "Great Lakes Lights" calendar covers the breadth of waters that have been the key element in the region's history and development, Jones said.

Thirty Mile Point Light - Lake Superior, South Bass

What A Match!

By DUANE GUENTHER

Jack London, a literary genius and my favorite author, captured the simple pleasures a match can bring in his tale, To Build a Fire.

In the story, a man, traveling during the bitter Arctic winter, stops to build a fire. The terrible cold has numbed both hands and brains.

In frantic desperation, the man uses his entire supply of matches to bring a flame to the pile of twigs that lay before him. The fire catches and builds, beginning to both warm and comfort him.

Just then, a sudden gust of wind causes snow to cascade from the overhanging tree branch, burying the flames and any hope for the man's survival.

At a recent office Christmas party, I stood by in amusement while one of my editors attempted to light candles perched in the silver candelabra gracing the dinner table. Like the man in London's story, he was quickly using all the paper matches from a folding book and not being totally successful in igniting the waxed wicks.

"What you need," I advised, "is a couple of good Ohio Blue Tips."

We bantered back and forth for several minutes, exchanging good-natured barbs, and then he left, his mission accomplished.

I stood in silence, staring into the yellowish-blue flame leaping from the tip of the nearest candle and lamented on the pitiful condition of matches available to consumers today.

Years ago, I learned about matches from my Dad. Near the turn of the century he was hurt in a mining accident. Taking his doctor's advice to find less dangerous work, he soon found employment in a northern Michigan lumber camp.

One of his first jobs was to soften the blows of the falling trees. In a somewhat backward logging maneuver, the trees were limbed and topped before they were felled. The trimmings, this is where my Dad came in, were then piled in the path of the falling tree to cushion the blow.

The reason was simple, these northern pines were used to make matches. If a tree splintered when it fell it was rendered useless to the Ohio Match Company, my Dad's employer.

My Dad always carried a pocket full of Blue Tips. Those were the strike-anywhere matches we all knew as kids.

You can't find them anymore. They're not safe, is the probable reason. In their place we now have sticks with microscopic bits of sulphur added to the end. They are so safe you can barely get flame enough to ignite the stick, let alone the paper or twigs that wait patiently to burst into flames.

As an outdoorsman, I really miss the Ohio Blue Tips. I found them to be perfectly safe when properly stored in my Marble Match Case. You know, the one with a knurled storage tube that you can screw tight against the rubber gasket. The arrangement allows you to fall out of a canoe and still have dry matches to start a bank-side drying fire.

Today's woodsmen are forced to carry some of those flimsy books that advertise a Best Western, or worse yet, a cigarette lighter—ugh!

Strike-anywhere matches had a certain machoism about them. They weren't only good for starting fires, but could also be used to pick teeth or keep score on a cribbage board. I remember wedging one in the side of my fly reel to keep it operable after a clip had broken.

And lighting one in an unconventional fashion was the mark of a man. One of the first I mastered was raking the head across the seat of my britches.

Then came the thumb nail trick, which was considerably more difficult. But the topper had to be the front tooth, and I never pulled it off without a mouthful of sulphur fumes.

At the end of the summer I was cleaning out my tackle box when I ran across my Marble Match Case. It was lying right next to the yellow Bic lighter—ugh!

I fondled it tenderly, unscrewed the tube and nestled inside found 5, perfectly dry and operational blue-tipped matches.

Think I'll save them for my next trip to the Arctic...

3 area players named to All-Star team

Several local basketball players were recently named to the North Central Thumb League's All-Conference basketball team.

Michelle Tkacz, a junior at Owen-Gage High School, was named to the second team, while Lisa Dorsch of Owen-Gage received an honorable mention.

From Caseville High, Mandie Fritz received an honorable mention on the All-Conference team.

Outdoor Report...

Week of Dec. 9-15, 1991

Hunters and fishermen have recently reaped the harvest of equipment purchased during the past year, when the State of Michigan received its share of the $270 million in federal excise taxes paid. Our state received $5.3 million from the Pittman-Robertson Act that generates money from taxes on sporting arms, ammunition and archery equipment. That figure is the 2nd highest in the country, topped only by Alaska.

We also received $5.5 million from the Dingel-Johnson Act that taxes fishing equipment, electric trolling motors and sonar fish finders. That amount is the 4th highest in the country trailing California, Texas and Alaska.

The monies will be used for fish and wildlife restoration and hunters' education.

Firearm hunters in the Thumb get another crack at the deer this Friday when the annual muzzleloading season begins. Michigan deer hunters have enjoyed this extended season since 1975. While only 8,500 hunters took to the field that year, DNR experts predict that the 1991 season will see over 150,000 hunters taking to the woods.

There are few restrictions when it comes to muzzleloading. All you need is a gun that loads from the front and shoots a .44 caliber bullet or larger. You can use black powder or a commercial substitute.

Hunters must have a valid kill tag in order to participate in the hunt, and they can fill an unused doe or block permit. There is no special license for the muzzleloading season.
