Parr's hobby is building (not sailing) ships!

BY AMY HEDEEN

Parr has always been a sailor, until the damming of the historic Wabash River drowned his beloved lake of Wabash Bay, a satellite of the Great Lakes. Instead of sailing boats, however, he builds them entirely by hand using packing boxes.

Parr's shipbuilding project is a 3-foot-long model of the Santa Maria, one of the three ships that sailed under Christopher Columbus into the New World.

The square-rigged ship is built of wood, steel, and plastic, with all the rigging done by hand. The hull is a piece of plastic tubing, and the masts are made from dowels and wooden dowels.

Building ship models

Parr has built a number of models of sailing ships, ranging in size from 6 inches to 1 foot. Each model is constructed from a variety of materials, including plastic, paper, and cardboard. The models are often painted and detailed to resemble the original ships.

Materials used

Parr uses a variety of materials to build his models, including plastic tubing for the hulls, dowels for the masts, and paper for the sails. He also uses cardboard for the decks and rigging.

Exhibiting models

Parr has exhibited his models at various events and shows. He has entered them in the annual Great Lakes Maritime Festival, and has won a number of awards for his models.

Future plans

Parr hopes to continue building ship models for as long as he is able. He is considering building a model of the强国, the first ship to cross the Atlantic Ocean.

Contact information

Parr can be reached at 555-1234 or by email at aparr@modelshipbuilder.com.

Small towns are coming along again...

75 and more years ago, the "Great American Dream" was to own a car, a home on a farm, and a bright light of the big city. That's where all the jobs were. But the small towns of America and its surrounding farms were ready to retire. The big cities were ready to earn a living. Even legendary movie moguls like "My Little Red Hen" and "The Good Life" in small towns in the late 1960s. For many, small-town life after the school bus in the 1960s, those two opportunities were imminent - the life of Vistula or a job at the mills of any at all. Good-paying jobs. Daily life's affairs of the time.

Now, the late-1960s relationship of small-town America is coming full circle. Developers in fast-growing southern Dakota counties want to create the best-kept secret in suburban living on nearly 1,000 acres of prime farmland - an old-fashioned American dream. A Bloomfield Hills real estate company and an Illinois grain company are planning to build 1,000 homes around a "picture post card" downtown. The town will have schools, shops, community hall, fire and police stations, they announced.

COLD NOVEMBER RAIN

Multitudes don't like winter much. Yet some do. Take me, for instance. I'll be home in a week or two.

But what a week! First to go is the November rain. Second to go is the November snow. Third to go is the November cold. Fourth to go is the November wind.

You can take it to the bank. December will be a busy month. But I'll be home.

"Rain, rain, go away"

From Under The Willow

By Wally Walker

Bits and pieces

OH, THE WEATHER OUTSIDE IS FRIGHTENING!

It's not the cold that people suffer from, but the wet. It's not the cold that people suffer from, but the wet. It's not the cold that people suffer from, but the wet. It's not the cold that people suffer from, but the wet. It's not the cold that people suffer from, but the wet.

Rain is one of those things that people just can't seem to avoid. It's a constant companion, always there to greet you with a cold, wet, and soggy welcome. But even in the face of this relentless weather, there are still ways to make the most of it. Whether you're stuck inside due to the rain, or out braving the elements, there are plenty of ways to make the most of this dreary weather.

Rainy days can be a great opportunity to spend some quality time with family and friends. Gather around the fireplace, tell stories, or plan a rainy day scavenger hunt. Rainy days can also be a great opportunity to try out some new recipes. From savory soups to comforting stews, there are plenty of recipes that are perfect for rainy days. And don't forget about that all-time classic, a warm cup of tea or coffee.

So the next time you find yourself looking out the window at a rainy day, remember that it's not just the weather that's outside. It's the perfect opportunity to slow down, relax, and appreciate the smaller things in life. Rainy days can be a great opportunity to reconnect with loved ones, to try out some new recipes, or simply to appreciate the comfort and coziness that comes with a warm home.

Yarns From The Thumb

From The Christmas Memories

My Favorite Christmas Memory:

My name is Sarah Johnson, and I have a favorite Christmas memory that I would like to share with you. It happened one Christmas when I was a little girl. My father had just returned from a deployment in the Middle East, and we were all excited to see him again. The Christmas tree was already up, and we had started decorating it with our ornaments. My mother had bought me a new dress, and we were planning on going to Midnight Mass together.

On Christmas Eve, we were all in bed, eagerly waiting for Santa to bring us presents. Suddenly, we heard a knock on the door. We all got up to see who it was, but it was just my father coming home. We were all so happy and excited to see him again.

He told us that he had been assigned a special mission and was coming home early. He had been away for a few months, and we were all so happy to have him back with us again. We all went down to the living room, and my father surprised us with the most amazing gift. He had brought us a new pet puppy, which we had all been hoping for.

We were all so happy and excited to have the puppy, and we named him Santa. He was the cutest little dog, and we all loved him instantly. That Christmas was the most special one for all of us, and we will always cherish that memory.

Lakers fall in Regionals

By ARY WICKEN

After changing Barry Beach to the District Finals, the Lady Lakers last week found themselves in the state playoffs for the first time since 1958. They came from behind to win Monday night’s Sectional game against the Lakers out of the playoffs.

A tie-breaking shot by Sabrina Trimble with 59 seconds left in the game gave the Lakers the lead back.

"We did not tie for the lead but we came back from behind to win," Trimble said.

"We’re going to keep working hard until the end," she added.

The Lakers won the sectional championship and will now advance to the district finals. The Lakers are now 15-1 overall and 8-1 in the conference.

The Lady Lakers are now 10-1 and will compete in the regionals.

When I was a boy, very few people had air-conditioning. But there was a small air-conditioning unit attached to the back of the old Buick and when it was turned on, the back seat of the car was very cool. I used to love sitting in the back seat when we went on long trips. It was such a treat.

Christmas Story: A Country Christmas

Christmas Music Hits

In the music record world where Christmas songs sell quickly and often are on the charts only for a short time, this year the holiday season has been extended by many labels.

The most popular holiday record is the "Christmas" album by The Beach Boys. This album features all of the classic Christmas songs, including "Silent Night," "Jingle Bells," and "White Christmas.

Christmas Cherry Legend

There is an old legend about a man named Cherry who was a cherry orchard owner in the early 1800s. He had a cherry tree that produced a very large cherry. The cherry was so large that it could not be eaten whole, so people would cut it in half and eat the middle of the cherry. Cherry said that he would give his tree to the first person who could cut the cherry in half without breaking it.

One day, a young boy came to the orchard and tried to cut the cherry without breaking it. He failed, but he did cut it in half and ate it. Cherry was so impressed that he gave the boy his tree. The boy planted the tree and it produced cherries that were so large that they could be seen from space.

Christmas Dove Of Peace

Cut out the dove of peace from white, light-weight cardboard. Cut a slit in the dove's neck. Place the wings inside the slit and tie an elastic band around the wings. Hang the dove where it can be seen from all around the world.

The Name "Jesus"

Although today when the name is given to a newborn baby it usually doesn't have any more significance than an identification tag, in Biblical times the name Jesus meant salvation. The name Jesus could be traced back to the Greek word "Iesous," which means savior. The name Jesus was also given to the Messiah, the prophesied savior of the world.

Nutcracker Tree

The Nutcracker Tree was first introduced in 1954. It was created by the Russian ballet company, the Bolshoi. The Nutcracker was a ballet based on the short story "The Nutcracker and the Mouse King" by E.T.A. Hoffmann. The Nutcracker Tree was designed to look like a Nutcracker uniform, with a red and gold outfit, and a music box that played the Nutcracker Suite.

1992 Christmas Guide

Christmas customs from around the world

Fantastic Choice! 1992 Christmas Guide
No doubt this Christmas season, as the years pass, comes down in history as a time when Christmas became a big deal. And we mean a big deal, not only because there are so many options available, but also because there are so many options available to you. It is not necessary, but it sure helps.

Christmas Tree Thoughts
Among the many things that are required to make a Christmas tree beautiful is to wrap it with tinsel or other decorations. The tinsel should be chosen to match the lights that you have. And it is important to remember that the tree should be wrapped before the lights are put on it.

Different Decorations
The traditional red and green colors of Christmas are often associated with joy and life. However, the choice of colors can vary depending on personal preference. Some people prefer more traditional colors like red and green, while others prefer more modern colors like black and white.
