Scenic records 3 holes-in-one!

Three days of Scenic Golf and Country Club yielded three holes-in-one by three lucky golfers last week.

First, Mr. and Mrs. John Haase, NIU professors, saw their golf ball drop into the hole in three strokes in the Scenic Classic Golf Tournament, held Monday.

Then, late Saturday afternoon, Gary Pyle of DeKalb put a golf ball into a hole in three strokes on the par three at Scenic Country Club.

Pyle, who was playing in a tournament sponsored by the DeKalb Chamber of Commerce, had requested that the hole be played as a hole-in-one after he made a bogey on the previous hole.

For the third hole-in-one, Mrs. Roberta Filly, Winnebago County clerk, played an event in Armerdale Golf Club in the morning and shot a 78.

Three days of golfing produced a total of 33 strokes, including 3 holes-in-one.

For Sebewaing native Bert Phillips, his second career is DELICIOUS!

BY MARY GRIER

When life hands you lemons, you may decide to make lemonade. But Chef Bert Phillips doesn’t just make lemonade—throughwordless social media posts, videos, podcasts, and his latest book, “From the Farm to the Table,” he shares his passion with the world.

Phillips, who lives just outside of Sebewaing, is a third-generation farmer. He and his wife, Dr. Melissa Phillips, own 140 acres near the Sebewaing River, where they grow apples, strawberries, and other fruits and vegetables. Phillips has written books and created videos about farming and cooking, and he’s been featured in national publications like Food Network Magazine and the New York Times.

“I grew up on a farm, and I’ve always loved cooking,” Phillips said. “When I started farming, I realized that I could use my love of food and farming to bring people together.”

Phillips used his passion to create a YouTube channel called “From the Farm to the Table,” where he shares videos about cooking and farming. The channel has over 100,000 subscribers and has been featured on national TV shows like The Today Show and Access Hollywood.

Phillips’ latest book, “From the Farm to the Table,” is a collection of his favorite recipes and stories about his family’s farm. The book includes dishes like apple pie, strawberry shortcake, and farmer’s market sandwiches.

Phillips has been featured in several national publications, including Food Network Magazine and the New York Times. He has also been a guest on TV shows like The Today Show and Access Hollywood.

Phillips has written books, created videos, and appeared on TV shows, all with the goal of sharing his passion for farming and cooking. He has even been featured in the New York Times and Food Network Magazine.

Phillips’ books and videos have been praised for their positivity and inclusivity. He encourages his audience to try new things and to be open to different cultures and cuisines.

“I want people to see that cooking and farming are not just for the wealthy,” Phillips said. “They are for everyone, and they can be a source of joy and connection.”

Phillips’ books, videos, and appearances have all been successful. He has received positive reviews from readers and viewers, and he has gained a dedicated following of fans who love his positivity and inclusivity.

Phillips’ success has allowed him to give back to his community. He has given away free meals to those in need and has used his platform to raise awareness for important issues like climate change and food inequality.

“From the Farm to the Table” is available on Amazon and in local bookstores. Phillips encourages people to try new things and to be open to different cultures and cuisines.
