Dr. Mary Morden enjoys being 'back home'...

BY AMY HEIDEN
Casselville youngster James Urick watches intently as Dr. Mary Morden expertly applies a cast to his arm and hand, showing not the slightest bit of discomfort — and happily chatting with his mother and the doctor.

Dr. Morden warned the seven-year-old not to put coins into his cast, telling him "this is not a bank," and further cautions him not to use it as a weapon.

The difference between treating an accidental injury like James' in a small hospital like Scheurer Hospital, and a trauma injury in a large teaching hospital like Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, Maryland, finally brought Mary Morden back to her hometown over a year ago.

Originally from Bad Axe, and the granddaughter of local physician Dr. Charles Morden, the orthopedist is now practicing from her office in Bad Axe, with privileges at Scheurer, Huron Memorial and Harbor Beach Community Hospitals.

Urick's reaction to his new cast and his broken fingers proves what Dr. Morden says about her new patients in the Thumb, contrasted to patients in a city as large as Baltimore.

"People here seem to be tougher, even the children," Dr. Morden says. "They seem to work a lot harder.

"If I had to set a broken arm there, a kid in the city would be crying, but kids here went to watch and they're pretty quiet about it."

Dr. Morden returned to her home county after spending over 13 years practicing in Baltimore. She earned her medical degree from the University of Michigan and completed her internship and residency at the Ochsner Clinic in New Orleans. It was in New Orleans that she made up her mind that orthopedics would be her specialty.

"At that time there weren't many women going into orthopedics," she says. "I started picking up orthopaedic journals and found they were much more interesting than regular medical journals."

Here's a healthy brownie...

Learn about durable power of attorney

The Michigan Legislature recently authorized the use of a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care in our state. By creating a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care, you can appoint someone you trust to make decisions about medical treatment when you are unable to participate in medical treatment decisions. In most other states, a powerless agent (someone who has a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care) is appointed by a judge. If you live in another state, you may want to check on whether your state has a Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care. If you do not have any medical history, you should contact a doctor or attorney to make sure that your wishes are known.

The new instructions were developed by the Michigan Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care committee, which was convened by the Michigan Medical Society. The committee consisted of doctors, nurses, and other health care professionals. They worked together to create a durable power of attorney for health care that is easy to understand and use.

The new instructions can be purchased from the Michigan Medical Society for $25.00 plus shipping and handling. They are available in English and Spanish.
