Tom Beer likes being Lion

By AMY HEIDEN

First impressions last a long time, and so do second and third and fourth impressions.

And apparently, the impressions Bay Port native Tom Beer made on the Detroit Lions coaching staff were good ones.

The 6'5", 240-lb. Beer won a spot last week on the Lions Football Team roster after being drafted this spring as a seventh-round pick.

He knows he's got a spot on the team and a locker with his name on it, but didn't know exactly where he'd play as a linebacker.

"I don't know yet where I'll be if I'm activated, but most likely on special teams like the kickoff and kickoff returns," Beersaid Thursday.

Beer has made headlines because of his rather unusual path to the Pontiac Silverdome.

After graduation from Laker High School in 1988, he attended Saginaw Valley State University, then worked two years on his stepfather's commercial fishing boats.

He soon found that fishing for a living wasn't exactly what he wanted, so he enrolled at Wayne State University and won a walk-on position on their football team.

Beer made his mark at Wayne State, and finally got noticed by Lions scouts when he played at the Division II All-Star Game in North Dakota. the Lions' staff was impressed by his work ethic, attitude — and most especially his speed.

After signing with the Lions, Beer attended training camp and impressed Coach Wayne Fontes enough that Fontes left Beer's name on the roster when making his final cuts before this season.

Even though Beer now has a locker of his own near those of Lions stars Pat Swilling and Mike Johnson and is officially a member of the team, he says he knows he's got lots of work to do.

"I've got to work on my hand placement and my reads and get better at the fundamentals," Beer said.

"I've just got to keep working hard and learn what they expect of me."

He's the son of Connie and stepson of Tod Williams of Bay Port.

Now they are looking for interested community and church people who want to help build low-cost housing for people who need it.

"We need to follow the lead of Jesus Christ who loved and helped the poor," says Reinhardt, in explaining "Habitat's" mission. The public is invited.

All The News That Fits We Print!

DESK-CLEARING: ■ We'll have lots of Elkton AutumnFest pictures and stories in next Tuesday's Newsweekly. Due to the Labor Day Weekend, it gets a little tricky getting everything done on time... so watch for news then.

■ Here's a scary statistic: A recent survey says advertising works — at least among teens. What cigarette brands are the most popular among teens? The three most-heavily advertised cigarette brands — depicted by Joe Camel, the Marlboro Man and those fun couples who smoke Newport.

Each of these ad campaigns combine to capture 86% of all teenage smokers — yet they only reach 35% of overall cigarette says, says the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. It's Office of Smoking and Health says teens are more vulnerable than adults to advertising by the tobacco industry, and you just know it's true.

Joe Camel, for instance, is one of the most-readily identifiable images among young people — even though TV ads for cigarettes haven't been allowed on the airwaves since 1970.

The CDC first reported several years ago that teenage smokers are much more likely than adults to pick the most-advertised brands. That's because they like — and believe — those flashy images of independent, social and sophisticated people smoking than do adults, who usually know better.

All in all, about 3 million teens are smokers, who consume nearly 1 billion packs a year. Tobacco companies spend $4.6 billion a year in advertising, and they insist they don't target children... but the facts prove them wrong.

■ We were sorry to note the death last week of C. Boyd Stockmeyer at the age of 81, a former Chairman of the Board of Comerica Bank and its predecessors. Stockmeyer was born in Caseville and lived here until age 10. He is remembered, among other things, for establishing Michigan's first ATM automated banking machine in Birmingham in 1971.

While most of Christa Keim's fellow graduates of Laker High School's Class of 1994 are getting their books and schedules for the upcoming school year, she's doing something a little different.

Her preparations for this year include a three-month training session in Baltimore, MD., before flying to Lithuania — with five people she's never even met.

Keim and the others are flying to Lithuania through a program named Y.E.S. (Youth Evangelism Service). Y.E.S. is a branch of the Eastern Mennonite Board of Missions and provides young adults three months of intensive training and Christian discipleship, followed by a seven-month cross-cultural mission assignment.

Keim's group will work with the Lithuanian Christian Charity Fund (LCCF) being actively involved with orphans, senior citizens, and other underprivileged people. They will travel throughout Lithuania presenting the gospel in drama, music, street and relief ministries.

After filling out a six-page application form with five essay questions, Keim was one out of only 60 people accepted for the September-May term.

She then got the options of going over seas for seven months, 11 months or even longer. She also got to choose from a number of options of where she would like to be placed.

Although Lithuania was her first preference, her second choice was going to Honduras as a teachers' assistant.

After going to Costa Rica in the Spring of 1993, she decided she really wanted to help those less fortunate. Leaving for Baltimore on Sept. 10 for the training, Keim and the others will be flown over to Lithuania after a 10-day Christmas vacation at home.

Following her mission trip, Keim plans to either apply for a nanny position on the East Coast, or attend a Bible Institute.

She's the daughter of Wayne and Joyce Keim of Bay Port.

Area residents formed a Citizens Bond Committee in March to study district needs and make recommendations on upgrading school facilities.

The committee hopes to build a new elementary school building at the junior/senior high school, plus upgrade the junior/senior complex.

"This is an opportunity for the Akron and Fairgrove communities to get back in the educational arena," Tahfs says. "We are so far behind other school districts in our facilities and offerings."

Plans are to build a 4,200-square-foot elementary school, plus add a gym with 1,000 seating, renovate science, media center, special education departments, chemistry room, biology room and art room at the junior/senior high school.

Long range plans are to close and sell the facilities in Akron and Fairgrove, some of which are 57 years old.

If approved, the 7 mills along with Proposal A's 6 mills would cost a homeowner of a $40,000 house a total of $260 a year. Before Proposal A's passage the tax was about $670.

"This could improve the whole picture of our education here for the next 30 years," Tahfs says, noting the district is debt-free and could get low bond interest rates. — BY MARY DRIER

Fair Haven votes Sept. 12

Fair Haven Township voters go to the polls Monday, Sept. 12, to decide on a request for 1 mill for five years for fire department services.

The proposal requests a .1477 of a mill in order to levy the full one mill the township has had in the past.rollback creating a loss of $2,497.

Passage of the millage would generate about $21,147 the first year.

Farmedic training offered

Huron County will host a Farmedic Training Program for First Responders, EMTs and Fire Fighters on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 16-18.

This program is made possible through the Rural Health Outreach Grant received by Huron Memorial Hospital, Huron County Medical Control Authority and William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak.

Since 1981, Farmedic has trained rescue personnel in 46 states, Puerto Rico and Canada, in responding to injuries that occur on farms. The 16-hour course will include classroom instruction and hands-on extrication practice. "This course normally costs $125.00 per student," says Linda Herman, director of community relations and development at Huron Memorial Hospital.

"We're very excited to provide this training to 20 students for no charge, as part of this grant." To register, call 269-9521.

A 1994 "75th" look back at 1969

Huron County Farm Bureau, at 50 years...

1969 marks the 50th anniversary of our Huron County Farm Bureau, which was organized in 1919. We have been asked to search for records of information on the early beginnings of our Farm Bureau that would be interesting. Complete records are hard to find. We did however find some records in our county Extension office. We found some background in the 1962 Yearbook of agriculture. We obtained valuable information from the "History of Co-operative work in Michigan 1914-1939." And conferred with old timers whose memory went back to the time, and were involved.

I can very well remember that I didn't know very much about the objectives of Farm Bureau as my teammate and I, went out on that first membership drive in 1919. I did however, have faith in the county leaders supporting Farm Bureau, and the membership drive. In the county there were the McCarty's, Kinches, Conkeys, Gus Braun, Dukelow, Ramsey, Hunt, Oehmke, Priemer, Nugent, and many others. I also knew that farmers of that period had many problems, and there was a need to be organized to find practical solutions. World War I had come to a close, and everything seemed to be out of adjustment.

In the membership drive my teammate and I were assigned to work in McKinley township, in the evening we reported the signing of 35 members on a three year contract, at ten dollars a year, of which $5.00 was to remain in the county to support the newly appointed county agent, buy office equipment, and rent for office space.

The records show that the first annual county Farm Bureau meeting was held at Bad Axe, June 20th, 1921. Delegates from every township in Huron County attended. The seating of the delegates was determined by the number of members in each township. It was a one day convention.

The county agent James R. Campbell gave his annual report to the delegates. His report in part reads as follows: "I made 117 farm visits, held 128 farm meetings, mailed 23,756 letters, had 812 office calls, sent 95 articles to the press." James Nichol, president of the Michigan State Farm Bureau addressed the delegates with words of encouragement.

The problems of the day were reflected by the topics discussed. The delegates went on record opposing — A general sales tax, The Covert Road Act. Short term credit for farmers, Useless fillers in fertilizer. The group favored, Income tax, more liberal credit, Openformula feeds, seeds of known origin, Farm to market roads, Bonded warehouse receipts as a means of obtaining credit. Need more cooperatives, more comforts for farm life. Better social life on the farm, need more trained leaders, more assistance in the solving of farm problems.

In the beginning it was the thinking that the major function of the Michigan State Farm Bureau was to be educational, that it was naive to assume that such a poorly funded, loosely associated Bureau could alter the welfare of the farmer for better.

Now, fifty years later we look back, many of the old problems have been settled. We have much better transportation, with farm to market roads. We have high analysis fertilizers. We have improved marketing machinery. We have open formula feeds. We have better credit relationship for farmers. We have increased our technical know-how. We have more conveniences and more comforts in the home. We still have problems that demand our very best. Farmers need Farm Bureau more than they ever did. Farmers need to be organized.

South African visitor impressed with hospitality

By PAUL SMITH, South Africa

Recently I had the good fortune to spend a few days in the Pigeon area as the guest of Roger and Sally Buschlen, whose daughter Brenda had spent a year as an exchange student at the school in which I teach in Cape Town, South Africa.

During my two days in Pigeon, I was quite overwhelmed by the hospitality and generosity of the Buschlen and their numerous friends who gave of their time and effort to ensure that I had a memorable visit. I met many people, who were also unfailingly friendly, interested and willing to give of their time to make me feel welcome.

May 1, through your newspaper, extend my heartfelt thanks to the many people who made me feel so welcome.

If anyone makes it down to the southern tip of Africa in the future, it would be my great pleasure to introduce you to the fairest Cape in the world. Thank you.

They were saved by their seat belts

By F/Lt. STEPHEN KRAFFT, Commander Bad Axe Post

A mother and her twin babies received recognition for being "Saved by the Belt" from the Bad Axe Post of the Michigan State Police and the Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use.

On June 17, Julie Samuels and her twin 10-month-old babies, Tyler and Jaylee, were traveling westbound on Sebewaing Road when her van was struck broadside by a pickup truck traveling southbound on Bay Port Road. The impact caused the van carrying Samuels and her children to lose control and roll over into the ditch.

Fortunately Samuels "buckled-up" and her babies were secured in their car seats. The impact caused extensive damage to their vehicle, however, because she and her family were properly secured, no one suffered serious injuries.

The Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use welcomes Samuels, Tyler and Jaylee, into the exclusive "Saved by the Belt" club. All were awarded their certificates and other prizes by Trooper Ronald Gromak of the Bad Axe Post, who investigated the accident.

Samuels, Tyler and Jaylee are the family of Trooper Jay Samuels of the Bad Axe Post of the Michigan State Police. Troopers wear safety belts and so do their families, because buckling up does make a difference.

MISSIONSFESTE

Durch late August dachte ich oft an die alte Missionsfeste die wir hatten in Picnic Grove. Und ich kann gut rememern wie ich beeindruckt war waren mit Sermons about die Heiden in Fernen Land, und wie wir Ihre Soul saven koennten bei Missionare hinuber senden.

Unser Vormittag Services an Missionsfest waren im Picnic Grove gehalten, mit Deutsche und Englische Sermons, usually bei ein out-of-USA Prediger. Music war supplied bei die Sebewaing Town Band, weil Herr Scheitwe war Director und alle Musikanten haben immer gut cooperated und mit-gespielt fuer gute Relations zwischen Kirchen und among Freunde.

Missionsfest war nicht Missionsfest gewesen ohne "Von Greenland's Icy Mountains" und "Hark the Voice of Jesus Calling" und similar Lieder. Die Melodien gaben uns Spirit und Zip, und das singen war staerker und lauter fuer Missionsfest denn irgend other Sonntag im Jahr.

Mittags haben die Ladies Aid Members ein wundervolles Beef Dinner mit Pie ge-served. Ich hab keine Remembrance about Preis, aber vielleicht so hoch wie 50c, weil es ist ja alles in die Missionskasse gegangen.

Nachmittags gab es noch eine Service, wieder mit der Band, und da hatten wir ein echter, genuine, overseas Missionare

We've got fewer PHONE FORUM choices for you this week due to early deadlines for the Labor Day holiday—but watch for a full batch next Tuesday morning...

O. of Pigeon: We think the flag should appear on the front page of the paper more often. It is the symbol of our country and deserves more respect. Thank you.

M. of Unionville: I would like to see some kind of study done that might explain to teachers that our wages are going down. We are not being paid the same, there are many layoffs. We people cannot afford to keep giving teachers the increases they want every year.

Bob from Pigeon: Now that pre-season football is here, who cares about the baseball strike anyway? It's all just rich players fighting with rich owners. When it's done, the people who will actually pay more will be us, the fans, and those bums get richer.

H.K. of Caseville: Anybody out there got some good recipes for plain old boring boneless, skinless chicken breasts? Write them down and send to The Newsweekly. I need some good ones.

L. of Elkton: I just realized there's no place to go around Elkton or Pigeon to get a cup of coffee or a pop after a meeting or a game. Sometimes we like to sit and talk about what just went on, and there's no place around to do that. We don't want to go to a bar, just have someplace to enjoy a late coffee and talk.

M.R. of Pigeon: Congratulations to Tom Beer, who made the Detroit Lions roster. But he's not the only one from around here to play professional ball. Pigeon native Jim Rathje played in the now-defunct World Football League a few years back. And don't forget, Reggie Ignash is playing professional ball, even if it is on a farm team.

S. of Pigeon: I think the new lunch card for Laker students is a great idea. Now I know exactly where my kid's lunch money is going. Now let's hope those students can keep track of their lunch cards.

I remember when I was in elementary school, we got a cardboard lunch card every Monday if we paid by the week, and the worker in the lunch line would punch a hole for each meal I ate. So the idea of using a card isn't exactly new but with computers, I'd guess everything's a lot easier to keep track of. And I like the fact that the kids won't be stigmatized by getting free lunches.

Another new rule is that a 900 call costing more than $2 must have a short introductory message stating the name of the providing company and how much the call could cost. The caller is then given three seconds to hang up, which ends the call and avoids any charges. I bought a bunch of socks the other day. White knee-hi's, right? And I found some nice bargains on new underthings too, so I picked up a drawer full. (No pun intended.)

And pens...felt the need for some nice, new easy-flow ink pens...and a couple of spiral bound notepads for record keeping.

But why I bought paste and crayons is beyond me! I am a 32-year-old spinster with no more need of new school supplies than an Tibetan monk...but 13 years of Pavlovian back-to-school conditioning just doesn't come unraveled in a day or two. (Or in a year or 15 I guess!)

Ahh, but the memories are fond indeed of that "bittersweet" time of year. I speak, of course, of elementary school days, when that combination of excitement and dread overtook our little, underdeveloped emotions in late August of each year.

By that time — late August that is — the enchantment of summer vacation was beginning to lose its appeal. Our parents were getting crabby. Our siblings were becoming intolerable. Every tree had been climbed, our "no boys allowed" fortress was falling to pieces (because the boys were finally allowed) and swatting at mosquitoes, skinning our knees, and riding our bikes for hundreds of miles each day were all beginning to lose their charm.

So the prospect of a new school year actually seemed to put a tiny spark of anticipation into our young lives. (Or mine at least.) There were friends and classmates we hadn't seen in three months; the familiar creak of newly varnished wood floors and piles of bright, new cloths, new supplies, new books, and — usually — a couple of new students to make friends with as well.

But by the same token, we had really perfected the art of running amok unsupervised! By late August, I was sleeping in till noon every morning, and galavanting across the countryside on my horse every afternoon.

But it wasn't just the fun and frolic that was hard to give up. Summer was also a good time for a young entrepreneur to set goals and win cash prizes. So — come September — it was hard to make the transition to the wageless constraints of a wooden desk when for three months I had been babysitting, window-washing, house cleaning, berry picking, egg gathering and vegetable selling for literally hundreds of dollars of profit!

Yes — back-to-school time was a time of excitement and dread. Excitement at the prospect of piles of leaves to leap into, Halloween costumes to plan, and new lunch pails to show off...but great dread as well as the prospect of early, early mornings, hard work, and the fleeting passage of our childhoods.

So...who needs some extra past and crayons? I have Elmer's, and the big box of 64!

George Keim's "Recollections of Bygone Days" will return here next week Watch for it then!

Immanuel Sunday School celebrates its first 50 years

This year promises to be a special one at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Sebewaing, beginning Sept. 11, according to Sunday School Supt. Richard Wrobleksi.

It marks the 50th anniversary of Sunday School at the church. On Oct. 8, 1944, under direction of the late Frank Marquardt, Immanuel held its first Sunday School sessions.

Through the years hundreds of men and women have worked hard to make our Sunday School meet its mission statement: To share the love of Jesus in a caring way.

A Sunday School Anniversary Action Team has planned a series of special events to commemorate the 1994-95 Sunday School year.

Parents and families have been challenged to become more fully involved, many as teachers or aides. Others will be prayer partners with each class.

All will be invited to visit while classrooms are in action.

Children and teachers in grades 1-8 will be seen visiting shut-ins, helping persons in need, supporting mission projects, and contributing to congregation functions and church services.

Also, a family roller skating party is set for Wednesday, Sept. 21, in Bay City.

On Sunday, Oct. 9, the congregation will observe Christian Education Rally Day at both worship services.

An old-fashioned picnic with a 1940's flavor is being planned for the afternoon of Oct. 9 for young and old alike.

"We have fond memories of the past, thanking the Lord for the gracious blessings received," Wrobleksi says.

Visitors are always welcome at Immanuel Sunday School. Classes are conducted from 9:15-10:10 each Sunday morning for all age levels, age 2 to adult. Contact the church office at 883-3050.

Hospice training starts Sept. 28

The Hospice of Bay Area will offer Hospice training classes in Caro.

Hospice volunteers provide emotional and physical support for the terminally-ill patient and their family, organizers say.

Hospice volunteer training begins Wednesday, Sept. 28. Classes run from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

SCHOOL BUS SAFETY

Each school day, nearly 22 million students are transported in 350,000 school vehicles nationwide. Thankfully, most travel without incident, but accidents can and do happen.

A total of 110 people in the U.S. were killed in school bus accidents (40 of them pupils) during the 1987-88 school year. Of those 40 pupils killed, 30 died outside the school bus while boarding or disembarking.

While the National Highway Safety Administration reports that school buses are four times safer than the family car, there are a few tips to make travel even safer:

- A parent or other adult should accompany kids to the bus stop;
- Each child should know basic traffic rules, such as crossing only at corners and green lights;
- If a child drops something, teach him/her to wait until after the school bus has left to go pick it up;
- Whether a child walks, is driven or rides a school bus, he/she should know the route to and from school and his/her address and phone number.

Laker test reports incomplete

By AMY HEIDEN

Recent newspaper reports about Laker Schools' discharge of contaminated water were incomplete, according to Buildings and Grounds Supt. Tom Armbruster.

A review of computerized state records by the Detroit Free Press found that the Laker district's wastewater treatment plant was one of the state's five most-frequent violators of state Department of Natural Resources regulations, by releasing water tainted by fecal coliform into local waterways.

The records covered the years from 1989-93. DNR officials claimed that plant operators weren't correctly taking water samples, and said they planned to require operators to become certified.

Armbruster says the claim that samples weren't be collected correctly stemmed from contaminated bottles the district used. The district buys its own bottles now, which should correct that situation.

As for the extra training needed for certification, Armbruster says, "I'm still waiting for the DNR to get back with me about that. They told me a year and a half ago that we needed the training, but I haven't heard a thing."

"I don't have any problems with attending classes and getting certified."

Wastewater from the high school and junior high complex between Elkton and Pigeon flows through pipes into a 10,000-gal. solids tank behind the high school. The excess water from that tank spills into a second holding tank.

Two pumps housed in a small building pump the sewage back to a seepage bed behind the baseball field. There, the water is pumped onto the sand-filled bed into tile, and from there goes through a series of baffles in a third tank to remove any leftover solid material.

Before being released into Gorky Drain, the water is chlorinated to kill fecal coliform bacteria, Armbruster says. The drain runs some six miles to the Pigeon River, and on the way, it serves households and farms with septic tanks and filter beds.

High levels of coliform bacteria in water can be a health problem, causing intestinal problems in people and animals. It's been blamed for the closing of several Metro Detroit beaches most of this summer season.

DNR regulations say water samples should contain no more than 400 organisms per 100 ml of water.

Test results on the water from Laker's system shows the coliform count varies considerably from one sample to the next. For example, a sample taken on Jan. 24 of this year showed 220 per 100 ml. But a sample taken the very next day showed the count had increased to 3400 per 100 ml.

Heavy rains can cause water treatment systems to release excess amounts of coliform by forcing them to handle large amounts of water in a short time.

The system Armbruster now operates was built when the Pigeon, Bay Port and Elkton schools consolidated in 1959, so it's well over 30 years old. But not until the Junior High School was built in 1979 did the DNR require a permit for the system, Armbruster said.

"When the original permit was taken out, they wanted us to sample every day," he says. "Then they agreed to a sample once a week."

The wastewater treatment system may well be ready for an overhaul, Armbruster admits.

"Maybe it just needs maintenance," he says. "For 30 years it's worked and we had no violations. Maybe the next step is to redo the bed."

"It's not like we're ignoring the problem. But with the DNR, you can never pin them down to tell you exactly what you need to do."

"We know what they want but they never give you the directions you need to get there."

Solitude

It was late in the day. The sun had finally peeked out from an all-day overcast and the early evening promised to be free of the rains that had plagued us on and off for the past several days.

Sweetwife was busy on her laptop computer, pounding out back for an early deadline and had made plans to hike down to Lake Michigan just before dark.

Since I wasn't in the hiking mood, I decided to grab an ultra-light rod and see what I could scare up on a little lake that lay less than a mile from our campsite.

The access site was deserted when I arrived, just the way I liked it and as I scanned the surface of the tiny lake there was not another boat or fisherman to be seen.

It took just a few minutes to slide the canoe off the rack, stash it with a life preserver, an extra paddle, a small tackle box, my rod and a sponge rubber knee pad.

When I'm alone in my canoe, I paddle it backwards. Well, really not backwards, but I flip it end for end, which allows me to kneel just in front of the carrying yoke and rest my back against the rear of the front seat.

In this midship position, I must favor one side which allows me to J-Stroke past the tumblehome without banging the side of the canoe.

To the uninitiated, the canoe seems to be tipping precariously to one side, but to the seasoned paddler, it is not only comfortable, but extremely stable.

Woods & Waters

As I slid my tiny craft into the water, a mournful cry slid across the tiny ripples dotting the water's surface and reached my failing ears.

As if some siren from the sea, the sad wailing seemed to lure me onward to perhaps a treacherous shoal if I had been sailing on the ocean.

But on this small lake, my hopes were that it would lead to a good fishing spot.

For I knew the cry was coming from a lonesome loon calling for its mate, and once she found him, they would fish together and hopefully leave a few for me.

The lake was shaped like a snowman and I had entered the water at the feet. In place of a left arm, a small river entered into the body, creating a shallow sand bar that made the water beige near its left hip.

The river, after running up the snowman's left shoulder, exited its head.

I moved the canoe silently along the water's surface, trying not to bang a gunwale, and dipping my paddle as carefully as possible.

The silence was penetrating, almost eerie, and except for the lilting laughter of the pair of loons now joined together, not another sound came from the immediate vicinity. It was as if the two loons and I were the only living things on the water.

The loons swam at right angles when I intercepted them near the center of the lake.

They were not alarmed, and as I passed, returned to their feeding area to bob and dive in the solitude that seems necessary for their existence.

I reached the far side of the lake, rigged a purple, plastic worm with a double twister tail and mused how Stephen King is missing the boat by not creating another monster from this sinister-looking creature that snaked back to the canoe on my first retrieve.

I only hoped the bass would try to eat it before it grew to gigantic proportions.

The fishing was easy. A slight breeze moved me down the edge of a waterlily marsh at the perfect casting speed, allowing me just enough time to drop the worm on a pad and jerk it tantalizingly back towards the boat.

I got my first strike in front of a small stream easing into a break in the marsh. It wasn't much, and after a few half-hearted tugs, it was gone.

As I held the plastic worm up for a damage control report, I noticed a red-tailed hawk surveying the situation from his perch in the branches of a dead elm.

Apparently the loons and I were not the only ones interested in fish.

Another hour of drifting produced another strike, but no fish. I moved to a different bay and got skunked there also. Meanwhile, the loons continued to perform — for each other, I'm sure — but since I didn't appear a threat, they let me watch.

They dove, they reared from the water, flapping their white breast defiantly and they ran, scurrying across the water like an overloaded bomber lumbering towards the end of the runway. Sometimes they crashed, creating a furrowing wake and other times they clawed their way airborne to sail with torpedo-like bodies across the bow of my canoe. Just checking me out, I was sure.

Dusk settled, and the boredom of poor fishing set in. Setting my sights on the dock across the lake, I began a self-imposed competition to paddle a straight line without alternating sides.

The loons checked a couple more times with their bow-strafing runs.

I apparently met with their approval, for as I slid my canoe back on the pick-up rack, they called their goodbyes. Driving out of the parking lot, my headlights swept across a sign bearing the name of the lake — you guessed it — Loon Lake.

Thanks A Million!

Drips and drops can make a splash

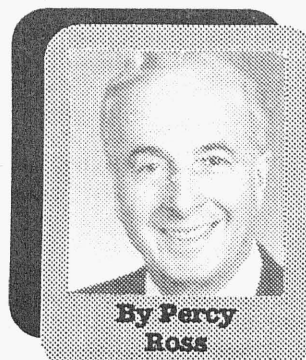

DEAR MR. ROSS:

I recently learned of a letter that my old friend, Patrick, had written you. He was asking for enough money so he could give his two teenage children gifts for their birthdays.

They don't live with him, but it seems Pat hasn't had the money to buy gifts for many years.

If you remember the letter he wrote, you'd pretty much understand that Pat isn't doing so good, especially since his mother passed away.

Today, Pat is without a pot or a window to throw it out. He's homeless.

By Percy Ross

It's kind of crazy because he was a strong worker, but he always got fired from his jobs. One time was from a department store because he was joy riding on the freight elevators. He lost a job at a potato chip company because he was carving Mr. Potato Heads out of the potatoes on the conveyor line.

The last job he got fired from is when he was found sleeping in the broom closet.

At 46 years old this guy is running out of jobs he can get fired from. I just want you to know that any money you would send him isn't going to help. — Mr. H. L., Red Wing, MN

DEAR MR. L.:

Perhaps sending a modest check to Pat may seem like throwing good money after bad.

However, if one were to read between the lines of Pat not being able to hold a job and being homeless, you may find a man who for once in his life wants to do the right thing and give his kids a birthday gift.

Who am I to deny him a fleeting moment of happiness?

The check's in the mail in care of General Delivery. $$$$$

DEAR MR. ROSS:

I have a 3-year-old boy. He was conceived by rape. The person that raped me was my sister's husband.

He has served time for what he did and now he's out. When this happened I was only 13 and he was about 24.

My mom said that it's my fault. My mom is not talking to me so I'm living with my grandmother and she's taking care of me and my child.

Could you please help me get started? I need glasses and my boy needs some clothes. I'm not a good speller and I'm not good at math. But someday, I will be the best mother and the best speller and I'll be the best in math.

I know when you get this letter you'll probably think "Why is she telling me all this?" because people always think the worst of me.

I'm really not a bad person. — Miss R. J., Columbus, MS

DEAR MISS J.:

I try real hard to empathize with folks and their problems, but I can't imagine for a minute what it's like to walk in your shoes.

My check will help you, but you'll need the grace of God to watch over you. $$$$$

MR. ROSS:

About a month ago my soon-to-be wife wrote you a letter asking for $548 so we could get our phone hooked back up.

She explained she would be getting out of school soon and she needed a phone so future employers could get ahold of her for interviews.

Well, for the last week she's been moping around the house like a wounded animal. You see she hadn't told me about sending you the letter. I finally got tired of these mood swings, and after asking her about a hundred times what was wrong, she finally told me.

Imagine my surprise when I heard about this pipe dream your article swooned her into believing.

Man, people like you should be slapped for all the false hope you instill in all the people you don't help.

After seeing what it did to my lady, I know you do more harm than good. As angry as I am with you, I still forgive you for your ignorance.

Percy, if you ain't got enough to give to everyone who asks for it, you shouldn't be giving anything at all. — Mr. K. G., Farmington, NM

DEAR MR. G.:

According to your logic, I shouldn't help anyone because I can't help everyone. It would be an easy out to say that's why I'm not helping you.

However, the truth of the matter is I find others more deserving. $$$$$

3 elected to 75th Huron County Farm Bureau Board

By AMY HEIDEN

Three new members joined the Board of Directors of the Huron County Farm Bureau at the group's 75th Annual Meeting last Wednesday. The meeting was attended by several local and state government officials, as well as state Farm Bureau officials and local members.

Dan Thuemmel, Port Austin, Kevin Burk of Chandler Township, Don Koglin of Sheridan Township and Kurt Anderson of Caseville Township were elected to the board and each will serve three-year terms.

Pigeon's David Armbruster, serving his last day as President of the county group, introduced Dr. Ken Rosenman, who conducted a cancer survey among Huron County farmers.

Dr. Rosenman urged all women to get regular breast cancer screenings, and the men to wear hats and sunscreen when they are working out in the sun. The study was sponsored by the Center for Michigan Agricultural Safety and Health.

Certificates were awarded to five local students who attended a Citizenship Seminar at Olivet College this past year.

Danny Decker of Bad Axe, Gretchen Duever of Lakers and Jamie Guster, Kristin Lisowski and Nicole Ruiz de Castilla of Caseville received certificates.

Any students who are interested in attending the seminar next year is urged to contact the Huron County Farm Bureau.

Several resolutions were passed by the local members, and those resolutions will be passed onto the state organization for use in formulating its policy.

Some of those resolutions adopted were:

"Urging the Huron County Board of Commissioners to seriously consider hiring a county controller to take over day-to-day operations of the county."

"Supported current Michigan law concerning deer bailing."

"Urged county commissioners to consider privatizing certain county services in order to save money."

"Approved a dues increase for membership."

"Supported auto insurance reform and urged members to vote on Nov. 8."

"Urged all milk processors to participate in the Producer Equalization Committee (Superpool) to provide a market price for milk that exceeds the federal order price."

"Supported the National Dairy Program, a self-help program that would allow dairy farmers to control the disbursement of excess milk production. The resolution also supported opening up Canada to U.S. dairy products. "Supported the development of an alternate pricing structure for milk."

The most important resolution, Armbruster said, was one that concerned the upcoming 1995 federal Farm Bill.

"Many organizations want to take control of the farm bill, like environmental groups and so on, and we feel that farmers should have the greatest say in what the bill has," Armbruster said.

In stepping down from his post, Armbruster noted that there have been two father-son presidents of the Huron County Farm Bureau. E.T. and Bruce Leipprandt both served as president, and Robert Armbruster and now his son served in the post.

Rev. King looks forward to Pigeon

By AMY HEIDEN

Coming to Pigeon is just like coming home to Rev. Willard and Wilma King.

They're both from the small Thumb town of Marlette, so they're no strangers to a town and country ministry.

The Kings come to Pigeon's First United Methodist Church from a congregation in Genesee near Flint, a church that was part of an 11-member cooperative parish.

Because the parish was made up of churches of vastly different sizes, many different programs could be offered, Rev. King says.

In his new post here, replacing Rev. James Schwandt, Rev. King wants to be known as the pastor who has a lot of caring concern for people. "My office is always open and people can call us any time of the day or night," Rev. King says.

Although Wilma King doesn't take the pulpit on Sunday mornings, she considers herself part of a "team," along with her husband.

"We work together as a

WILMA AND REV. WILLARD KING have come to Pigeon.

team and if my husband isn't available to minister to someone, I try to help out," she says.

She has worked as a paraprofessional in a Genesee County school, working with physically challenged students. In her spare time, she enjoys reading and along with her husband, enjoys the occasional fishing excursion.

Rev. King says the first order of business in his new church is to do more home visitation, starting with the church's officers.

"I want to find out about them and their families, and learn their joys and concerns for the church," he says.

In between visiting and ministering to his congregation, Rev. King might be found in his garage workshop, building the latest piece of furniture requested by a member of his family.

Woodworking and building furniture have always been a source of great pride and relaxation for him, he says.

"I took two ends off some old pews that had been cut shorter and I used those pieces to make a desk," he says. "The grandkids call it my Holy Desk."

The Kings have three daughters, Karen Keger, Capac, Connie Soule of Sebewaing and Brenda Harris of Zeeland, plus seven grandsons.

More Sebawaing River meets planned

By WALT RUMMEL

About 30 farmers, other residents and government officials met in USA Middle School Thursday evening for a public information meeting concerning progress of the Sebawaing River Watershed Project.

The meeting was called to order by Mike Gregg of the state Department of Agriculture, chairman of the State Intercounty Drain Board. Gordon Wenk, also of MDA, explained the activities within the project and offered a summary at the close.

After Claire Schwartz of Fishbeck, Thompson, Carr & Huber, consulting engineers of Ada, explained goals and objectives, she showed slides of winter ice scenes on Sebawaing River, State Drain and Columbia Drain, all of which are included in the project.

Robert Tufts, senior engineer of Williams, Osinski and Associates, Bad Axe, told of a preliminary Water Management Study being prepared to explain his findings in a six-month monitoring program. His studies involve 157 miles of measures and monitors—55 miles on the Columbia, 101 miles on State Drain and slightly more than one mile on Sebawaing River.

He listed filter strips, side inlet erosion structures and other engineering operations to provide adequate drainage and flood protection and to improve and protect water quality within the watershed.

Schwartz gave four basic scenarios, which ranged from "doing nothing" to "doing something different with the channel," which might include structural devices, removing or adding trees, trapping or attacking ice and other operations.

Comments from property owners and other local residents included opinions and the need for something to be done.

Most pleas were for doing work in stages, keeping the project economical, favoring rip-rapping over earth moving, offering cooperation and participation, and protecting the village against floods and cutting down on chemicals.

Local farmer Warren Reithel, member of Sebawaing Township Board, asked why not start with phase 1 as a rip-rapping project in some of the worst-eroded areas?

Almost as a response to that, Tufts suggested removal of 47,000 cubic yards of sediment from the Sebawaing Railroad Bridge and confluence of the State and Columbia Drains, a distance of 6,600 feet, and rip-rapping two miles of the Columbia Drain from Sebawaing Road to the confluence.

Wenk concluded the meeting, calling it "a very unique and interesting project," and promising to consider the comments, "putting final touches on plans and looking at alternatives" and bringing it back to the steering committee.

There's not much funding available now, he cautioned, saying that possibly $300,000 would be granted during three years. He said that other funds might be found and that local farmers might undertake some soil-saving projects on their own properties.

Wenk said the next meeting would "probably" take place in November.

LT. GOV. CONNIE BINSFIELD was in the Thumb last week, campaigning for Gov. John Engler and for fellow Republican Mike Green of Mayville, who is the Republican candidate for the 84th District soon to be vacated by Rep. Dick Allen (R-Caro.)

Binsfield made several stops in Huron and Tuscola Counties, promoting the governor's program of the International Year of the Family. She fielded questions about revenue sharing, taxes and changes in school financing. MARY DRIER PHOTO

Girl Scout sign-up is Sept. 15

Suzanne LeMaire has enjoyed her role as a volunteer Brownie Girl Scout leader so much, she has increased her duties to that of Service Unit Director for Girl Scouts in Elkton, Pigeon, Bay Port and Caseville.

A volunteer Brownie leader for Pigeon in the past three years, LeMaire now has the opportunity to encourage a larger number of girls to participate in Scouting and to increase adult volunteers in her service area.

"You daughter has unique qualities that belong only to her," she says. "Through Girl Scouting, she becomes the best person she can be."

It's that enthusiasm for Scouting that LeMaire believes will encourage girls and adults alike to sign up for Girl Scouts on Thursday, Sept. 15 from 6 to 7 p.m. at the Pigeon Rec Park pavilion.

Girls may sign up for several different program levels, depending upon their age/grade level:

Daisy - age 5 and 6, kindergarten and first grade;
Brownies - age six through eight, first through third grades;
Juniors - ages eight through 11, grades three through six;
Cadette, ages 11 through 14, grades six through nine and Senior - ages 14 through 17, grades nine through 12.

For more information, contact LeMaire at 453-2079.

Full fall schedule at Bay Shore

By PENNY HARRISON
Following a busy "maximum capacity" summer, Bay Shore Camp of Sebawaing is gearing up for an equally busy fall schedule, according to Director Lew Tibbitts.

Kicking off a busy September is the second annual Singles Retreat Weekend, this Friday through Sunday, Sept. 11. It is designed for unmarried persons of any age. Speaker is Rev. Scott Wilkerson of Beverly Hills United Methodist Church, Beverly Hills, MI. He will lead retreaters in discussion on how to be "Single, Christian and WHOLE." (Casual dress is appropriate. Phone reservations are accepted by calling 883-2501.

Free financial advice is the focus of a one-day Estate Planning Workshop at 8:45 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 13. Guest speakers are Huron County Probate Judge David Clabuesch, Attorneys Carolyn Cary and Michael Allen and Edward Jones Investment Representative Patrick Esian.

Topics to be covered include the probate process, wills and living trusts, powers of attorneys, Medicaid and investments for estate planning and long-term care.

Highlighting the fall calendar is the 15th Annual Benefit Auction on Saturday, Sept. 17. Bidding begins at 10 a.m.

"This is our single largest, most successful fundraiser," says Tibbitts. "This event finances many of our most costly purchases and improvements. Last year's Auction netted about $22,000 toward grounds and office equipment, and bought a lot of bunkbeds, too."

Tibbitts can't predict the outcome of this year's auction, but hopes it will be another recordbreaker.

The all-day Auction is fun and wholesome entertainment for the whole family. Baked goods go on sale at 9 a.m., and concessions are available all day.

Auction item inventory includes several new hand-picked quilts, solid oak furniture from L.J. Gascho of Pigeon, 1885 wooden bedstead, solitaire diamond engagement ring, 1985 Buick Electra, 16-ft. boat, motor and trailer, several electric organs, many handcrafted and hand-carved wood crafts, used/antique furniture, antique jewelry and collectibles, plus much more. New items arrive daily and donations of good quality merchandise will be accepted until Auction Day.

Last on Bay Shore's fall calendar is an overnight Senior High Youth Retreat starting at 10 a.m., Saturday, Sept. 24.

Dr. Kent Fishel will lead the gathering of 9th-12th graders and focus on fellowship and fun along with small group discussion on topics of teen interest.

All high-schoolers are invited, regardless of where they attend school, and are urged to bring a friend. Campers will be registered at the door.

For details on any event, call camp office at 883-2501.

EXPERIENCE • INTEGRITY • DEDICATION
Paid for by the Committee to Retain Judge Clabuesch, P.O. Box 200, Pigeon, MI 48755

Dear Friends:

The time has come to kick-off the campaign season. Judge David Clabuesch has again stated his dedication to do the best job possible as your Huron County Probate Judge. In the past seven and a half years, he has implemented sweeping changes in the operation of the Court, and been a driving force in seeking reform in the laws which affect the Probate Court.

While the accomplishments of Judge Clabuesch are significant, there are vast changes which still need to be implemented in the future. The Judge is committed to seeing Huron County develop a local based service continuum for troubled children. He has stated that adequate staffing and service excellence are an absolute priority for his Court. As your Probate Judge, he has insisted on accountability from those who appear in the Probate Court and affect the lives of those people who are unable to protect themselves.

His job is difficult and demanding and yet Judge Clabuesch has repeatedly indicated that it is an honor to serve as your Probate Judge.

We will host an open house for Judge Clabuesch on Sunday, Sept. 11 at the Franklin Inn. We are hoping to gather with friends from throughout the county from 1 to 5 p.m. for fun, fellowship, music, and conversation. Music will be provided by The Gaels, some immensely talented friends from Birmingham.

Tickets can be obtained at the door, so invite your friends. Donations are at your discretion.

We are looking forward to seeing you. It should be a fun afternoon.

Best Regards!
Committee to Retain Judge Clabuesch

Stacey Adams Gettel, Treasurer.

Gonzales - Johnson

The Bells Are Ringing

The marriage of Emily Annette Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wesley Johnson, to Gary Noland Gonzales, son of Irene Gonzales and Gilbert Gonzales, both of Pigeon, was solemnized Saturday, Aug. 13, 1994 at 7:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Emporia, VA.

The Rev. Randal Kirby performed the double-ring ceremony against a background of greenery with baby's breath, ferns and flowers. The lighted candelabra were accented with white bows with flowering streamers and greenery.

Church windows were decorated with greenery with baby's breath and candles.

Rosemary Johnson rendered the pre-nuptial music on the piano and the traditional wedding marches on the organ. Franco Giotto of Richmond sang "True Companion."

Escorted by her father and presented by her parents, the bride wore a white tulle gown accented by scalloping, Schifflilace, clear sequins and seed pearls. The subtle sabrina neckline was highlighted by lace appliques with applied sequins and pearls.

The bodice finished into trimmed Basque waist. The short puff sleeves with illusion "windows" balanced the full skirt. The back waistline fell into a peplum with matching lace and sequins.

Schifflilace trimmed with seed pearls and sequins wrapped the semi-cathedral train. Her head was adorned with tulle roses.

She carried a cascading bouquet of peach roses, baby's breath, variegated ivy and stephanotis. Matron of honor was Elizabeth Johnson Jansen of Knoxville, TN, sister of the bride. Other attendants were Leah Abernathy Loungo of Williamsburg, Karen Wallace of Pensacola, FL and Sarah Catherine Gravitt, cousin of the bride from Richmond, VA.

All attendants wore hunter green tea length gown of silk shantung which featured fitted bodices with gathered shoulder pieces and a modified scoop neckline. The princess lines from the bodice flowed into gored skirts. They carried peach roses with streamers of variegated ivy and peach ribbons.

James Frederick Warren II of Richmond served as the best man. Groomsmen included Gilbert Gonzales and Armando Gonzales, brothers of the groom, and Thomas Buschlen, all from Pigeon.

The groom was attired in black, shawl collar tuxedo with a white paisley vest and white bow tie. The groomsmen wore identical tuxedos with black paisley vests and bow ties. The groom wore a peach rose and stephanotis boutonniere and the groomsmen wore boutonnieres of peach roses.

Mother of the bride chose a tea length pale pink crepe gown with a spaghetti straps, a dropped waist and gored skirt. It featured a lace overblouse with pastel flowers and sequins. She wore a white orchid corsage.

Mother of the groom wore a two piece cranberry tea length ensemble. She wore a white orchid corsage.

Tonya Gonzales, stepmother of the groom, wore a two piece navy print dress with a full split skirt. She, too, wore a white orchid corsage. Julia Jones directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at the Johns-Mansville Club in Jarratt, VA.

After a trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will make their home in Richmond, VA.

Lady Lakers start with 55-49 loss

By AMY HEIDEN

The Lady Lakers played their first game on the new Laker gym floor last Tuesday, but their efforts were turned back by Harbor Beach 55-49.

The Lakers started off a step slow in the first quarter, but upped their pace in the second, ending the first half with a slight 21-19 edge.

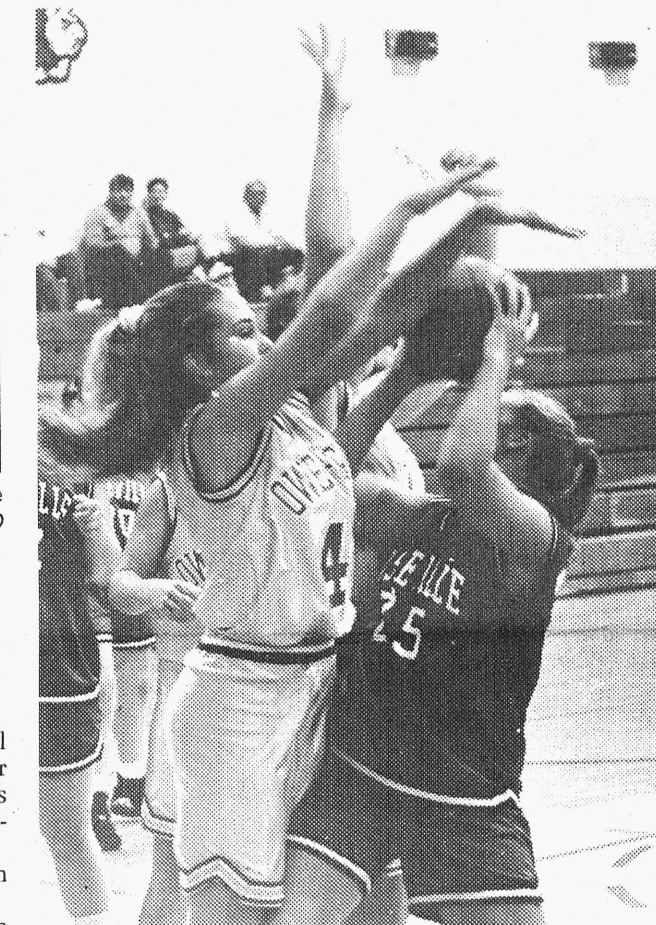

Later, the Lady Pirates turned up the heat under the Lakers and outscored them 36-28 in the second half. The home team kept the score close and with less than two minutes left, the score was tied. But Harbor Beach kept up their pressure and took home the win.

Carolyn Bollenbacher led the Lakers with 13 points, including three three-pointers. Betsy Drury followed with eight and Jenny Murdoch scored seven.

JUNIOR VARSITY: The JV team lost their first game 27-19. Marcie Rathje led with seven, with Stephanie Lorkowski scoring five.

FRESHMEN: The freshman team made a successful debut, defeating the Pirates 52-31. Angie Roestel led with 13 and Marie Hurren canned 11 points. Kami Shaw and Shannon Pionk each had eight.

THEY BOTH WANT IT: Owen-Gage's Jenny Winchester and Caseville's Amie Cieslinski struggle for the ball, in last week's league-opener game. KATHY MEYER PHOTO
