He carves Risen Christ

By SALLY RUMMEL
The reality of the Risen Christ that Christians all over the world will celebrate this Easter Sunday will have a special meaning for the St. Roch Catholic Church parish in Caseville.

One of its own members, Jerome Galante of Sand Point, has spent the Lenten season —and several months before—carving the image of Christ into a statue that will be suspended from St. Roch's ceiling in time for a Dedication Service this Easter Sunday at 9 a.m.

"For Jerry to do the resurrection Christ for our Parish is to have accomplished an awesome task for the church," says Father Dennis Kucharczyk, who has followed Galante's sculpting progress for the past four months.

"To have Christ hanging above us looking larger than life will be a powerful symbol of the Resurrection for us at St. Roch.

"Galante has spent many hours in the cool confines of his garage since Thanksgiving putting the finishing touches on the statue which began as a 200-lb. block of basswood.

"Using pictures of other statues of the Risen Christ as a guide, Galante began his design work, then the actual carving, working and refining the details of Christ's Passion, down to the details of the crucifixion holes in His hands and feet.

"In addition to a journey of work and refinement, the four months Galante spent alone bringing the statue of Christ to completion was also a spiritual journey for Galante as well.

"Working on this statue of Christ has moved me and changed me forever," says Galante, "I know I had Divine help guiding my hands as I carved this image of Christ.

"Father Dennis knows that the rest of the St. Roch congregation will share this deep spiritual feeling, upon seeing the veiled statue suspended and adored in white, then at the beginning of Mass, unveiled and dedicated.

"Sculptor Galante will also offer some words of dedications, as his work for the past four months moves from his own internal project to a shared inspiration for the entire congregation.

"His carving of the Risen Christ follows a year after having been asked to sculpt the Blessed Mother for St. Roch —the first time a 70-year-old Galante has ever attempted to move beyond his wood carving hobby of decoys, boxes and wooden planes, which he did mostly for the enjoyment of his grandchildren.

"When the St. Roch congregation was looking for a carpenter to try his hand at carving the Blessed Mother, Jerry’s name came up immediately because everyone knew of his wood-carving talents," says Father Dennis.

"Now that statue is at home at the front of the church near the altar, where she is a constant spiritual reminder of the holiness of the Virgin Mary.

"St. Roch's return to a more formal sense of reverence in this form of these statues has come about since Vatican II, when all statues in Catholic churches were removed because the Catholic Church was reacting to criticism that they were worshipped as statues, explains Father Dennis.

"Unfortunately as a result, he says, many churches became so plain that a church as God's House lost its reverence and respect.

"We are trying to re-instill this respect and reverence now, so that peoples' hearts, minds and attitudes are turned towards God while they are at church," adds Father Dennis.

"The St. Roch congregation is also working towards this return to reverence by removing some of the other work of the church to a new double-wide modular building, which will serve as a parish hall—rather than using the church itself for such multi-

Carving

Carving is a manual process of altering an object by removing material from the surface or by adding material to it. Recollectons Of-By-Gone Days

By George Zim

Dear Editor,

Thank you for featuring my father, he taught me all of the values I learned.

I remember when I was very young, my father would always come home from work and bring me a candy bar. He would put it on the table and say, “Here’s something special just for you.” That was always the best part of the day for me.

I also remember going to the movies with my father. We would always pick the latest movie and buy popcorn and soda. Those were great times together.

I want to thank you for sharing these memories with me. They are very dear to my heart.

Sincerely,

Donna Johnson

Dealing with taxes

By F. R. Nelson

As a small business owner, I understand the frustration that people experience when it comes to taxes. It’s not just the initial filing process, but also the ongoing monitoring and record-keeping that can be overwhelming.

In my shop, we keep meticulous records of all transactions and ensure that all necessary forms are completed and submitted on time. This has helped us avoid any penalties or interest charges.

I would like to share some tips that have been useful for me:

1. Keep all receipts and invoices in a separate file.
2. Use accounting software to track your income and expenses.
3. Meet with your accountant regularly to discuss your business’s financial situation.
4. Stay informed about tax laws and changes by reading tax-related articles and following reputable sources.

I hope these tips are helpful to others who are in the same situation.

Sincerely,

F. R. Nelson

Horsin’ the Thumb

By John M.

I’m not buying it. I am sure that there are tax forms available that can help you with this task. If you are still confused, I would recommend consulting with a tax professional. They can help you navigate the tax laws and ensure that you are filing correctly.

In my opinion, the tax system is designed to be confusing, and it can be difficult to understand all the rules and regulations. As a result, many people end up paying more in taxes than they need to.

I believe that simplifying the tax code is a necessary step. It would allow people to understand their obligations and make informed decisions about their financial affairs.

Sincerely,

John M.

David Lawrence helping to build Russia’s future

By DIANE GUETHER When Joe’s of Chippewa’s marquee sings, “It’s time to think about the future of Russia,” most people’s thoughts go to the rebuilding of the Soviet Union with a new government in charge. Last week, David Lawrence spent a day at his lifelong friend’s Fuquay Varina farm with the intent of learning more about what is happening in Russia’s future. Lawrence is also a member of the Fuquay Varina Farm Bureau with whom he contacted his connection to Russia.

Lawrence is the son of former Senator Daniel and Howard Phipps. He was educated at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and received his law degree from the University of North Carolina School of Law. He currently works as an investment banker in New York City.

DEAR MR. ROSS,

Your notice in last Saturday's paper that you are going to open your farm for the public. This has been a topic of conversation and discussion in our family for some time. We have three children, all under the age of 18, and we could not have a better home for the future. We think it’s a joke and don’t support you at all. But, you won’t let us have your property. We have been giving you money for years, but you never show any gratitude. We are sending a letter to your newspaper as well.
