

MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE, Published Thursday Evening, by MAT D. BLOSSER, MANCHESTER, MICHIGAN.

Will hold some three thousand people. The doors are not open until just 15 minutes before the services are to commence. The real reason, saying crowd work is the signal, and then the immense building is filled. Moody arrives and goes straight to business. He is not in the common acceptance of the word, an orator, yet he speaks always with great force, vigor, eloquence, fervency and power. All these traits and characteristics of the man go far towards accounting for the excitement which has been able to create all over the country, since he began his tour of Great Britain, nearly four years ago. But these are not all significant as those are, they only make up a part of the full explanation. There are at least two important agencies. These are the music employed, and the stored business men of the meeting, especially in the way of advertising them and securing beforehand the enormous popular backing of the churches. We often hear it said that it is Sankey's singing more than it is Moody's preaching that draws, but that shows a want of appreciation of the great power of the music of the Moody and Sankey meetings. It is not in Mr. Sankey's notes, although they are very effective, but in the sweeping, ringing, irresistible, overwhelming, singing of the chorists. People all unite with one heart and voice in the thrilling choruses. Although you have gone in as an indifferent spectator, before you know it you, too, are drawn into the enchanted current, and are being born with strange intoxication on the bosom of the wild but wonderful song—something after the style of the old-fashioned Methodist revival. Moody and Sankey have availed themselves to an extraordinary degree of the power there is in the united singing of large masses to every human feeling. They have compiled a collection of hymns and tunes of the most popular possible character, almost every hymn having a chorus that is easy to sing and which will almost sing itself. You know how "Home, Sweet Home," "John Brown's Body," or even "Shoo Fly," have power to catch the popular ear, and before anyone is aware of it, they have taken hold of the people's hearts, and before anyone is aware of it, they have taken hold of the people's hearts, and before anyone is aware of it, they have taken hold of the people's hearts.

At six o'clock in the morning we reach the ever bustling city of Chicago, and we find it quite different from what we had seen an hour or more before. The streets are full, we hasten to the wholesale meat market, to see the butchers as they come in from the slaughter houses, their wagons loaded with various kinds of meat. The market buildings are very large and we stand at the curb stone and look through the windows, we see hundreds of beefs hung up in rows, each quarter by itself, and arranged in such order that they look real nice, and indeed they are. The down town market men come here for their supplies, and the cattle of Chicago, and the great demand upon their time, could not otherwise bear these wonderful Evangelists and listen to the wisdom and goodness taught by them. They are doing a noble work and God speed them on. Sunday was spent in visiting friends, it being too rainy and cold to go to the park. On Monday we visited the FIVE POINTS of Marden, Lane & Co., which is the oldest in the West, and witnessed the process of type making, of which we may speak hereafter. There seems to be considerable building going on in the city, but we cannot imagine what they will do with the buildings for, low as rents now are, we have hundreds of places "ground yet," and we understand the city is trying to induce the country to erect the buildings, and then rent a portion to it. The new post-office building is a steel mill. The Chicago river has long been an eye-sore to the city on account of its filthy condition, and now they are at work building a tunnel some six miles in length, emptying into the lake above Lincoln Park, and which will keep the river supplied with fresh water all the time. There are very high, on account of the great outlays for such improvements, and we are so astonished at the enormous expenditure that we take the 10:20 train for home, arriving here in the morning ready to receive the first man who had $150 in his pocket and wished to subscribe for the ENTERPRISE for 1877.

MOODY & SANKEY. Go where you will, on the crowded thoroughfare, out in the suburbs, to church, the theatre, everywhere, you are told to go and hear Moody and Sankey. Boys scream in your ears, banner carriers run against you and mop a big flag in your face telling you to go and hear Moody and Sankey. The streets are lined with the stages, street cars and saloons, and are used as advertising medicine. It is wonderful what an amount of advertising is done. Gladstone expressed the opinion while ago that the Moody and Sankey meetings are the greatest advertising agency since the invention of printing. List of Letters.—The following are the list of letters remaining in the Post-office at Manchester, to-day. Any person calling for any of them should say "advertising." Web, Edwin R. Wilson, A. W. Rev. Wood, Nelson. List of letters remaining in Bridge-water post-office, Nov. 30, 1876. Any one calling for them, should please say "advertising."
