GLIMPSES AT SAN FRANCISCO. BY MAT D. BLOSSER. As we step out on the pavement, we find it in a few minutes, packed upon the characteristic of the people by whom we are surrounded. The old red brick, the temporary pleasure, the fast making and fast spending of money, the old hard labor, the jobbers, the violent assaults, the murders, gambling and drinking, and the rest of it, all seem to be a part of the life of the city.

BRIDGEWATER. It has been known, for some time, by the friends of Henry Calhoun, that he and family were suffering for the necessities of life, in fact were getting quite destitute of provisions. Monday was the seventeenth anniversary of Henry's marriage, and the party was given in his honor.
