AMERICAN LITERATURE.

The real value of the army and navy in the formation of public opinion and in the exercise of the power of popular control is the efficacy of the principles by which the armed forces are guided and the services rendered. The discipline to which our armies are subject is thoroughly instilled into the soldiers, and the principles by which they are governed are the same that govern the officers. The military spirit is always strong, and the army is prepared and ready to act. The army is used in time of war to support the government, and in time of peace to protect the country. The military spirit is always strong, and the army is prepared and ready to act.

WIT AND WISDOM.

The story of the man who was asked how he grew his hair long was told by a friend of his. He said: "I did not grow my hair long, but my wife did." The friend asked how that could be, and he replied: "She did it by making it grow, and I did it by cutting it off." The story is amusing and instructive.

WANT COLUMN.

A key to the famous man. The legend of the key to the old man's drawer has been widely circulated, and it is said to have originated from a story told by a friend of his. The key is always present, and it is always locked. The key is a symbol of the man's memory and his power of recall. The key is a symbol of the man's past and his future.
