CHAPTER XVII.

Five Million Pounds.

By T. M ITCH.

September 20. - Taking my hat off to the Mayor, of this town I am in no way, I have the honor of addressing your council upon the subject of the proposed enlargement of the city of New York. The plan is one which has been advocated by many of the citizens of this city, and is now before the council for consideration.

The city of New York is one of the most populous cities in the United States, and its population is increasing rapidly. The city is now overcrowded, and the season is fast approaching when the population will be too great for the present city limits. The council, therefore, is called upon to do something to provide for the future, and to make provision for the comfort and convenience of the citizens.

The plan proposed is to extend the city limits to the west, and to build a new section of the city in that direction. The council is empowered to borrow money for the purpose, and to sell bonds to the amount of five million dollars.

The sum of five million dollars is considered a large amount, but it is necessary to borrow it in order to carry out the plan. The city is now making rapid progress, and the demand for property is constantly increasing. It is, therefore, necessary to provide for the future, and to build a new section of the city.

The council is, therefore, called upon to make provision for the comfort and convenience of the citizens, and to provide for the future. The sum of five million dollars is necessary to carry out the plan, and the council is empowered to borrow it and to sell bonds to the amount of five million dollars.
