CHAPTER ON EARS.

People Who Were Punished Long Ago by Having Their Ears Removed. Any mutilation of the ear which involved the loss of a portion or all of it has always been a mark of disgrace.

CHAPTER ON EARS.

Following the retributive law of Moses, probably the punishment originated in the ecclesiastical courts. It is first mentioned in the trials of offenses against the church and some of the earliest clericals were noted men.

CHAPTER ON EARS.

Dr. Bastwick, who published some pamphlets, concludes one of his essays with "From plague, pestilence and famine, from bishops, priests and deacons, good Lord deliver us."

CHAPTER ON EARS.

According to the testimony of Sir Samuel Baker, Emin Pasha and Henry M. Stanley, there is one chief in Central Africa who is worthy of the title of gentleman.

CHAPTER ON EARS.

The Russians, says an English paper, are moving rapidly on every line that makes for national progress.

CHAPTER ON EARS.

Ladies Who Cannot Swim. Now, ladies who cannot swim and are afraid of the water, let me advise you not to trust yourselves in small boats.

CHAPTER ON EARS.

Concerning lobsters, experts say that young crustaceans have to be put in the sea almost as soon as hatched, and they begin to feed voraciously.

CHAPTER ON EARS.

The Turtle and Her Nest. It is said one of the curiosities of a turtle's nest is that no one having taken the eggs from a turtle's nest can get them all back in again.

CHAPTER ON EARS.

There are three principal methods of destroying these insects. Where the land has been plowed for wheat none hatched out, as inverting the soil destroyed the eggs, and no hoppers were found in the fields of growing wheat.

COMPRESSED HUMANITY.

Running a Man Through a Hydraulic Press—Cheaper Than Cremation. Material, a dead body. Process, compression. Result, a paper weight.

COMPRESSED HUMANITY.

This is the programme mapped out by an inventive genius in Pittsburgh. He is a doctor by trade, and therefore can speak with authority of the destiny of his patients. His name is Cooper. If his idea "goes," he will make a barrel out of it.

COMPRESSED HUMANITY.

Chicago people who ought to have intelligent ideas on the subject are puzzled, and hardly any two think alike. The reporter first asked the doctors about it. One said flatly that it couldn't be done, that compressing the human body as much as you pleased it would still be animal matter, and therefore perishable.

COMPRESSED HUMANITY.

One of the oldest undertakers in the city took in the situation at a glance. "Practicable!" said he; "of course, and easy and simple besides. There is a great deal of solid matter in the human body. Take the blood, for instance. In a body weighing 150 pounds, only one-tenth of the weight is blood and 30 per cent of the blood is solid matter; this gives you about two and one-third pounds to start with. The muscles weigh seventy-seven pounds and quite a proportion is solid matter. The skeleton weighs twenty-one pounds and eight ounces, and here the proportion of solid matter is large. Compression will reduce everything to solid matter, which would be indestructible, without the necessity of any chemical change. In embalming the principal thing we have to contend with is the liquids of the body. Exclude these thoroughly and the remainder will last indefinitely, just as a mummy does. I don't know how much the residuum would resemble marble, but by the introduction of coloring matter any desired effect could be produced just as easy as any shape. Cheaper than cremation? I should hope so. It takes three hours to cremate a body; they use $7 worth of gas, and charge $50. If we put $7 into a casket and charged $50 people would say we were robbers."—Chicago Tribune.

COMPRESSED HUMANITY.

Chinese Love for Flowers. You may see on the hundreds of canals that cut up the country around Shanghai boats whose dingy and miserable appearance betokens the poverty, even the beggary of their occupants, and yet near the stern, on the top of the awning, or cooing in a cage, are a few flowers, which would from two to a dozen pots of flowers. Little Chinese girls nearly always place a sprig of some bright flower in their glossy tresses of raven black, and they sometimes show a good deal of taste in the arrangement of their nosegays.

COMPRESSED HUMANITY.

Just about the 1st of February, or near the Chinese new year, one may see men and boys selling bunches of a small bush that bears a few flowers, which would resemble the speckish flowers of Virginia. This flower has, to a Chinese, associations bright and pleasant as those that clung around the far-famed Hawthorn that bloomed in old England on "Old Christmas Day." You can buy in the market for a few cents or cash a little flower pot with a few bulbs or daffodils in it, and by keeping it in the window of your room you have a few bright looking flowers. The Chinese do not plant in their parks such elaborate flower beds as the Americans and Europeans, but they are very fond of pot flowers.—Vick's Magazine.

COMPRESSED HUMANITY.

The Turtle and Her Nest. It is said one of the curiosities of a turtle's nest is that no one having taken the eggs from a turtle's nest can get them all back in again. Several have tried the experiment to find it a blank failure. After filling the cavity in the sand there are always enough eggs left to fill a couple more nests just as large. Old Mrs. Turtle when she deposits an egg paddles it in tight with her feet, egg by egg, the elasticity of the egg shell permitting it, but the man cannot compress the eggs as does the turtle.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Russian saloon for tea drinking is an interesting feature of life in Russian cities. The waiters are attired in white from head to foot, with a large black purse at the waist, and all are men. Tea is drunk alone or with lemon, and the sugar eaten from the hand. Eleven or fifteen cups are not too many for an old tea drinker.—Once a Week.
