

VOL. 22.—NO. 5.

Manchester Enterprise

BY MAT D. BLOSSIE. Published Thursday Evenings. Has a large circulation among Merchants, Mechanics, Manufacturers, Farmers, and Families generally in the villages of MANCHESTER, CHELSEA, SALINE, CLINTON, Norvell, Brooklyn, Napoleon, Grass Lake, and all adjoining country.

Desirable Medium for Advertisers. Rates Made Known on Application.

Subscription $1.50 a Year in Advance. If not paid in advance, One copy, six months; two, three months; 40 cents; one month, 15 cents.

Societies.

ANCIENT ORDER UNITED WORKMEN meet in their hall, over Geo. J. Heuser's drug store, on second and fourth evenings of each month. Visiting companions are invited to attend. J. D. BARNES, M. W. C. NATHAN, Recorder.

MANCHESTER TENT, No. 141, Knights of the Maccabees meet at their rooms over Geo. J. Heuser's store, the second and fourth evenings of each month. Visiting companions are invited to attend. D. A. B. COLEMAN, H. K. SCHMID, Com.

DOMINION COUNCIL, No. 24, R. & S. M., assemble at Masonic Hall, Tuesday evenings after each full moon. Visiting companions are invited to attend. J. D. VAN DYKE, T. I. M. MAT D. BLOSSIE, Recorder.

SHEDDIAN CHAPTER, No. 49, H. A. M., meet at Masonic Hall, on Wednesday evenings of each month. Visiting companions are invited to attend. J. D. VAN DYKE, Secretary.

COMET POST, No. 352, G. A. R., meets first and third Tuesday evenings of each month at the hall over Heuser's store. Visiting comrades invited to attend. H. L. RICE, ADJ. A. A. STIRLINGHAM, Com.

MANCHESTER LODGE, No. 148, F. & A. M., meet at Masonic Hall over Heuser's store, every Monday evening, or before each full moon. Visiting brothers are invited to attend. W. B. HOOR, Sec. J. F. NESTELL, W. M.

GERMAN WORKINGMEN'S AID SOCIETY meet in their hall over U. Lehmann & Co.'s store, on the first Monday evening of each month. F. R. KOPPEL, Sec. N. SCHMID, Pres.

Business Cards.

A. C. TAYLOR, M. D. Office at residence on day and night will receive prompt attention.

J. D. COFFEY, Conveyancer and Notary Public. Collections, and all other business left with him, will receive prompt attention. Farm and village property for sale.

GOODYEAR HOUSE BARBER SHOP, J. B. BRIGEL, Proprietor. Shaving, Haircutting, Shampooing, etc., Neatly Executed.

JOHN W. FATCHER, Attorney at Law. Office over Eckhart & Kubie's Clothing Store.

B. F. REYNOLDS, Licensed AUCTIONEER! Tecumseh, Mich. Sales in villages or country will be promptly attended to. Dates can be made at the Enterprise office, Manchester.

LAURA GRUBBS, Proprietor of the only Photograph Gallery in Manchester. Photographs of all sizes and latest styles. Gems, etc., at the lowest prices.

F. A. KUTTE, Manchester, Mich. Surgeon Dentist. All dental operations done promptly. Gas or Vitalized Air administered for painless operations. Gold Fillings, Crown and Bridge work a specialty. Gold Remounting, White metal rubber plates guaranteed to fit. Office over Champion Bros. store. At Dr. White's office in Clinton every Wednesday.

S. F. MARTELLES, Manufacturer and dealer in all kinds of ORNAMENTAL AND BUILDING WORK. A specialty of Granite Monuments!

DRINK Buckeye Bottling Works Lager, Ales and Porter.

C. LINDEN & CO., Dealers in Groceries!

Canned Goods, Hardware! Crockery, Boots and Shoes, Wall Paper, Wood, Willow, Tin and Hardware! Palats and Oils, Plows, Pompe, etc.

Come and See Us! The Cheapest Store in town.

DON'T FAIL TO CALL and see our line of CARDS! We have beautiful designs—lovely new patterns also the London

Photograph Cards, the richest and newest cards in the market, all of which we will sell at Reduced Prices, at the Enterprise Steam Printing Office.

LOYAL AT LAST.

A Tale of Love and Adventure in the Late Civil War.

BY BERNARD BIGSBY. AUTHOR OF "ELLEN'S SECRET," "FALLS AMONG THIEVES," "MY LADY FANTASTICAL," AND OTHER STORIES.

[Copyrighted, 1868, by the A. N. Kellogg News Paper Company.]

(CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK.)

He retired only to form once more and charge into those gloomy shades. Neither side was victorious, but it was generally supposed that Grant would retire across the Rapidan, though he thought differently, and pushed his army by the Confederate right flank straight towards Spottsylvania Court-house. Lee hurried forward, when the Federals reached the spot, they found the Confederate forces planted right across the road.

For a time it was a duel between sharpshooters, who sheltered themselves behind trees and picked off officers on either side. Then the storm broke in fury. With a wild yell, Hancock and his gallant corps, hidden by a dense fog, charged into the Confederate line, broke the battalions, surrounded a division, and captured four thousand prisoners and two Generals.

Again and again Harry Winthrop's brave fellows threw themselves upon the foe. He never flinched in the charge, but though his comrades fell on all sides of him, he came after each encounter scathless from the fight.

But the Prince Rupert of the Union lines was Custer, that beau ideal of a cavalry leader—a man to whom fear was unknown, one who never turned back on an enemy, one who never flinched in the face of a friend, and who never turned to the verge of Quixotism. Caution he knew not; it was with him ever a word and a blow, but the blow always came first.

And this man was Harry Winthrop's commanding officer. So when one day towards the end of May his regiment got the order to march on a raid under Custer's personal leadership, untrammelled by the counsel of cooler brains, Winthrop and his comrades knew that hot work was before them. Nor were they disappointed. The point of attack was Trevellay's Station, on the Charlestown road. With a rush Custer fell upon the fort, capturing a big train of stores, burning the buildings and making prisoners. It was a sharp, brief, glorious dash to victory! But—aye, that's—but— they spoil the best stories—that ever were told—as the victors rode out of the railway cutting, they found themselves surrounded by the enemy. Even Custer was appalled, but with fine strategy he got his men into an open space with room to fight. Again and again he charged; now on this side, now on that.

"For God's sake, sir," said Surgeon Wein, "there must have been a field-hospital, tell me which is the rear."

"The front is all around us," Custer cried, "waving his sword. 'So, doctor, you can take your pick.'"

More perils grew the position every moment. Custer formed his men for one grand charge to break through the opposing ranks.

Hardly had the command escaped his lips, than his color-sergeant, a Canadian, fell, mortally wounded, grasping the flag he loved so dearly in his desperate hand; Custer tried to snatch it from his grasp, but, with the tension of a vise, the fingers of the corpse clung to the flag-staff. In vain he pulled—then, quick as a flash, he tore the silk flag from its pole, pushed it into his bosom, and rode forward to the charge.

They got free. They rode right through the ranks of the enemy, crushing by the very impetus of their mad career the lines that stood in serried ranks before them. It was a glorious feat, but as the Frenchman said of Balaklava, it was not war; and, moreover, had it not been for his another brave deed, he would have been killed in high places, who would have been by no means sorry to catch him tripping.

That month Harry Winthrop was gazetted as a Major.

He was sweeping, however, of the bloody flag on the swamp at Cold Harbor, where Grant beleaguered Lee, and when, losing assets, ten thousand Union men were killed or wounded in the brief space of twenty minutes. He was doing out-post duty on the banks of the Chickahominy river; and while thus engaged met with another adventure which won a few more links in the chain of his story.

They had camped on the left bank of the river under shelter of a small wood, which stretched from the uplands to the edge of the stream. Suddenly there was a great commotion among the men.

"No, hang him! Shooting's too good for such a villain," were the cries that resounded on all sides.

The victim of this clamor had been dragged through the mud of a creek, and with disheveled hair, torn clothes, and bruised features, he stood before them, and Winthrop could not at first recognize in the duplicated servitor before him the Alphonse Leacroix. But the Canadian's bright eyes gleamed with hope as he saw his former friend.

CHAPTER XL.

FAITH CHAMPIONS.

Harry Winthrop was the last man in the world to question the sagacity of his superiors, but his patience was sorely tried during the next week or two, for it seemed as if the authorities were resolved to harass the life out of the light cavalry.

First they were marched toward Baltimore, then recalled, then started on a wild-goose chase after Bradley Johnson's brigade, and just as they had come up with him, while he was leisurely driving away vast herds of cattle and sheep he had captured, orders came not to attack him, and hardly had the angry men recovered the disappointment and the dusty clouds that hovered over the Confederate host vanished than these orders were countermanded, and they were told to strike the enemy whom now they could not find. Next they were hurried in hot haste to the Rappahannock valley, called back to Washington, dispatched with flying speed to Harper's Ferry, started toward Winchester, then compelled to make a forced march to Frederick, Md. And all this on half rations, under a blazing sun, with the stars and stripes waving more than four hundred men dropped senseless from the saddle.

I have heard Harry Winthrop say that the most exquisite luxury of personal comfort he ever enjoyed was a hot-water bath at the hotel at Frederick, and next to a sound sleep for three or four days, which was a parting injunction, "if you ever do get these things in marching order, report at once to me."

Harry saluted and withdrew, smarting somewhat under the flippancy tone of the command, and he felt that the dictates of his own inclination would be more than enough to lead him to the house of a lady named Platt, a widow with two charming daughters, Lucy and Agnes. These young ladies were typical of the times when many a house on the borderland was divided against itself. Lucy was a staunch Unionist, to whom the stars and stripes were as the United States Bible, while Agnes was a red-hot revolutionist who worshipped Lee and prayed for the success of the Southern arms. It was whispered that once these young ladies pitched their wits against each other in a singular rivalry. Agnes, burning with ambition to do something for the cause, had drawn a map of the disposition of the Federal troops and found means to send it to the Confederate General, and that while she innocently left it in her chamber for a few minutes before she had dispatched it, her consummate skill so completely altered it that it was a snare and a delusion to the man it was intended to benefit. It can readily be understood then that our hero was pelted on the one side and pouted at on the other in a manner which had been heard of before in the days of the Revolution. He was present one day at a battle-royal between the fair champions, and, oddly enough, the contention turned on a matter of peculiar interest to himself.

Lucy received a letter. She read it hastily at the breakfast table and said quietly with a cooling satisfaction to her mother: "He arrives to-day, mamma."

"The widow smiled in acknowledgment of her daughter's beaming happiness, but Agnes had a heavy frown on her face. "Then, if the house is really to be turned into a barracks, you will excuse me if I keep entirely to my room."

"Hush, hush, dear; you forget yourself," Mrs. Platt chided.

"No, mother, it was the bold reply: 'It is you and I that have forgotten ourselves, or Lieutenant McKenzie would never be a guest in this house.'"

There was then a sharp scuffle, and Harry dropped from the window and flew to the street, just in time to catch in his arms the young man's feet, and see the figure of a man drop to the other side of the boarded fence.

"There—thank you—I am not much hurt," the young man cried, while he clung to Harry so persistently that pursuit after the fugitive was impossible. "I was only a fellow I knew in better days—he was unfortunate—we had some words—and you see my sickness has not left me very strong. Pray come quietly back to the house. I would not for a great deal disturb the ladies in their slumber."

Harry thought for a moment before he replied. He had not a shadow of doubt but that this young Plat, who apparently was the ne'er-do-well son of his hostess, was his friend's murderer, but he shrank from implicating the man, who was about to marry the friend's sister, in the crime. So, unconcernedly as though receiving disreputable acquaintances in gardens at midnight were common occurrences: "Well, let us go back to bed, my dear fellow, and if I were you, I wouldn't wander about by daylight all day. It was a little bit stronger."

But in his heart of hearts he swore that it should go hard with the festive Mr. Platt if once he could get upon his track.

CHAPTER XLII. THE AMBASCADOR. Our ancestors used to chuckle hugely over the joke Mrs. Grant perpetrated in her 'Amery Book of Cookery,' when she announced that you must catch your hare before you proceed to cook him, and Harry found himself in much the same position as the worthy matron's readers. He must first catch his hare. And the hare in question proved to be a little bit stronger than he. After two days' hunting he was compelled for the present to give up the pursuit.

Of course he had at once left Mr. Platt's house. He felt like a discordant element in the home-circle, for it is not a very pleasant thing to be a little bit stronger than the ladies whose son and brother he is determined to bring to the gallows.

But though he learned many particulars concerning the widow's son, who was decorated by several who knew him to be a noble-hearted fellow, in which he had enlisted, and was now supposed to have drifted utterly to the wall, he could glean no tidings of his present whereabouts. No one had seen him. No one wanted to see him. So Harry went back to his regiment at Harper's Ferry without bringing the news of the fugitive's whereabouts.

Then the cry was "Sheridan!" Brave, gallant, dashing Phil was to lead the troops to victory. So under this renowned General they turned their faces westward along the Shenandoah Valley. It was hot work for the cavalry. Little Phil kept their well in advance, exploring and developing the enemy; but for a time not closing with him—a delay which caused Grant some anxiety, for he came in person to see how matters stood, but was so satisfied with his Lieutenant's perfect preparation that he went back to his post at Petersburg.

But one day the crisis came. They were marching on the night of October 3rd, when Sheridan struck the Confederate army at the ford of the river. "Three about, men, charge!" cried Colonel Brewer, who commanded Harry's regiment, and the gallant squadron dashed headlong on the foe, driving them back to the very edge of the river.

CHAPTER XLIII.

SEVERE TO THE TRENCHES' MOON.

were to them a new and painful experience. So, when they presented themselves before Colonel Gamble, I have no doubt they appeared in the eyes of that gallant officer as sorry a brigade as the illustrious regiment of Bombastes Furioso, whose men were all rags and tatters. Moreover, there was an inclination on the part of the regular army officers to look with a certain superciliousness on the "citizen soldiers," so he may be forgiven if there was a slight touch of contempt in his voice as he gave Harry an order on the quartermaster for their mount and equipment.

Harry saluted and withdrew, smarting somewhat under the flippancy tone of the command, and he felt that the dictates of his own inclination would be more than enough to lead him to the house of a lady named Platt, a widow with two charming daughters, Lucy and Agnes. These young ladies were typical of the times when many a house on the borderland was divided against itself.

Lucy was a staunch Unionist, to whom the stars and stripes were as the United States Bible, while Agnes was a red-hot revolutionist who worshipped Lee and prayed for the success of the Southern arms. It was whispered that once these young ladies pitched their wits against each other in a singular rivalry.

Agnes, burning with ambition to do something for the cause, had drawn a map of the disposition of the Federal troops and found means to send it to the Confederate General, and that while she innocently left it in her chamber for a few minutes before she had dispatched it, her consummate skill so completely altered it that it was a snare and a delusion to the man it was intended to benefit.

It can readily be understood then that our hero was pelted on the one side and pouted at on the other in a manner which had been heard of before in the days of the Revolution. He was present one day at a battle-royal between the fair champions, and, oddly enough, the contention turned on a matter of peculiar interest to himself.

Lucy received a letter. She read it hastily at the breakfast table and said quietly with a cooling satisfaction to her mother: "He arrives to-day, mamma."

"The widow smiled in acknowledgment of her daughter's beaming happiness, but Agnes had a heavy frown on her face. "Then, if the house is really to be turned into a barracks, you will excuse me if I keep entirely to my room."

"Hush, hush, dear; you forget yourself," Mrs. Platt chided.

"No, mother, it was the bold reply: 'It is you and I that have forgotten ourselves, or Lieutenant McKenzie would never be a guest in this house.'"

There was then a sharp scuffle, and Harry dropped from the window and flew to the street, just in time to catch in his arms the young man's feet, and see the figure of a man drop to the other side of the boarded fence.

"There—thank you—I am not much hurt," the young man cried, while he clung to Harry so persistently that pursuit after the fugitive was impossible. "I was only a fellow I knew in better days—he was unfortunate—we had some words—and you see my sickness has not left me very strong. Pray come quietly back to the house. I would not for a great deal disturb the ladies in their slumber."

Harry thought for a moment before he replied. He had not a shadow of doubt but that this young Plat, who apparently was the ne'er-do-well son of his hostess, was his friend's murderer, but he shrank from implicating the man, who was about to marry the friend's sister, in the crime. So, unconcernedly as though receiving disreputable acquaintances in gardens at midnight were common occurrences: "Well, let us go back to bed, my dear fellow, and if I were you, I wouldn't wander about by daylight all day. It was a little bit stronger."

But in his heart of hearts he swore that it should go hard with the festive Mr. Platt if once he could get upon his track.

CHAPTER XLII. THE AMBASCADOR. Our ancestors used to chuckle hugely over the joke Mrs. Grant perpetrated in her 'Amery Book of Cookery,' when she announced that you must catch your hare before you proceed to cook him, and Harry found himself in much the same position as the worthy matron's readers. He must first catch his hare. And the hare in question proved to be a little bit stronger than he. After two days' hunting he was compelled for the present to give up the pursuit.

Of course he had at once left Mr. Platt's house. He felt like a discordant element in the home-circle, for it is not a very pleasant thing to be a little bit stronger than the ladies whose son and brother he is determined to bring to the gallows.

But though he learned many particulars concerning the widow's son, who was decorated by several who knew him to be a noble-hearted fellow, in which he had enlisted, and was now supposed to have drifted utterly to the wall, he could glean no tidings of his present whereabouts. No one had seen him. No one wanted to see him. So Harry went back to his regiment at Harper's Ferry without bringing the news of the fugitive's whereabouts.

Then the cry was "Sheridan!" Brave, gallant, dashing Phil was to lead the troops to victory. So under this renowned General they turned their faces westward along the Shenandoah Valley. It was hot work for the cavalry. Little Phil kept their well in advance, exploring and developing the enemy; but for a time not closing with him—a delay which caused Grant some anxiety, for he came in person to see how matters stood, but was so satisfied with his Lieutenant's perfect preparation that he went back to his post at Petersburg.

CHAPTER XLIV.

THE BATTLE OF THE BATTLE-FIELD.

Harry Winthrop was the last man in the world to question the sagacity of his superiors, but his patience was sorely tried during the next week or two, for it seemed as if the authorities were resolved to harass the life out of the light cavalry.

First they were marched toward Baltimore, then recalled, then started on a wild-goose chase after Bradley Johnson's brigade, and just as they had come up with him, while he was leisurely driving away vast herds of cattle and sheep he had captured, orders came not to attack him, and hardly had the angry men recovered the disappointment and the dusty clouds that hovered over the Confederate host vanished than these orders were countermanded, and they were told to strike the enemy whom now they could not find. Next they were hurried in hot haste to the Rappahannock valley, called back to Washington, dispatched with flying speed to Harper's Ferry, started toward Winchester, then compelled to make a forced march to Frederick, Md. And all this on half rations, under a blazing sun, with the stars and stripes waving more than four hundred men dropped senseless from the saddle.

I have heard Harry Winthrop say that the most exquisite luxury of personal comfort he ever enjoyed was a hot-water bath at the hotel at Frederick, and next to a sound sleep for three or four days, which was a parting injunction, "if you ever do get these things in marching order, report at once to me."

Harry saluted and withdrew, smarting somewhat under the flippancy tone of the command, and he felt that the dictates of his own inclination would be more than enough to lead him to the house of a lady named Platt, a widow with two charming daughters, Lucy and Agnes. These young ladies were typical of the times when many a house on the borderland was divided against itself.

Lucy was a staunch Unionist, to whom the stars and stripes were as the United States Bible, while Agnes was a red-hot revolutionist who worshipped Lee and prayed for the success of the Southern arms. It was whispered that once these young ladies pitched their wits against each other in a singular rivalry.

Agnes, burning with ambition to do something for the cause, had drawn a map of the disposition of the Federal troops and found means to send it to the Confederate General, and that while she innocently left it in her chamber for a few minutes before she had dispatched it, her consummate skill so completely altered it that it was a snare and a delusion to the man it was intended to benefit.

It can readily be understood then that our hero was pelted on the one side and pouted at on the other in a manner which had been heard of before in the days of the Revolution. He was present one day at a battle-royal between the fair champions, and, oddly enough, the contention turned on a matter of peculiar interest to himself.

Lucy received a letter. She read it hastily at the breakfast table and said quietly with a cooling satisfaction to her mother: "He arrives to-day, mamma."

"The widow smiled in acknowledgment of her daughter's beaming happiness, but Agnes had a heavy frown on her face. "Then, if the house is really to be turned into a barracks, you will excuse me if I keep entirely to my room."

"Hush, hush, dear; you forget yourself," Mrs. Platt chided.

"No, mother, it was the bold reply: 'It is you and I that have forgotten ourselves, or Lieutenant McKenzie would never be a guest in this house.'"

There was then a sharp scuffle, and Harry dropped from the window and flew to the street, just in time to catch in his arms the young man's feet, and see the figure of a man drop to the other side of the boarded fence.

"There—thank you—I am not much hurt," the young man cried, while he clung to Harry so persistently that pursuit after the fugitive was impossible. "I was only a fellow I knew in better days—he was unfortunate—we had some words—and you see my sickness has not left me very strong. Pray come quietly back to the house. I would not for a great deal disturb the ladies in their slumber."

Harry thought for a moment before he replied. He had not a shadow of doubt but that this young Plat, who apparently was the ne'er-do-well son of his hostess, was his friend's murderer, but he shrank from implicating the man, who was about to marry the friend's sister, in the crime. So, unconcernedly as though receiving disreputable acquaintances in gardens at midnight were common occurrences: "Well, let us go back to bed, my dear fellow, and if I were you, I wouldn't wander about by daylight all day. It was a little bit stronger."

But in his heart of hearts he swore that it should go hard with the festive Mr. Platt if once he could get upon his track.

CHAPTER XLII. THE AMBASCADOR. Our ancestors used to chuckle hugely over the joke Mrs. Grant perpetrated in her 'Amery Book of Cookery,' when she announced that you must catch your hare before you proceed to cook him, and Harry found himself in much the same position as the worthy matron's readers. He must first catch his hare. And the hare in question proved to be a little bit stronger than he. After two days' hunting he was compelled for the present to give up the pursuit.

Of course he had at once left Mr. Platt's house. He felt like a discordant element in the home-circle, for it is not a very pleasant thing to be a little bit stronger than the ladies whose son and brother he is determined to bring to the gallows.

CHAPTER XLV.

THE BATTLE OF THE BATTLE-FIELD.

Harry Winthrop was the last man in the world to question the sagacity of his superiors, but his patience was sorely tried during the next week or two, for it seemed as if the authorities were resolved to harass the life out of the light cavalry.

First they were marched toward Baltimore, then recalled, then started on a wild-goose chase after Bradley Johnson's brigade, and just as they had come up with him, while he was leisurely driving away vast herds of cattle and sheep he had captured, orders came not to attack him, and hardly had the angry men recovered the disappointment and the dusty clouds that hovered over the Confederate host vanished than these orders were countermanded, and they were told to strike the enemy whom now they could not find. Next they were hurried in hot haste to the Rappahannock valley, called back to Washington, dispatched with flying speed to Harper's Ferry, started toward Winchester, then compelled to make a forced march to Frederick, Md. And all this on half rations, under a blazing sun, with the stars and stripes waving more than four hundred men dropped senseless from the saddle.

I have heard Harry Winthrop say that the most exquisite luxury of personal comfort he ever enjoyed was a hot-water bath at the hotel at Frederick, and next to a sound sleep for three or four days, which was a parting injunction, "if you ever do get these things in marching order, report at once to me."

Harry saluted and withdrew, smarting somewhat under the flippancy tone of the command, and he felt that the dictates of his own inclination would be more than enough to lead him to the house of a lady named Platt, a widow with two charming daughters, Lucy and Agnes. These young ladies were typical of the times when many a house on the borderland was divided against itself.

Lucy was a staunch Unionist, to whom the stars and stripes were as the United States Bible, while Agnes was a red-hot revolutionist who worshipped Lee and prayed for the success of the Southern arms. It was whispered that once these young ladies pitched their wits against each other in a singular rivalry.

Agnes, burning with ambition to do something for the cause, had drawn a map of the disposition of the Federal troops and found means to send it to the Confederate General, and that while she innocently left it in her chamber for a few minutes before she had dispatched it, her consummate skill so completely altered it that it was a snare and a delusion to the man it was intended to benefit.

It can readily be understood then that our hero was pelted on the one side and pouted at on the other in a manner which had been heard of before in the days of the Revolution. He was present one day at a battle-royal between the fair champions, and, oddly enough, the contention turned on a matter of peculiar interest to himself.

Lucy received a letter. She read it hastily at the breakfast table and said quietly with a cooling satisfaction to her mother: "He arrives to-day, mamma."

"The widow smiled in acknowledgment of her daughter's beaming happiness, but Agnes had a heavy frown on her face. "Then, if the house is really to be turned into a barracks, you will excuse me if I keep entirely to my room."

"Hush, hush, dear; you forget yourself," Mrs. Platt chided.

"No, mother, it was the bold reply: 'It is you and I that have forgotten ourselves, or Lieutenant McKenzie would never be a guest in this house.'"

There was then a sharp scuffle, and Harry dropped from the window and flew to the street, just in time to catch in his arms the young man's feet, and see the figure of a man drop to the other side of the boarded fence.

"There—thank you—I am not much hurt," the young man cried, while he clung to Harry so persistently that pursuit after the fugitive was impossible. "I was only a fellow I knew in better days—he was unfortunate—we had some words—and you see my sickness has not left me very strong. Pray come quietly back to the house. I would not for a great deal disturb the ladies in their slumber."

Harry thought for a moment before he replied. He had not a shadow of doubt but that this young Plat, who apparently was the ne'er-do-well son of his hostess, was his friend's murderer, but he shrank from implicating the man, who was about to marry the friend's sister, in the crime. So, unconcernedly as though receiving disreputable acquaintances in gardens at midnight were common occurrences: "Well, let us go back to bed, my dear fellow, and if I were you, I wouldn't wander about by daylight all day. It was a little bit stronger."

But in his heart of hearts he swore that it should go hard with the festive Mr. Platt if once he could get upon his track.

CHAPTER XLII. THE AMBASCADOR. Our ancestors used to chuckle hugely over the joke Mrs. Grant perpetrated in her 'Amery Book of Cookery,' when she announced that you must catch your hare before you proceed to cook him, and Harry found himself in much the same position as the worthy matron's readers. He must first catch his hare. And the hare in question proved to be a little bit stronger than he. After two days' hunting he was compelled for the present to give up the pursuit.

Of course he had at once left Mr. Platt's house. He felt like a discordant element in the home-circle, for it is not a very pleasant thing to be a little bit stronger than the ladies whose son and brother he is determined to bring to the gallows.

CHAPTER XLVI.

THE BATTLE OF THE BATTLE-FIELD.

Harry Winthrop was the last man in the world to question the sagacity of his superiors, but his patience was sorely tried during the next week or two, for it seemed as if the authorities were resolved to harass the life out of the light cavalry.

First they were marched toward Baltimore, then recalled, then started on a wild-goose chase after Bradley Johnson's brigade, and just as they had come up with him, while he was leisurely driving away vast herds of cattle and sheep he had captured, orders came not to attack him, and hardly had the angry men recovered the disappointment and the dusty clouds that hovered over the Confederate host vanished than these orders were countermanded, and they were told to strike the enemy whom now they could not find. Next they were hurried in hot haste to the Rappahannock valley, called back to Washington, dispatched with flying speed to Harper's Ferry, started toward Winchester, then compelled to make a forced march to Frederick, Md. And all this on half rations, under a blazing sun, with the stars and stripes waving more than four hundred men dropped senseless from the saddle.

I have heard Harry Winthrop say that the most exquisite luxury of personal comfort he ever enjoyed was a hot-water bath at the hotel at Frederick, and next to a sound sleep for three or four days, which was a parting injunction, "if you ever do get these things in marching order, report at once to me."

Harry saluted and withdrew, smarting somewhat under the flippancy tone of the command, and he felt that the dictates of his own inclination would be more than enough to lead him to the house of a lady named Platt, a widow with two charming daughters, Lucy and Agnes. These young ladies were typical of the times when many a house on the borderland was divided against itself.

Lucy was a staunch Unionist, to whom the stars and stripes were as the United States Bible, while Agnes was a red-hot revolutionist who worshipped Lee and prayed for the success of the Southern arms. It was whispered that once these young ladies pitched their wits against each other in a singular rivalry.

Agnes, burning with ambition to do something for the cause, had drawn a map of the disposition of the Federal troops and found means to send it to the Confederate General, and that while she innocently left it in her chamber for a few minutes before she had dispatched it, her consummate skill so completely altered it that it was a snare and a delusion to the man it was intended to benefit.

Manchester Enterprise
BY MAT D. BLOSSER.
Published at the Postoffice in Manchester on a Second-Class Matter.
We solicit correspondence and news items from all the surrounding towns.
Every communication should contain the name and address, but not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.
We do not hold ourselves responsible for errors or omissions.
If you have any business at the Postoffice, please call at the Postoffice.
The Manchester Enterprise will be found on file at the office of the Union Local, where developments, local notes or subscriptions can be left, when more convenient than at the home office.
The Clarke Local will be found on file at the counting room of the Enterprise, and advertisements, subscriptions or local notes can be left there.
All articles for publication should be addressed to MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE, Manchester, Michigan.
THURSDAY, OCT. 11, 1888.

There are now 900 students at the state normal school.
Spawning parties on the lake have been quite successful.

A Waspi, St. Joseph's lady, has caught and shipped 8,438 from this season, and is richer by $485.

A woman in the western part of the state is living with husband No. 14. Two more will make her worst 16.

There is said to be a scarcity of men for the lumber camp this year. Wages are the same as last season, however.

The annual session of the grand camp of Odd Fellows of Michigan opened in Grand Rapids on Tuesday.

The little town of Lakeland, between Muskegon and Lake Michigan, suffered a severe loss by fire on Tuesday. Loss, $29,000.

The United States pension office has paid out $10,000 during the past two days, nearly all to men pensioners whose claims have been allowed during that time.

The Waldron bank at Hildale, which was so badly flattered by the crookedness of Charles W. Waldron, has quit business. No one has lent a cent but Waldron's partner, Hon. Est. L. Koon.

Forty-seven years ago the Lake Shore Ry. Co. had chestnut, English larch and other trees set out on both sides of the track. The chestnut trees are now full of nuts, and the frosts are beginning to open the burrs.

At a church social given recently, at Stargis, each business house was represented by a young lady costumed in such a manner as to advertise the business of the firm she represented.

The Bloomfield oil company, of Jackson, and the Ingalls oil company, of Detroit, were sold Tuesday to the Standard oil company. C. C. Bloomfield and A. P. Robinson, large owners in both concerns, retire very wealthy.

There are nearly 400,000 members of the Grand Army of the Republic, according to commander in chief, Ben's report; a large increase, notwithstanding the daily increase of the death rate with the advancing age of the veterans.

Detroit Free Press: "The 20th anniversary of the organization of the A. O. U. W. occurs on the 27th inst., and it has been decided by the organization of this city to hold a grand reunion and celebration, to which all the branches in the state are expected to send delegations."

Negotiations are pending whereby E. D. Hogan, of Jackson, will send an amount to Australia, with Spaulding's baseball club, to make occasions and parachute drops in connection with the base ball games.—Detroit Journal.

It could manage to drop just before reaching Australia it would be a relief to the people.

Seventeen years ago Tuesday the city of Chicago was swept by the most devastating fire ever in this country, and thousands of her citizens were homeless and less. To-day Chicago is the finest city in the country so far as broad avenues and fine buildings is concerned. Her citizens are not the sort that cry over spilled milk.

An Adrian inventor has made a machine which he calls "The flying car." It is propelled by a treadmill and is said to be able to keep pace with the bicycle, and the rider is not so apt to take a "header."

Times: Last week was the greatest week in the history of the Adrian furniture store, for making shipments. The day they were sent to Auburn, N. Y., and good-sized orders to Hartford, Conn., and Washington, Pa. Tuesday a large carload will be sent to Springfield, Mo.

Four Chinese from the western states, bound for the east over the Grand Trunk Ry., were stopped at Niagara Falls by the U. S. customs officers, and refused admission into the country. The officers telegraphed to Washington for instructions, and received answer that a Chinese one out of the United States could not return unless the law has passed. Several Chinese from the east have returned, but have been refused passage over the Canadian lines. The four east bound Chinese have no money with them and have to depend on the kindness of strangers at Niagara Falls for their food. They make the Grand Trunk railway walking room their headquarters.

Jackson County Items.
The September term of the Jackson circuit court has closed.
The Grand Lake farmers' club met yesterday at Ammon Lee's.
The Hibbard house at Jackson has been leased by James H. Johnson, of Newark, N. J., who will take possession Dec. 1st.
The first district population of Jackson county has nominated sheriff F. G. Phillips for representative to the G. L. F. I. A.

The Jackson county teachers' association will meet in Jackson on Saturday, Oct. 20th, at the high school room of district No. 1.

The case against G. D. Smith, of Wampler's lake, for violation of the liquor law, has gone over to the next term of the circuit court.

Typhoid fever and dysentery is raging in the northern portion of Jackson, and the filthy condition of Grand river is attributed as the cause.

The Grass Lake News is in its tenth volume, and if it continues to be as well patronized as it is now it will live and thrive and do good for years to come.

The Jackson bootmaker who met Tuesday evening last and reduced the price of his wares, was followed by the County farmers' protective association fighting the importers of Chicago beef.

In clearing the Grand river of obstructions at Jackson, recently, seven bombs were found. It is supposed they were thrown into the stream 20 years ago on the time the machine shops were blown up.

Frank Hixon, of Loomis, has taken his two little boys and moved to Danville because his wife was sweeter on another man than on him. There are cases when a little rat and feathers would come in mighty handy.

A Jackson resident by the name of O. U. Chump has applied for a patent on an improved lighting machine, arranged with long arms, each bearing a ball-bearing. It is designed for the use of farmers who marketed their wheat a month ago.

Peter Osterberg, of Blackman, a prominent Jackson county farmer, went crazy on Monday, and attempted to take the lives of his wife and children, who were only escaped by flight. He was captured, bound and lodged in jail. He will be sent to the Kalamazoo asylum.

The democrats of Jackson county have nominated Cornelius L. Hall, of Noyah, for sheriff, and he is hustling around trying to get the people to elect him.

As a supervisor he made a good officer, and we see no reason why he would not make a good sheriff, if elected.

It is stated as an absolute fact that a certain citizen fumbled about for 10 minutes the electric fire alarm boxes for some ordinary business man in a city like this.—Ozian.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

There is a dentist in this city who takes a very fair salary concerning two well-known ladies of the city, who came to him with a set of teeth on a rubber plate, for which they paid a dead rabbit head, and he was to give them. They were greatly surprised when he intimated that he would allow them 75 cents in trade, and offered to pull the teeth out for them to pay for the rabbit head.

Washetaw County Items.
The young republican club of Ann Arbor is called "Captain E. P. Allen's club," and the captain is naturally well pleased over it.
Clark Cornell, of Ypsilanti, was nominated for senator from this district at the republican convention held at Ann Arbor, yesterday.
M. E. King, of Bridgewater, had a valuable three-year-old Hamiltonian mare, last Saturday, by getting hurt on a stake, and blood poisoning setting in.

Talk about tariff for protection! We actually know of men who are unable to pay their medical debts because of the tariff on saloon goods.—Milton Leader.

From present prospects the crop of winter apples will exceed the yield of several previous years. The first lot was sold here on Tuesday, and the market opened at 81 per barrel.—Observer.

G. N. Nisly ships a carload of chickens from this stock yard of New York city tomorrow. Mr. Nisly will also ship an other carload next week from Manchester, which he will accompany.—Observer.

In the circuit court on Monday two tramps were tried for larceny from a farm house in Sylvia. Mrs. Mary Whitcomb, most of the goods and the value of it is a question if it be not wise to disturb the good order of the county.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The opening illustrated article of the number is a paper by Richard Jefferson, on "An English Deer-Park." Theodore Roosevelt closes his ranch series with an excellent paper on "Fencer's Yew." Another illustrated article is on "American Machine Cannon and Dynamite Guns." But to most readers the most interesting and important illustrated article will doubtless be George Kennan's description of "The Tomak Forwarding Prison," in his series on the Siberian Exile System. This installment of the Lincoln series is on "Plans of Campaign," and is a full and authoritative statement of Lincoln's reasons for interference in the conduct of the war, in the early days of the McClellan regime. The fact that Lincoln took up the study of what is scientifically known as the "War of the Rebellion" is a very interesting feature of the Lincoln series.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

The October Century.
The October Century closes the 86th volume and 15th year of that periodical. The frontispiece of the number is a portrait of the late Emma Lazarus, the Jewish poet of New York; and in the body of the magazine appears a sympathetic study of the genius and personality of this most interesting woman.

YOU WANT
A Beautiful
—Birthday Card—
Plain or fringed, call at the
ENTERPRISE PRINTING OFFICE.
JUST RECEIVED
A new lot and two sizes of Japanese Napkins!
of the latest design and pattern as the
ENTERPRISE OFFICE.
REBERT CARDS,
Latest styles
Colored Lithograph, and plain, at the
ENTERPRISE OFFICE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN—County of Jackson.
I, the clerk of the court of said county, do hereby certify that the following is a true and correct copy of the will of the late John A. Spaulding, deceased, as the same appears from the records of said county, to-wit: That the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, did by his last will and testament, bearing date the 10th day of August, 1888, bequeath unto the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., his son, the sum of $10,000, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one year after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ten years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eleven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twelve years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fourteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventeen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of nineteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of twenty-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of thirty-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of forty-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of fifty-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of sixty-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of seventy-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of eighty-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of ninety-nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and one years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and two years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and three years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and four years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and five years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and six years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and seven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and eight years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and nine years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and ten years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and eleven years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and twelve years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and thirteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and fourteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and fifteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and sixteen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to be paid to the said John A. Spaulding, Jr., at the expiration of one hundred and seventeen years after the death of the said John A. Spaulding, deceased, and the residue of his estate, to

Table with columns: Station, Miles, Fare, etc. Includes routes to Lowell, Boston, and other cities.

Why plant maple and locust trees that are so susceptible to injury? The elm is the beautiful, full grown tree...

White Capt. (afterward Sir Samuel) Bruce was occupied for several years in the construction of a bridge, with the view of conveying one of a cheap description to be thrown across the river...

THE ITHACA ORGAN! HALLETT & DAVIS. STEINWAY AND NEW ENGLAND PIANOS!

By Mat D. Blosser. Published Thursday Evening, The Latest Edition, containing the most complete and accurate information...

It was a long time before that the young soldier of fortune, who had been wandering about the streets of New York...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

THURSDAY, OCT. 11, 1888. LOCAL NEWS BRIEVES. Barney Wade is buying apples. This is a great time for hard colds.

The living God is among you. The Lord God is with you. The Lord God is with you. The Lord God is with you.

Select German Stories. With COPIOUS NOTES for the use of Schools and for a Practical Method for Learning the German Language.

THE GREAT SOURCE OF THE EXTENSIVE curative range of Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic are its great blood purifying qualities...

Business Cards. A. TAYLOR, M.D. Office at residence on Adams street, Manchester, N.H.

It was a long time before that the young soldier of fortune, who had been wandering about the streets of New York...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

Some of our orthoses have commenced to beat their cello for the winter. Yate Schmidt and J. H. Hulbert went to Boston yesterday to buy some wool.

How do you make up your face? How do you make up your face? How do you make up your face? How do you make up your face?

Deutsch-Amerikanischer Grammatik. (GERMAN-AMERICAN LETTER WRITER.) About 200 pages, size 6x7 1/2; neat paper; price 75 cents.

Botting Works. J. BRIGGEE, Proprietor. Shering, Hallowell, Bangor, Me., Neely

Business Cards. J. COCH, Propr. Groceries, Crockery, Glassware, Notions, Gigs, Tobaccos, Fresh Lager Beer.

It was a long time before that the young soldier of fortune, who had been wandering about the streets of New York...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

Water should always be swallowed slowly. It is not the mouth and throat. If you toss off a drink of water and throw it through your mouth into your stomach...

Water should always be swallowed slowly. It is not the mouth and throat. If you toss off a drink of water and throw it through your mouth into your stomach...

Blank Books. of our own manufacture, such as Receipts, Township Orders, School Orders, etc.

MAJOR CHESLER. A. TAYLOR, M.D. J. COCH, Propr. Groceries, Crockery, Glassware, Notions, Gigs, Tobaccos, Fresh Lager Beer.

It was a long time before that the young soldier of fortune, who had been wandering about the streets of New York...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

Water should always be swallowed slowly. It is not the mouth and throat. If you toss off a drink of water and throw it through your mouth into your stomach...

Water should always be swallowed slowly. It is not the mouth and throat. If you toss off a drink of water and throw it through your mouth into your stomach...

Blank Books. of our own manufacture, such as Receipts, Township Orders, School Orders, etc.

MAJOR CHESLER. A. TAYLOR, M.D. J. COCH, Propr. Groceries, Crockery, Glassware, Notions, Gigs, Tobaccos, Fresh Lager Beer.

It was a long time before that the young soldier of fortune, who had been wandering about the streets of New York...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

Water should always be swallowed slowly. It is not the mouth and throat. If you toss off a drink of water and throw it through your mouth into your stomach...

Water should always be swallowed slowly. It is not the mouth and throat. If you toss off a drink of water and throw it through your mouth into your stomach...

Blank Books. of our own manufacture, such as Receipts, Township Orders, School Orders, etc.

MAJOR CHESLER. A. TAYLOR, M.D. J. COCH, Propr. Groceries, Crockery, Glassware, Notions, Gigs, Tobaccos, Fresh Lager Beer.

It was a long time before that the young soldier of fortune, who had been wandering about the streets of New York...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...

Will I return, and might, perhaps, get impatient and run away in my indignation, I shall take it as a favor if you will accompany me...