A NEW YEAR'S SONNET.
Grand, solemn as a Gibeon pyramid,
Yet graceful as a pine tree of the hills,
Whose slender boughs confront the blast that chills.

TWIN DIFFICULTIES.
This is how matters stood on New Year's eve: The twin Thorndyke sisters were at the Havershams. Of the twin Haversham boys one had just arrived and the other was expected.

As to the twins, from the ages of twelve to eighteen they had been at school in Switzerland, where they had been kept in an eminently respectable educational prison. Then they had been brought back to America to live on their father's place next the Havershams, passing the time at home with little or no company.

The twins did not even see their would-be husbands when their acceptance was imparted. "Send me a note," wrote Henry to Amelia. "I spend all my evenings at the city just now, and will scarcely be able to call soon again."

Ben, who proposed a few weeks later, just to prevent the affair from having a "cut and dried" appearance—coolly wrote Delia that he was in training for the coming athletic games, and she might as well send her answer to his mother. It didn't occur to the young lady that athletic games usually occur in summer; but the method of handling this part of the affair by the brothers came near breaking it all up.

Mrs. Haversham had desired to have the twins with her for the Christmas holidays, but her some numerous engagements prevented her from doing so. She was obliged to entertain her guests without assistance; so they were invited for the first week of the new year, and expected to dinner on New Year's eve.

They were received at the port cochere by their prospective mother-in-law, who conducted them to their rooms. "Neither of the boys could leave the city in time for dinner, so Mrs. Haversham, in a moire antique dress and the family jewels, sat at one end of the table, and Mr. Haversham, in a dress suit in which he had attended a state reception of President Buchanan twenty years before, sat at the other end, and the twins on each side.

and the twin sisters, who were to be sacrificed, and who didn't object so long as there was prospect of a change in their gloomy life, were sitting in the drawing room after dinner. Suddenly a whistle was heard on the railroad, which ran through the valley below the house.

"That's another matter, too, till—till then."
"Please."
"Not till you tell me what I want to know."

"I've been awfully cut up," he said.
"Indeed?"
"I intended to arrive earlier than I was expected and dine at home."

"I'm sorry that the girl I am to marry can't remember what I say to her over night."
"Mr. Haversham, I'm not in the habit of being treated like a child."

"What do you mean?" she exclaimed, coloring. "You surely cannot be serious. And she attempted a laugh."
"I am sorry that the girl I am to marry can't remember what I say to her over night."

"Come in here," said Henry, going back into the library. "Let's try and straighten it out."
Delia having ascended the staircase, went into her room and threw herself into an easy chair in a paroxysm of grief. Presently she heard sobs, and looking up saw her sister on the lounge, with her face buried in a sofa pillow.

"I'm crying, too," said Henry, "I'm crying, too." "What's the matter?"
"Something is wrong, indeed very wrong."
"Let's get mixed, badly mixed."

NEW YEAR'S IN NEW YORK
HOW AN ENGLISHMAN WAS IMPRESSED BY IT.
The Steam Whistles and the Hoop Tooting of the Metropolis Disconcerted Him. The Eating and Drinking—New Year's in England Not a Jolly Day.

I have spent my first glad day of the new year in America. I have been fortunate enough to be able to witness this most joyous beginning of another year in New York. Permit me to contrast New Year's day in America with the beginning of the year with us. I have been able, through careful attention, to note many most interesting peculiarities of this holiday in this country.

In the first place, I am very much impressed with the great wave of morality which appears to sweep over the country at this particular time. In the large circle of acquaintance which I have in New York I hardly have found one who has not in the most passionate and emphatic terms asserted some noble resolve in the direction of self-denial and self-reform. I have gazed with admiration upon my friends during these exhibitions, but I have been informed by official Americans that New Year's resolutions do not count, and that the high tide of reform which reaches its highest point on New Year's day very quickly ebbs, leaving no traces of the heroic resolves.

Under our magnificent system of credit extended to our upper classes, New Year's day is a day of terror, and all well-bred men flee to the country or to the continent to escape the bills and duns which pour in at this period of the year. There is in no part of England any pretense of hilarity upon the birth of a new year. How different with you! New Year's eve I stood in Madison square holding up a New York gilded youth with the artificial aid of a lamp post. He said, with enthusiasm, "Old fellow, we'll watch the old year out and welcome the new year in if we die for it, old chappie."

While I am in this mood of confession let me add that we English people are fond of good eating and drinking; therefore, having just returned from close and critical visits to the various royal spreads prepared by the New York landlords for their guests, I must say that I am filled not only with amazement but with admiration at such boundless hospitality. Some of my readers may think that I have returned filled with something else, but I can assure them that I made my rounds before these gorgeous spectacles of culinary art were broken in upon. It was very curious to witness the crowds which came merely to gloat, coming as avant couriers of those who came later in the day to gorge. I observed that there were many ladies among the morning visitors. I was told that it is only upon very special occasions that New York ladies have the opportunity of visiting the gorgeous bar-rooms of New York.

Possibly curiosity on their part to see places where their husbands, fathers and brothers spend so much of their time may have had something to do with so large a number finding their way in the procession of visitors New Year's morning. Possibly they hoped to find in these attractive resorts some hint of counter-fascination to keep the wandering husband, father or brother nearer the domestic hearthstone. It was amusing to observe the solemn way in which the crowd of visitors marched by in Indian file along the glorious front of these splendid tables. This line suggested for all the world the lugubrious march of those who pass by the remains of some hero lying in state. There was an equal solemnity and sadness upon the countenances of those who came merely to gloat, knowing that the glorious feast later in the day was not for such as they.

NEW YEAR'S CALLS.
I have been told that the custom which still prevails in this country of making New Year's calls has nearly died out, and that no member of New York's social trades union could pay a New Year's call without losing social standing. I have also been informed that this custom of calling still prevails at the national capital.

It appears to me a pity that New Yorkers should have given up this custom. It came down to them from the Dutch, and they could not do better than to take it up again. We know nothing of the system of annual calling. By it I am told that families which would not greet upon the ordinary occasions of the year are enabled, by having this one day of social comity, to maintain friendly relations which would otherwise die out. It is pleasant to find that this American life, which so often appears to us foreigners as a mere rushing after dollars, has in it one day devoted to the renewing of friendships, to the re-forming of old ties and to forgetting a dull grand of business.

THE PASSING YEAR.
Twelve notes the bells shall chime,
And at the ending time
The year takes flight;
But ere from earth he fares,
For every month he bears,
Each passing year declares
What he did bring.

JANUARY.
Like little crescents bright,
The golden stars alight,
Hung all the heaven's height
For every month's delight.
And pearls and snowflakes white
On all the fir trees cling,
While hourly garlands swing
From every pine and fir.

FEBRUARY.
But only he can find
The bitter buffed wind,
And chilling frosts unkind,
For company;
Still he laces lined
The empty little bird's nest,
And the pale sun, at best,
He scarce could see.

MARCH.
Then straightaway did he bring
The first snow of the spring,
But yet on everything
The frost he laid;
And the frozen ground did cling
About the earth and air,
He charmed the cruel chill
From out the ground.

APRIL.
Then he coaxed back the sun;
And after, one by one,
The flowers began to open wide,
He filled his glass with wine
But golden sands, till brought
To perfection, he brought
The Easter-tide.

MAY.
So grew the year awake,
And gathered richest grace;
While gayly every place
The burgundy tread
He wrapped in frothy lace,
And fashioned in between,
Bright tents of growing green,
For every tree.

NEW YEAR'S CALLING IN CHICAGO.
A reporter for The Herald, in a stationery store yesterday, noticed that a tremendous trade was being done in the line of blank visiting cards, women being purchasers almost wholly.

"Are the ladies going to call this New Year's?" asked the reporter.
"Oh, no; these were basket hangers," said the clerk. "They do not believe in receiving callers on New Year's, but they do wish to have it appear that their refusal to receive is due to the fact that few besides their butcher and baker would come. They will spend from now until New Year's writing the cards of prominent people to be placed in the baskets which they hang out. This will have the effect, they hope, of impressing those who call with the social importance of the basket hanger. They are rather green, however. The fact that the cards are all of one-kind will give them away."

Merchants and others in beginning the new year ask themselves, what will the harvest be?

How do you do 1890? You are somewhat damp and quite warm.

Ion, Geo. Starr of Coldwater fell from the veranda of the sanitarium at Battle Creek, on Monday receiving injuries from which he died soon after.

The Toledo Ann Arbor and Northern Railroad Co. have been asked to build a road from an Ann Arbor via Ypsilanti to Rossville or Belleville, to connect with the wasab, making a new route to Detroit to compete with the central.

Jackon County Items. Wm. D. Thompson, H. R. Emerson and Erasmus Gage of Jackson have joined the Smith Purifier Co. at Jackson.

Friday night an outside guard at the Jackson prison detected two men drilling a hole in the wall with the evident intention of inserting a dynamite cartridge to be exploded from the outside when the convict should be in the yard on the way to work the morning.

Washington County Items. The geological society will meet at Ann Arbor on Saturday.

A $4,000 fine was discovered in the personal paper mill at Ypsilanti on Saturday morning.

The fire on Charley Norton's store in Ypsilanti was blown off during the wind storm of Monday nighting everybody in the vicinity.

Frank Robison of Franconia, who formerly lived in Sharon, fell dead of apoplexy on Saturday night, while doing his chores. He was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and child. The funeral was on Tuesday.

Leavenworth County Items. The Gillespie Electric Co. of Adrian gave a ball and banquet to their employees on Saturday night, on the completion of an $97,500 re-erecting to re-erecting.

Mrs. Nancy Buel of Adrian died suddenly in her chair at the breakfast table, Sunday morning. She was 78 years of age but apparently in her usual health.

The finding of a snake in the lake shore near on Christmas day, is no longer a wonder, for on the same day while going home from a detention house, Justice Westerman ran across a stray of a million crocodiles on south Main street, and was compelled to fight his way through them with hands and cane.

The Prairie Chickens. Suppose you get half a dozen birds. Suppose you get half a dozen birds. Suppose you get half a dozen birds.

When water is intolerant of food, it is the general practice of physicians to order lime water to be given with milk.

The machine. A musical gas machine in English language, and it is called the perophone, and it is called the perophone.

From some experiments made at the University of Kansas, it was found that the average person can taste the bitter of quinine when one part is dissolved in 125,000 parts of water.

Another Sign. Mr. Fox—Everything points to the rapid approach of a severe winter. The probability is that it will be played in the same manner as the one which I have thirty-seven glass tubes, in which I have placed in a circle, contract and expand.

With a Hallow of Hair. A very old Hallow eve divination, formerly much practiced by English children, is now being revived.

Little Ethel—Papa's got a different kind of any of them. Mr. Fox—What is it, my little man? Little Ethel—Papa's got a different kind of any of them.

POINTS OF INTEREST TO LARGE AND SMALL CULTIVATORS.

Hereford Cattle—A Glattted Potato Box—Points on the Bread From Men of Wide Experience—The Prize Eull Figaro Described and Illustrated.

The Hereford breed has always been held in high estimation as a grazing animal by British stockmen, and has a foremost place among the English beef breeds. The present popularity in England of the Hereford cattle is due in part, at least, to the improvements brought about in this breed by the Royal Agricultural Society. This organization of late years has, by virtue of prizes offered and the high sale prices accruing from these, brought about some magnificent displays of Herefords, notably in 1884.

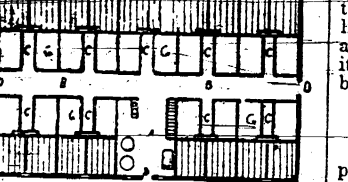

While the Herefords have been known in this country for the last half century, it is only of late years that they have been recognized among the foremost of beef breeds in the United States and been bred pure. A great impetus was given to the Herefords in 1883 by the winning of the Sweepstakes premium for the best dressed carcass, at the Chicago fat stock show, by a Hereford steer.

In fact, so well known have the Herefords become to our active breeders and leading stockmen that we give only a brief mention of their general characteristics for the benefit of amateurs. First come the massive form and great weight of beef produced; the comparative ease with which the cattle are supported, and the readiness with which they fatten in response to liberal feeding.

The subject of the illustration, originally photographed for The Mark Lane Express, is the fine bull Figaro that found his way to the front of the late Windsor Royal show, in a class of some thirty-yearlings, with a general consent. He is described as a deep, massive, well fleshed animal. His destination is Australia.

A Scientific Piggy. Country Gentleman, in reply to a correspondent, gives the annexed plan for a large piggy. Its capacity may be increased to any extent by adding to the length at each end, with the same internal arrangements. The feeding pens are placed on a sloping plank floor, and they are readily cleaned by pushing the manure through the horizontal slits extending along each side.

GGG are sleeping apartments; BB, the central passage; the troughs extend part way across the feeding rooms, with a board partition between them. The divisions between the feeding rooms and the sleeping apartments are a single board, 6 in. high, which holds the clean straw from becoming mixed with the manure.

The Zetetic Philosophy. The Zetetic philosophy, which proves absolutely and without a shadow of doubt that the earth is a plane and not a planet, has in it no theories, but establishes its conclusions upon facts alone. Many of these facts are of such a nature that not to know all about them will soon be deemed a sin of ignorance.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW OF PIGGY. lowered for excluding cold air in cold weather, or opened for the admission of fresh air in warm weather. The ground should slope away from the building on both sides. Pigs are naturally cleanly animals if their owners will only give them a chance, and with a supply of clean straw for bedding, they will keep it clean.

Winter Feeding. A subject upon which a great deal of advice is annually given, but one which can never be worn out, is that of winter feeding. It is now generally conceded that no one article can be fed the winter through with entirely satisfactory results. Fowls must have a varied diet, as no single element can supply all the needs of the system.

An Unexpected Calamity. Fond Husband—My dear, you know I promised you a diamond necklace this year. Helpful Wife—I know you did, but let it go—the water pipes burst last night.—New York Weekly.

VALLEY OF THE WINDING WATER.

The valley of the winding water. We saw the same light in the old. Still over the purple peaks the portals of distance and desire unfold. Still break the fields of opening June To emerald, in their ancient way. The sapphire of the summer heaven Is infinite, as yesterday.

A Strange Pennsylvania Accident. We were the victim yesterday of one of the most distressing accidents ever known in this territory, writes the editor of the Mifflin Center (Pa.) Blade. Yesterday morning our wife took occasion to do the family washing, having been kept from it earlier in the week by being very busy putting up our winter supply of apple butter.

At Sisterville the train stopped for an hour, waiting for connections. The gay throng of engineers and their wives left the cars and roamed about the picturesque West Virginia hamlet. In one street a wandering son of Italy was grinding a hand organ and playing the mazy waltzes of a huge cinnamon bear.

Protestations were in vain, escape was impossible. The huge arms of the dancing bear firmly grasped Mr. Cutter's, and he was compelled to finish the waltz with a very uncongenial partner. The friends of the engineer roared with laughter and even the Italian smiled.

Purchases of Sham Jewelry. Apropos of the sham jewelry business, says a writer in a London journal, I have inquired who are the largest patrons of it. "Americans are good customers here," said the salesman. "These big heavy bracelets you see there are bought chiefly by publicans' wives. We sell plenty of wedding rings at 1s. 6d. each."

New Distress Signal. A new shell to take the place of all distress signals now used, marine signaling, such as rockets and firing of minute guns, which involve the loss of much valuable time, has lately appeared.

Women as Dentists' Assistants. Recently the dentists of St. Louis have begun to employ young women as office assistants. Probably a dozen are thus employed. They are paid from $5 to $10 a week.

The Dust of Travel. If you have been traveling any distance on the cars don't wash your face in cold water the moment you reach a washstand. If you want to remove all trace of dust and smoke rub your face with vaseline or cold cream, and wipe it off on a dry towel.

IN BRUIIN'S EMBRACE.

A Locomotive Engineer's Experience While En route to a Convention. J. W. Cutter is a trusty guardian of the cab on the Cincinnati, Washington and Baltimore. He commenced his experience in 1883 as a fireman, and has vivid recollections of the days of the civil war.
