THE DUCHESS.

CHAPTER IV.

Chapter IV. The Duchess.

The Duchess sat in her chair, looking at the rain, and, as it fell, she thought to herself, "What a fine day it is for a walk!"

Chapter V. The Duchess's Walk.

The Duchess walked down the street, looking at the rain, and, as she passed by a shop, she thought to herself, "What a fine day it is for a shop!"

Chapter VI. The Duchess's Shop.

The Duchess entered the shop, looking at the rain, and, as she looked at the goods on the shelves, she thought to herself, "What a fine day it is for a sale!"

Chapter VII. The Duchess's Sale.

The Duchess bought some goods, looking at the rain, and, as she left the shop, she thought to herself, "What a fine day it is for a bargain!"

Chapter VIII. The Duchess's Return.

The Duchess walked back home, looking at the rain, and, as she arrived, she thought to herself, "What a fine day it is for a rest!"

A few words of sympathy are necessary when a woman's life is in danger. The human heart is tender, and the sentiment of compassion is universal. Let no one say, "It is only a woman's life," when the life of a woman is in danger. The life of a woman is as precious as the life of a man. Let us remember that the woman's life is as valuable as the man's life, and let us do all we can to save it.

A woman's life is valuable because she is a woman. The woman is a part of humanity, and she has a place in the world. The woman is a mother, a wife, a sister, a daughter, and a friend. The woman is a woman, and she is a child of God. The woman is a woman, and she is a sister of man.

The woman's life is valuable because she is a woman. The woman is a woman, and she is a child of God. The woman is a woman, and she is a sister of man.

The woman's life is valuable because she is a woman. The woman is a woman, and she is a child of God. The woman is a woman, and she is a sister of man.
