SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

BELOW THE POLAR ICE CAP-

HERALDS OF WEATHER.

MIDNIGHT SUN.

THE SCIENTISTS IN THE GREAT NORTH ZONE KNOW THE COMING OF WINTER BY PHENOMENA TO WHICH WE ARE UNCONSCIOUS.

A STUDY OF THE SUN'S ACTIVITY GIVES THE SCIENTISTS A KEY TO THE COMING OF WINTER.

The midnight sun in the North Pole Zone indicates the coming of winter to the people in the far north. The midnight sun, which means that the sun never sets, is a phenomenon that is visible in the polar regions during the summer months. As the sun moves lower in the sky during the winter, it becomes more difficult to see, and the region falls into darkness for a longer period of time. This change in the sun's position is a clear indicator of the approach of winter.

In addition to the midnight sun, other signs indicate the coming of winter. The aurora borealis, or northern lights, become more prominent as the sun's activity decreases. These lights are caused by the interaction of charged particles from the sun with the Earth's magnetic field. As the sun's activity decreases, the particles are able to reach higher altitudes and create the dazzling displays of light that we see in the northern sky.

The temperature also drops significantly as winter approaches. The polar regions experience some of the coldest temperatures on the planet, with temperatures often dropping below zero degrees Celsius. This drop in temperature is a clear indication of the season changing.

Overall, the midnight sun, aurora borealis, and temperature changes are all signs of the approaching winter in the North Pole Zone. These natural phenomena are studied by scientists to better understand the Earth's climate and the effects of climate change.
