Dear Sir: In the February issue of your paper I read an article on a case of a boy who fell into a well and was rescued. The article mentioned that the boy had a heart condition and had been told by his doctor to avoid physical exertion. However, the boy ignored this advice and was still able to perform impressive feats of strength.

It has been reported by various writers as somewhat staggering that the boy has been able to perform such incredible feats of strength. It is believed that his heart condition may have been a factor in his ability to push himself to the limit.

The story of this boy is one of inspiration and determination. It is a testament to the power of the human spirit and the importance of listening to one's doctor.
