THANKSGIVING DAY AMONG THE HEATHENS.

A Story Without Words.

THANKSGIVING DAY in the Cherubin.

Thanksgiving Day has been celebrated in the Cherubin for ages, since the dawn of time. The Cherubins were the first to acknowledge the gifts of the earth and heavens, and to give thanks to their Father and Maker. The Cherubin, or angelic beings, were the first to set aside a day of thanksgiving, long before the human race was even created.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.

Thanksgiving Day was first celebrated in the United States in 1621, when the Pilgrims and Wampanoag Indians shared a feast to give thanks for the harvest. Since then, it has become a national holiday, celebrated on the fourth Thursday of November.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN ANCIENT TIMES.

In ancient times, people did not have a specific day for giving thanks. However, they would often express their gratitude for the gifts of nature and the harvest. In some cultures, they would make offerings to their gods or spirits as a sign of gratitude. The idea of having a designated day for giving thanks did not exist until later.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The Romans had a festival called Saturnalia, which was celebrated in December. During this festival, slaves were given the freedom to roam and do as they pleased, and the roles of masters and slaves were reversed. It was a time for giving thanks for the harvest and the bounty of the earth.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN THE UNITED STATES.