YOU AND MR.

I always knew that we should meet Somewhere upon the road called life; And for a season pause to rest, Away from all the world's wide strife.

Our tastes and pleasures were the same. Each lived for each the world apart; We dwelt beyond the world of men. Hand linked in hand, heart pressed to heart.

Fate stepped between us where we met, To mock at all our higher life; But that one meeting on life's road, Hath made us stronger for earth's strife.

And though to-day we are apart, And stern between us walketh Fate, We know that we have met and loved, And for the future bravely wait. —Saturday Evening Post.

MAMMY MULLIGRUB.

Mammy Mulligrub lives at Hoppertown. Now Hoppertown is not a very important place neither is Mammy Mulligrub a very important personage; but the good-natured old darkey woman fills her own little niche in the great world, and recently with the aid of a cow and a dog, she managed to fill it pretty full. The thing came about in this way:

Mammy Mulligrub's cow is the pride of the old lady's heart, and a fine, large creature she is too; but like many other animals, she sometimes wants to have her own way. In fact, she can be as cranky as an old maid schoolmarm when she takes a notion.

Now, Mammy has staked out the old milk factory nearly all summer, and after the cow's offspring got to be some days old, the old lady concluded to resume this custom, so she once more anchored the whey-producer to a birch peg by means of the clothes line. Bossy, however, was left at home, shut up in the farm-yard to bawl away his breath all day, as if he had been a hired howler at a ward caucus. And he did it too.

Toward night Muley decided that her happiness and peace of mind, if not her very life, depended upon seeing that calf immediately, and sooner than that if possible. So she tugged away at her tether until the stake broke and then started for the yard at a break-neck pace.

A few minutes later a terrible racket at the cow-yard attracted Mammy's attention, and running to the door, she investigated she saw old Muley pawing and bellowing at the gate, with her nose in the dirt and her tail in the air. She wanted her calf, and she wanted him then.

"Fur de Lawd sake! Ef 'tain't dat ar kyow!" said old Mammy as she set her spectacles a little higher up on the broad black dab of flesh that answered her to smell with, in order to take another squint. "She's done bossy loose and kim fur her calf, an' ef I don't let him out she'll done buy herself fur shuah."

So saying the old lady trotted to the farmyard gate and let out the calf, who immediately began trying to chew of the accustomed portion of his maternal relative's physical system.

"She's so handy I bes' git a bucket an' her," said the old lady to herself, "just as she was going to put her into effect the dog appeared and took a hand in the game."

Now Bossy was not acquainted with old Towser, and what was more he did not feel inclined to get acquainted with animals of a standing inferior to his own; so he let out his hind legs as if the old Nick were after him instead of Daddy Mulligrub's pet watch-dog. Muley did not like to stand still and see herself abandoned in that heartless manner, so she started off in pursuit. Mammy had to wiggle her fat limbs quite rapidly in order to catch the rope before she was completely out of reach. She managed to do it, though, and secured the cow by taking a few turns around a young pear tree that stood close at hand.

But Towser's sporting propensities were fully aroused, and after that calf he went as if he very existence depended on getting a calf's tail for luncheon immedately. Mammy tried again and again to call him off, but in vain.

The calf took a circle around the excited cow and equally excited old woman, for he did not like to get too far away from his mother. But still old Towser followed in hot pursuit. Finally they passed so close that mammy seized the dog's collar and clung to it desperately.

"It's got ya, you good fur nullin brack dabble you," she puffed. "Chase dat calf till he's done tuckered all out, will ye? We'll see 'bout dat. Reckon I kin fix ye."

Mammy carefully tied the other end of the cow rope to Towser's collar, then she stepped back and viewed the situation. Apparently both dog and cow were hitched fast.

"Sifay dar while I gita de milk pail, you no-account purp you," she grumbled. "What daddie wants ter keep such a worthless ting as you is fur, I can't fix de life ob yo' imagine. Ef I had my way I'd cut you's bob tail off snug behind yer ears, dat I would." And thus scolding mammy waddled off to the house after the milk pail.

While she was gone Towser ran about the pear tree two or three times and so unwound the rope with which both he and the cow were hitched. As soon as the calf saw him coming he set off again, and when Mammy got back he was in full flight. Muley and Towser both started in pursuit, but unfortunately they didn't go in quite the same direction. All at once the dog felt a sudden twitch at his collar and concluded he would not go any farther. So he stopped suddenly and braced his feet.

But a seven hundred cow under good headway will give quite a yank, and Towser found it out too. He did not stay stopped so long as he intended, but was dragged in triumph at the chariot wheel of the conquering cow, so to speak. When Mammy returned with the bucket there was quite a lively race going on in the field.

"Bress de Lawd! I mus' stop dat calf or he'll run hisse' ter deff," she ejaculated as she fell in behind the rather rapid procession.

Ahead of everything went the calf by this time terrified almost out of his senses, next came the cow, bound to go wherever her offspring went or die in the effort, then old Towser, sometimes one end up and often the other, the dirt flying in every direction as he dug his toes into the

EMBLEM OF TRIUMPH.

DR. TALMAGE ON THE MARCH TO JERUSALEM.

The Triumphant Entry of Jesus and the Despoliation of the Palm Groves—Every Victory Must Have Its Carriage.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 10.—This day is recognized as Palm Sunday throughout the world, and that fact gave direction to Dr. Talmage's sermon. Among the hymns sung was the hymn:

Clad in radiant purple and white, Victor palms in every hand. Text: John 12: 13. "They took branches of palm trees and went forth to meet him."

How was that possible? How could palm branches be cast in the way of Christ as he approached Jerusalem? There are scarcely any palm trees in Central Palestine. Even the one that was carefully guarded for many years at Jericho has gone. I went over the very road by which Christ approached Jerusalem, and there are plenty of olive trees and fig trees, but no palm trees that I could see.

The climate you must remember that the climate has changed. The palm tree likes water, but by the cutting down of the forests, which are unfriendly to the palm tree, Jericho once stood in seven miles of palm grove. Olivet was crowned with palms. The Dead sea has on its banks the trunks of palm trees that floated down from some old-time palm grove and are preserved from decay by the salt which they receive from the Dead sea. Let woodmen spare the trees of America, if they would not ruinously change the climate and bring to the soil barrenness, instead of fertility. Thanks to God and the Legislators for Arbor Day, which plants trees, trying to atone for the ruthlessness which has destroyed them. Yes, my text is in harmony with the condition of that country on the morning of Palm Sunday. About three million people have come to Jerusalem to attend the religious festivities. Today Jesus will enter Jerusalem—great Jesus, the more memorable and the more triumphant? And to what better use could we put our lives than in the sacrifice for Christ and his cause and the happiness of our fellow creatures? Shall we not be willing to be torn down that righteousness shall have triumph over us? Christ was torn down for us. Can we not afford to be torn down for him? If Christ could suffer so much for us, can we not suffer a little for Christ? If he can afford on Palm Sunday to travel to Jerusalem to carry a cross, can we not afford a few leaves from our branches to make emerald his way?

The process is going on every moment in all directions. Christ is again on the march, not from Bethpage to Jerusalem, but for the conquest of the world. He will surely take it, but who will furnish the palm branches for the triumphant way? Self-sacrifice is the word. There is more money paid to destroy the world than to save it. There are more buildings put up to ruin the race than churches to evangelize it. There is more depraved literature to blast men than good literature to elevate them. Oh, for a power to descend upon us all like that which descended on Charles G. Finney with mercy, when, kneeling in his law office, and before he entered upon his apostolic career of evangelization, he said: "The Holy Ghost descended on me in a manner that seemed to go through me, body and soul. I could feel the impression like a wave of electricity going through and through me. Indeed it seemed to come in waves and waves of liquid love. It seemed like the breath of God. I can recollect distinctly that it seemed to fan me like immense wings. I went along with joy and love. These waves came over me and over me, one after another, and until, I recollect, I cried out: 'I shall die if these waves continue to pass over me.' I said: 'Lord, I cannot bear any more.' And when a gentleman came into the office and said: 'Mr. Finney, you are in pain?' he replied: 'No, but so happy that I cannot live.'"

My hearers, the time will come when upon the whole church of God will descend such an avalanche of blessing, and then the bringing of the world to God will be a matter of a few years, perhaps a few days, or a few hours. Ride on Christ for the evangelization of all nations. "Behold, Christ who didst ride on the broken colt down the side of Olivet, on the white horse of eternal victory ride through all nations, and may we, by our prayers and our self-sacrifices and our contributions and our consecration, throw palm branches in the way. I clap my hands at the coming victory. I feel this morning as did the Israelites, when on their march to Canaan, they came not under the shadow of one palm tree, but of seventy palm trees, standing in an oasis among a dozen gushing fountains, or as the Book puts it: "Twelve wells of water and three score and ten palm trees." Surely there are more than seventy such great and glorious souls present to-day. Indeed it is a mighty grove of palm trees, and I shall feel when our last battle is fought and our last tear wiped, we shall become one of the multitudes St. John describes "clothed in white robes and palms in their hands." Hail them bright, thou swift-advancing, thou victors over sin and sorrow and death and weep from the hills and valleys of the heavenly Palestine, they have plucked the long, broad, green leaves, and all the ransomed—some in gates of pearl, and some on battlements of amethyst, and some on streets of gold, and some on seas of sapphire, they shall stand in numbers like the stars in splendor like the morn, waving their palms!

To Tighten Cane-Seat Chairs. Turn up the chair bottom and wash the cane-work thoroughly with soapy water and a soft cloth. Let it dry in the air, and it will be firm as when new, provided the cane has not been broken.

A Tonic for the Hair. A good tonic for the hair is of salt water, a teaspoonful of salt to a half pint of water, applied to the hair two or three times a week. The effect at the end of a month will be surprising.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON III—APRIL 17—GOD'S WORKS AND WORDS.

Golden Text: The Law of the Lord is Perfect, Converting the Fool.—Ps. 119: 1-14.

1. God's Book of Nature and Its Teachings.—Vers. 1-6. 1. "The heavens" are the superterrestrial spheres. "Declare" are telling, constantly, now and evermore. "The glory of God" is the outshining of his intrinsic excellence.—Murphy. "And the firmament." The sky, another word for heavens. "His handiwork" the work of his hands.

2. "Day unto day uttereth speech" Every day the heavens renew their testimony to God's glory.—heyase. "Night unto night sheweth knowledge." "Night" edge of God at his glory. "Day bids us look for an endless day; night warns us to escape from everlasting night.—Spurgeon.

3. All nations, people of all languages, can understand God's voice in nature, and be led to worship their Creator. Nature utters an audible voice.

4. "Their line," etc. Their province, or domain, is co-extensive with the earth, and they speak with authority in its remotest parts.—Alexander. "To the end of the world." The utmost parts of the habitable globe. "In the firmament of the heavens." "Hath he set a tabernacle." The heavens are a church in which the spheres as ministers eternally preach to the people of God's glory.

5. "Which is as a bridegroom." A bridegroom, forth his face beaming with joy. "Coming out of his chamber." The rising sun. "Rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race." No other creature yields such joy to the earth as her bridegroom, the sun.—Spurgeon. "His going forth." The sun's daily course "is from the end of the heaven." From the East, where he starts. "His circuit." The circular path in which he moves. "Unto the ends of it." To the other side of the heavens. "There is nothing hid from the heat thereof." Thus the sun in his going, illustrates the glory of God.—Barnes.

6. The Book of Revelation and Its Effects.—Vers. 7-14. 7. "The law of the Lord." Probably the Pentateuch, the historic-prophectic and the purely prophetic writings.—Cheyne. "Is perfect." A complete revelation of God's will as far as men could then receive it. "Convert" bringing back from ignorance and sin.

8. "The testimony of the Lord." The ten commandments are called the "testimony" because they are God's witnesses to what is the right way. They testify against those who disobey. All those things by which God bears witness to his own character and perfections. "Is sure." Faithful, true, steadfast. Heaven and eternal life are more certain than the everlasting hills. "Making wise." In knowledge and in conduct. "The simple." The child-like in spirit.

9. "The statutes of the Lord." All that God bids us do; every duty he lays upon us. "Are right." Conscience and reason approves them, and experience shows that they are right. "Rejoicing the heart." That truth which makes the heart right, then gives joy to the right heart. "The commandment of the Lord." Same as the statutes. "Is pure." Free from every taint of error or injustice. "Enlightening the eyes." Illuminating the mind and conscience.

10. "The fear of the Lord." The law as contemplated in his working on the heart, "is clean." Everything connected with it is of a pure or holy tendency.—Barnes. "Enduring forever." Purity is a sign of life; impurity always marks decay.—Spurgeon. "The judgments of the Lord." That God justifies or declares to be right. "Are true and righteous altogether." Manifestly and incontrovertibly just.

11. "More to be desired are they." God's laws. "Than gold, yea, much fine gold." They lead into the real treasures of life. "Sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb." The sweetest pleasures are on the side of God.

12. "Moreover by them is thy servant warned." We are warned by the Word both of our duty, our danger and our remedy.—Spurgeon. "In keeping of them there is great reward." "Who can understand his errors?" Rev. Ver. "discern." Sins both of ignorance and infirmity, intentional and unintentional. Who can understand the far-reaching consequences growing out of his sins? "Cleanse him from secret faults." Things hidden not only from others, but from our own hearts.—Perowne.

13. "Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins." Defiant acts in contrast with errors of inadvertence.—Murphy. But the soul that sineth presumptuously shall have no atonement.—Num. 15:30. "Let them not have dominion over me." Let me not become the slave of sin. "Then shall I be upright." His piety would then be shown to be true and genuine. "Then shall I be innocent from great transgression." The word "great" is emphatic, guilt matured, fully developed.—Cook.

14. "Let the words of my mouth." James tells us that the tongue is "a fire," "a world of iniquity." Therefore it is necessary that the "meditations of the heart," its devices, its secret counsels, should be "acceptable" in God's sight, if we would have our words right. "O Lord, my rock." My fortress, my defence. "And my redeemer." From the guilt and power of sin.

MORE OR LESS SCIENTIFIC. Too much chalk is in alleged powdered sugar nowadays. Chalk is an acquired taste.

Political economy was no longer called a dismal science now that the only remedy the Chicago pays a professor $7,000 for teaching it.

Experiments have shown that a person speaking in the open air can be heard about equally as well at a distance of 120 feet in front, 75 at each side and 30 behind.

The flat pieces of iron shaped like the letter S which are frequently seen on the walls of old brick buildings is the ancient symbol of the sun.

Divers who helped to lay the foundation of the great Eads bridge found that while they were under a pressure of four "atmospheres," or sixty pounds to the square inch, the ticking of a watch was absolutely painful to the ears. They also found it impossible to whistle.

If an elephant was far-sounding as a nightingale in proportion to his bulk, his trumpeting could be easily heard around the world. On like conditions an ox bellowing in Australia could be heard in New York about fifteen hours after making the noise.

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTES. IT IS A DUTY you owe to yourself and your family, during these hard times, to get the most value for your money. You can economize in your footwear if you purchase W. L. Douglas's Shoes, which, without question, represent a greater value for the money than any other makes.

CAUTION. W. L. DOUGLAS' name and the price is stamped on the bottom of each shoe, which protects the consumer against high prices and inferior shoes. Beware of dealers who acknowledge the superiority of W. L. Douglas's Shoes by attempting to substitute other makes for them. Such substitutions are fraudulent, and subject to prosecution by law, for obtaining money under false pretences. W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.
